Edward L. Wilson writes from Oakland, California: "There is nothing more admirable than an open mind willing to grope in the darkness for knowledge. But it does not seem as if the nation can afford to use the Presidential office as a school for the study of economics and social conditions for many more years."

The fact is that the whole nation and the whole of life is a school. We have been studying since 1776, and others were studying thousands of years ahead of us.

In 1776 we decided solemnly that kings must not have power. We took his power from King George and thought we had settled that. But power, like water, will go somewhere. Kings have not got it, in this country. But well organized capital and intelligence HAVE got it, and are using it.

Just what to do about it, no one seems to know. It is preposterous for 100,000,000 people to be told "You can't have any coal" and "Your railroads will function regularly, by and by, we don't know just when." But what can the people do about it? That is what the President asks himself — and some conservative members of the Cabinet and Senate, as he goes yachting over the week-end.

It would be sad if that yacht could not get any coal (perhaps she burns oil). Sad also, if citizens must go cold this Winter. But WHAT CAN YOU DO? The Constitution must be respected. The rights of capital must be respected. All kinds of things must be respected, it seems, ahead of the people's right to have the use of coal and railroads.

Henry Ford will close down; says he would not take the coal if he could get it at present prices. "Seven dollars to $9 a ton at the mines is extreme profiteering," says he.

Rather extreme. Not long ago, just before the war, this writer was offered by James Mullins of Wooster, Ohio, first class soft coal for less than 50 cents a ton at the mine. Quite a jump to $9, considering that the Lord put the coal in the ground and charges nothing for his share of the work.

It's annoying, but it's all part of the people's education. Falling down teaches babies to walk; burning their fingers teaches them to avoid fire. A sufficient number of hard bumps may teach this intellectual nation to vote.

Congress will probably be asked to let the government take over and run the railroads, temporarily, as in war—with a big bill for the public to pay, of course.

A sane reader wants to know why the government does not take over the railroads permanently, if it must take them and pay the bills, every time they get in trouble. That's a question the people will answer, when their education is more advanced. Private ownership is doing all it can to educate them.

Railroad repair shops are "one hundred million hours behind in their work." The automobile owner understands what that means in added expense. Let the trouble go and the bill grows. What the roads hope to save on wages they will lose in those 100,000,000 hours. But what of it, the people will pay for that, in rates adjusted upwards.

E. Boston Tunnel Tie-up

HUNDREDS IN SUBWAY TIE-UP

Park Street and Noddle Island Routes Out for Hour at Rush Time

Thousands of persons were delayed on their way to work today by rush-hour tieups in the Park street subway and the East Boston tunnel.

Several thousand passengers were held captives in the cars between Park street and Scollay Square stations, and were finally permitted to walk to one station or the other.

The tie-up, caused when a three-car train bound south from Lechmere to Broadway became disabled near Park street, lasted more than an hour. Cars were forced to go slowly for half an hour after traffic was resumed to avoid running over stragglers in the dark passages of the subway.

More than 1,500 persons fled the East Boston tubnel in a forty-car tie-up in the rush hour, when an electric feed wire snapped 800 yards from the Maverick square entrance and set fire to the track sleepers. Smoke and crackling wire nearly threw the passengers into panic as they rushed half a mile to the entrance of the tunnel.

Will See Officials 'in Hell First,' Says Jewell

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The striking shopmen will see the railway executives in "Hell first" before they surrender their seniority rights, is the message sent out today by B. M. Jewell, head of the strikers to the rank and file of his organization.

"During all of these eight weeks," declared the message, "our people have responded to the offers of everyone who has tried to compose the differences, and now they say to us, in substance, If you are willing to make an unconditional surrender and draw back like a whipped dog, we will take back a few of you, and we reply to that with all the vigor and earnestness of our makeup:

"We'll see you in Hell first."

PIPER DANCES AND PAYS THE PIPER

When police arrived at Davis street, Woburn, at an early hour this morning in response to a call that a suspicious man was cavorting about, they found Hardland Piper, of No. 444 Main street, Woburn, daintily attired in nothing more than shoes, leather puttees, and a rain coat. This was not enough, in the estimation of the Woburn police, so Piper appeared in Woburn Court today, and received a two months' sentence to the House of Correction for disturbing the peace.

Passenger Ship Itata Goes Down Off the Chilean Coast

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—The Chilean steamship Itata, 2,200 tons, sank today off the Chilean coast near Coquimbo.

All the passengers, numbering 150, and the crew of seventy-two were lost.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 29.—The steamer Gray, north bound from Victoria, struck on Saturna Island during a dense fog today. Rescue ships, including the salvage steamer Algerine, were rushed to her assistance. The Gray is believed to be in no immediate danger.

London, Aug. 29 (By International News Service).—The British steamship Virtudos has been sunk in a storm, with the loss of part of her crew, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Madrid this afternoon.

Harding Seeks Authority to Be Used if Conditions Demand

Washington, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—President Harding believes that Congress should grant him immediately authority to take over railroads and mining properties, it was said today, at the White House, but has assured congressional spokesmen that only the most dire public necessity would move him to exercise such powers if granted.

If Congress indicates unwillingness to enact the legislation necessary, the President does not intend to push his opinion or to make a formal public demand for the powers, it was said, officials adding that he does not believe that there is any present necessity for action under such a grant.

Ready to Sign Coal Peace in Pittsburgh

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—The bituminous coal strike in western Pennsylvania blew up today when the Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association announced it would meet with officers of District Five, United Mines Workers, and sign under the terms of the Cleveland agreement.

The association, which formerly controlled about sixty per cent. of the output in western Pennsylvania, has been slowly going to pieces in the past week as its members broke away and signed with the union as individuals. The agreement will turn a tonnage of 24,000,000 back to operation at once.

The straw that broke the back of the strikers was the signing up of Freeport Thick Vein Coal Operators' Association, one of the two major operators' organizations in this end of the State. The Pittsburgh Coal Company, largest individual producer in the world, has offered its men the union scale without the check off.

EXPECTED TO PEACH ON HIGHER-UPS IN BANK CASE

Charles Ponzi, flesh and blood Wallingford, whose juggling of millions startled the financial world, was reported today to be ready to peach on the fellows higher up.

Reports from Plymouth county jail, where Ponzi has been a prisoner for two years under Federal Court sentence, stated he feels he has been made the "goat" long enough and that fear of added penalties in the State courts has prompted him to attempt a trade with Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

The Boston American learned today that Attorney-General Allen and a State officer visited Plymouth Jail recently, and that Mr. Allen had a long interview with Ponzi.

It was also rumored at the State House and Court House today that Attorney-General Allen plans to visit Ponzi at Plymouth Jail again soon.

Whether these are preliminaries to a bomb shell to be hurled by Ponzi could not be ascertained, but letters are known to have passed between the imprisoned "Wizard of Finance" and the chief prosecuter of the Commonwealth.

DIRECTOR IN HANOVER.

It was admitted that Ponzi might give invaluable aid to the attorney general in the coming probe of the Hanover Trust Company. Ponzi was a director of that institution, which was the clearing house for the funds reaped in his get-rich-quick operations.

Ponzi is said to fear Attorney General Allen. Ponzi and his sympathizers felt that his prosecution in the Federal Court was sufficient, but Mr. Allen did not.

The attorney general insisted on prosecution by the Commonwealth, with the result that more than twenty larceny indictments were returned against Ponzi by a Suffolk County Grand Jury.

OVERTURES REPORTED.

Trial of Ponzi on these charges is scheduled to start in Boston September 18. The prosecution will be handled by the attorney-general's department.

Ponzi is reported to have made overtures to the effect that if Attorney-General Allen consented not to prosecute him he would, when liberated at the close of his Federal term, "work his hands off and pay back every dollar," or words of that nature.

Ponzi appeared unexpectedly at Pemberton Square Courthouse and heightened a flock of rumors, one of which was that he would eventually be called before the Grand Jury extraordinary which is probing Attorney-General Allen's cases.

His trip today from Plymouth Jail, however, was to examine certain records and documents on file in the office of Clerk John P. Manning relating to his approaching trial in the State Court. He was

SEEKS MEDAL FOR MAN WHO SAVED HER

Believing that the man who rescued her and her fifteen-year-old daughter from drowning in Dudley Pond, Cochituate, should have some public recognition, Mrs. Mary Griffin, of No. 126 Smith street, Roxbury, visited the City Hall today in search of some agency which could award a medal for the act. John Sullivan of Eliot street, South End, who effected the rescue, has saved ten others from drowning in the same pond, she told City Hall officials; but was too modest to accept any recognition. As no one there was empowered to award medals, she was advised to get in touch with the Carnegie Foundation, or some similar institution.

4 TO GIVE SKIN FOR COMRADE

Springfield, Aug. 29.—Four comrades of Private William E. Davis of the 101st Motor Transport Company, who was critically burned last month at Camp Devens while extinguishing a gasoline fire, have volunteered to contribute two square feet of skin which is to be grafted to Davis' body in the hope of saving his life and preventing deformity. The men chosen were from a large number of volunteers among Davis' comrades. Davis' act in extinguishing the fire saved a number of trucks from destruction. Davis has been commended by Governor Cox.

"GIVES EVERYTHING", GETS TRAINS RUNNING

Roodhouse, Ill., Aug. 29. (By the Associated Press).—After promising trainmen who had quit work Friday he would "give them everything but the railroad," Vice-President A. P. Titus of the Chicago & Alton today had the satisfaction of seeing the first train in sixty hours leave Roodhouse, bearing two passengers to St. Louis.

TOTH'S RIVAL NEARLY ACROSS CHANNEL

Dover, Eng., Aug. 29.—Tiraboschi, the Italian swimmer, was only one mile and a half from Dover at 6 o'clock this afternoon in his swim across the channel. The tide had turned, however, and is running strongly against him. He set out at 11 o'clock Monday night in the swim that will be attempted by Charlie Toth of Boston.

under escort of Sheriff Earle Blake of Plymouth county. Attorney William H. Lewis accompanied them to the Court House and aided in the inspection of the court records.

CHEERFUL AS EVER.

Ponzi was as dapper and cheerful as ever. He enjoyed the little junket. After leaving the Court House he went to Attorney Lewis' office at No. 85 Water street.

He had asked Attorney-General Allen by letter last week for permission to inspect the records and was granted the privilege. But that there was some undercurrent as to Ponzi's future attitude, was apparent.

Ponzi, obviously, has become a big factor in developments the past few weeks.

Witnesses in Greene Case Are Missing

By BERT FORD.

Many witnesses in the H. V. Greene Company case, which is being probed by Attorney-General J. Weston Allen's Special Grand Jury, were today reported to be scurrying to cover.

Agents of the Attorney-General's department were unable to locate quite a few witnesses when they visited their homes and places of business with summonses.

Less than half of the fifty odd witnesses listed have been served to date. The process-servers have encountered difficulties, but will continue their hunt.

Samuel Gutman, a Boston business man.

WOMAN A WITNESS.

Miss Gertrude French, of Manomet avenue, Quincy. She was bookkeeper for the Commercial Finance Co., another subsidiary organization.

Charles A. H. Hancock, of No. 18 Coplet street, Brookline, who was the first witness called yesterday, was recalled today.

Among the witnesses examined this afternoon was Edward J. Connor of Portland, Me., who investigated the activities of the Greene Company in Maine. He submitted reports and documents to the jury.

Manuel Sidman and Thomas J. Crosby, who were connected with the Commercial Company, one of the Greene subsidiaries, and John Banas of Warren also testified.

The evidence was presented by Assistant Attorneys-General Hurwitz and Goldberg. Attorney-General Allen was absent.

State Detective Hale and Inspector John Mitchell, who are serving the summons, were unable to secure the appearance of Mrs. Emma Coombs of Prentis street, Cambridge, who is said to have lost heavily through investments in the H. V. Greene Co. She is reported to be in Venice.

The jury is in charge of Deputy Sheriff Robert M. McLeish. It is expected that the probe of the Greene Company will finish out the week.

SENSATIONS EXPECTED.

The inquiry into the snarled financial enterprises of the former soda mixer of Roxbury is to be most searching. Attorney General Allen is reported to have uncovered evidence of a sensational nature.

He and his assistants will pitch into every phase of the Greene Company's transactions, and they plan also to sift the Commercial and Mutual companies and other subsidiaries of the Greene Company which handled millions of depositors money.

A $500,000 transaction with the Massachusetts Motors, Inc., will also be probed, it was learned today.

Bootleggers Open Booze Curb Market in New York

New York, Aug. 29.—A new bootleggers' curb market, with price quotations, brokers and customers, has been opened on West 40th street.

The price list at this market, as quoted by a prohibition official was: Rye whiskey, $110; Bourbon, $110; imported English Scotch whiskey, $110; Canadian Scotch, $90; Canadian rye, $95; domestic Gordon gin, $45; Burnett's bonded gin, $88; imported Italian Vermouth, $45; imported French Vermouth, $65; Dubannet, $65, all case lots. The quality is not guaranteed.

NELSON PEABODY SAYS WIFE IS A BIGAMIST

New York, Aug. 29.—Nelson J. Peabody, advertising manager for the Atlantic Monthly Company, has brought suit for an annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Lola Sargent Peabody. He charges that Mrs. Peabody, also known as "Bernice Peabody," was married to James Sargent when he went through a marriage ceremony with her at South Bend, Ind., on October 5, 1919. Mrs. Peabody, who was served at the Vanderbilt, said she was "stunned" by the action.

8 HURT, THREE AUTOS ARE WRECKED

Salisbury, Aug. 29.—Two big automobiles raced on the highway between here and Newburyport.

It was very much like the race in which William M. Wood, Jr., was killed the other day.

Treated by physicians—Mr. and Mrs. George L. Hamilton of North Andover and Richard McEwen of New York.

Cars wrecked—An $18,000 imported automobile and two other cars.

It is a strange coincidence that a car which figured in this accident was the same type as the one in which young Wood was killed, and that the Hamiltons were intimate friends of the late son of the president of the American Woolen Company.

The imported car belonged to Harold G. Richards of Park avenue, New York. Mr. Richards is president of the State Bank of New York. It was driven by McEwen, Mr. Richards' chauffeur, who, after having his injuries treated, was arrested for reckless driving. His employer later bailed him out for $500.

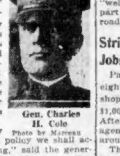
Albert Pool was driver of one of the other cars into which the Richards car crashed. It is not known who drove the third car that was wrecked. Several other automobiles escaped destruction in the smashup.

The police are looking for a new gray Locomobile, which is said to have been racing with the car chauffeured by McEwen, and which got away after the crash without a pause by the driver to inquire how much damage had been done.

According to Chief of Police Harold F. Compton of Salisbury, the imported car was going at least fifty miles an hour, and the Locomobile was driving even faster. Both of the other cars that were smashed into by the big machine driven by McEwen had made a complete stop and driven into the side of the road to avoid the racing autos, but even this did not avert the collision.

GENERAL COLE HAS LEGION REPORT READY

General Charles H. Cole, State commander of the American Legion, today transmitted his report for reading at the annual convention of the department in New Bedford this week. General Cole declared that the Legion "should stand for those in public life who stand for the ex-service men.



Gen. Charles H. Cole

"It is only by [illegible] following such a policy that we shall accomplish anything," said the general.

He also urged prosecution against false drivers for ex-service men, and predicted a turning point in the membership of the Legion.

ALL DAY STUNTS AT READVILLE, LABOR DAY

Labor Day will be observed in Hyde Park with a parade and field day, held under the auspices of Cecil W. Fogg Post, American Legion, at the Readville race track. The general committee, headed by Commander James Cunningham, has invited military, fraternal societies, industrial and manufacturing concerns to take part in the parade, which starts at 9 a.m. At the carnival in the afternoon there will be horse races, airplane stunts, aerial acrobats, balloon ascension, fireworks, band concerts and dancing. There will also be a midway.

BROTHERHOODS MAY GIVE 30 DAYS' NOTICE

Copyright, 1922, By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 29.—While both legislative and executive branches of the government are "marking time" in evolving plans to meet the industrial emergency, fresh troubles arose in the critical situation.

International News Service was informed that chiefs of the Big Four Brotherhoods will meet secretly in Cleveland within the next 48 hours to determine the advisability of serving thirty days' notice on the railroads of their intention of terminating present working agreements.

The working agreements between the brotherhoods and the railroads, mostly run from year to year or until one side gives thirty days' notice of intention to terminate.

Should the Cleveland conference decide to give notice, it would be served as of August 31, according to brotherhood leaders in Washington, and would amount to serving notice that new contracts would not be negotiated September 30, unless there was adjustment of grievances before that date.

MAKE FOUR POINTS.

The brotherhoods want assurance from the railroads on four points:

1—No reduction in wages.

2—Armed guards employed in the shopmen's strike to be confined to the shops.

3—No compromise, modification or new interpretation of seniority rights regardless of the outcome of the shopmen's strike.

4—Assurances that only safe equipment will be used, and unsafe rolling stock will be retired upon orders from inspectors.

The railway executives were acquainted in New York with the desires of the brotherhoods. A majority of them signified their willingness to meet them on conditions, it was learned today from labor sources.

"Powerful financial interests, centred in Wall street, are doing their damndest to ruin the country," said B. E. Wills, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. "Eventually the people are going to wake up to that fact. By their own admission many of the managers of the roads with whom we have been dealing in the past are merely for the shopmen are tools of big financial interests. They would not hold their jobs 15 minutes if they failed to carry out orders."

CHARGES WAR ON UNIONS.

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, the largest single shopcraft engaged in the strike, said today a "well defined scheme exists on the part of the interests to put the railroad unions out of business."

Strikers Lose New Jobs, Sue Railroad

Paeco, Wash., Aug. 29.—Twenty-eight striking Northern Pacific shopmen here are starting suits for $1,000 each against the railroad. After the strike the railroad management decided to build a fence around these shops.

The twenty-eight idle shopmen got jobs helping put up the fence. When the Northern Pacific found it out, the twenty-eight allege, in their lawsuit, they lost their new jobs. Boycott and blacklisting are charged.

More Bomb-Throwing in Middle West

Danville, Ill., Aug. 29.—A series of four explosions today shattered windows and demolished long strips of yard trackage in the shops of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois road here. It was believed that an attempt had been made to destroy the entire shops. One bomb had been planted near the main entrance of the yard.

Oswego, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Police are investigating an explosion of dynamite which tore off the porch and partially wrecked the home of Albert Johnson. Johnson's son, the police claimed, was for a time out on strike from the New York Central shops here, but recently returned to work. No one was injured, but members of the family were shaken up and thrown out of bed.

Carry Living Wage Dispute to Harding

Chicago, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—The Railroad Labor Board today denied the motion of W. Jett Lauck, labor statistician, that the board immediately define the principle of "a living wage" in the case of the maintenance of way employes who are seeking increased minimum rates of pay. At the request of E. F. Grable, president of the maintenance organization, the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow.

Mr. Grable announced he was telegraphing President Harding and Senator Cummins, one of the authors of the transportation act, asking them to present to Congress an amendment to the act which would make it mandatory on the Labor Board to "enunciate the principle of the living wage."

ARTISTRY ON 'CELLO WON HER FIANCE

MISS KATHRYN H. FALLON

Alston girl's romance had its inception when her Harvard College fiance heard her play the 'cello at a public concert in Cambridge.

GIRL BRIDE OF HARVARD MAN

A romance born of their mutual love of music leads to the announcement of the wedding of Miss Kathryn H. Fallon of Alston to Maurice Peb. Marshall of Clinton City, Ill., at St. Alden's, Brookline, on September 7 next.

Marshall, who is a senior at Harvard University, was attending a public concert in Cambridge a year ago. Miss Fallon was the 'cellist and so deep an impression did her playing make upon the young Westerner that he sought an introduction that he might congratulate her upon her playing.

An invitation to the Fallon home followed and with his first visit the courtship began. Their engagement was announced last April.

Miss Fallon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fallon of No. 15 Idlewild street. She is a graduate of Dorchester High School and the Conservatory of Music. Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The bride-to-be is at present engaged in concert work, which she will not give up until after Mr. Marshall is graduated in June next. They are to make their home on Idlewild street.

NORTHEASTERN PICKS FACULTY MEMBERS

Dean Carl S. Ell today announced the following appointments to the faculty of Northeastern University School of Engineering: Marius Hoglund, A. M., assistant professor of administrative engineering; Ernest H. Kingsley, B. S., assistant professor of electrical engineering; Milton J. Schlagenhauf, A. B., A. M., assistant professor of administrative engineering; Ralph E. Brown, instructor in mathematics; Edward S. Parsons, instructor in mathematics; Cameron S. Toole and Charles O. Baird, Jr., instructors in civil engineering.

STEEL AIR TRANSPORTS ORDERED BY ENGLAND

London, Aug. 29.—An improved aerial troop transport, with a hull of tubular steel large enought to accommodate twenty-five soldiers and their equipment, has been ordered by the Air Ministry under the recently announced £2,000,000 expansion scheme to provide 500 machines for home defense. Other orders call for planes constructed entirely of metal, weighing fifteen tons each; big multi-engined bombers, and single-seated metal fighters of great speed.

DODGE ESTATE SET AT $36,892,588

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 29.—The estate of the late John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, was valued at $36,892,588.41, in an inventory filed with the Probate Court here. The 50,000 shares of the Dodge Brothers Motor Car Company, held by Mr. Dodge, were appraised at $23,018,750; nearly $10,000,000 of the estate was in Liberty Bonds and $1,049,228 was in cash. The balance of the estate was in personal property. Mrs. Mathilda A. Dodge and Howard A. Bloomer are administrators.

READY TO SIGN COAL PEACE

Motor Company receives coal from an unexpected source. It will close all its manufacturing departments in the Detroit district, September 16. This statement was made at Mr. Ford's offices today in answer to a rumor in circulation in Detroit and elsewhere to the effect that a way had been found out of the company's fuel problems. It was reiterated that Mr. Ford "was not bluffin," and that "he would refuse to buy coal at exorbitant rates."

Washington, Aug. 29.—Present coal prices would only add $1.50 to the price of Ford cars, Secretary Hoover declared today, in expressing the hope the manufacturer would not find it necessary to close his plants. Mr. Hoover noted Mr. Ford considered $4.50 a ton a reasonable price for coal, and that the manufacturer could obtain it now at $4.50. Figuring on the basis of 38,000 tons of coal used a day, Mr. Hoover estimated that under present prices the increase per car would be about $1.50.

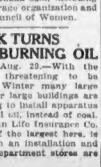
Hoover Says Roads Will Move All Coal This Winter

Washington, Aug. 29 (By International News Service).—Despite the deterioration of rolling stock resulting from the shopmen's strike and the possibility of other labor troubles, the railroads are expected to be able during the coming Winter to move all the coal that the country needs, Secretary of Commerce Hoover declared today.

During the next six weeks, he said, it will be necessary for the railroads to move 17,000,000 tons of coal a week.

BRITISH WOMEN TO CONFER ON SEX ACT

New York, Aug. 29.—Lady Rhondda, who is resting at Stonigton, Ct., before renewing her fight for a seat in the House of Lords, declared today in an interview with a representative of the National Women's Party that in October a party of women "propose to tell Lloyd George exactly where the Sex Disqualification Act has failed, and ask him what he means to do about it."



Lady Rhondda.

The party will include representatives of thirty or forty organizations, Lady Rhondda said, including the former suffrage organization and the National Council of Women.

NEW YORK TURNS TO BURNING OIL

New York, Aug. 29.—With the coal shortage threatening to be acute in mid Winter many large hotels and other large buildings are today arranging to install apparatus for burning fuel oil, instead of coal. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. building, one of the largest here, is completing such an installation and many of the department stores are following suit.

TO PROBE COAL PRICES IN BOSTON

An attempt to run down avaricious coal speculators who, taking advantage of the coal strike, have demanded, in some cases as much as $5 a ton for soft coal, in excess of the fair price fixed by the Hoover commission, was started today by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Hultman declared that although the price of coal at the mine last year was $2 a ton, fifty Hoover commissioners have this year increased the "fair price" to $4.50 a ton for soft coal.

"It is evident," he said, "that the profits made this year by the operators will more than offset any financial loss incurred by the loss of tonnage and time in the strike. The earnings of companies in the nonunion fields will be extremely large.

"The reputable dealers in the coal trade has not participated in this speculation. The present price situation is supplemented by the action of a minority of [illegible] trade, who do not recognize the ethics of good business. Due credit to the reputable coal man, such an investigation must be made as thorough as possible."

Hultman said the soft coal strike resulted in the loss of less than 3 per cent. of the normal production and that New England will be secure if the national governmental authorities will only cease their practice of holding soft coal consigned to New England markets.

74,000 WAR WIDOWS REWED IN ENGLAND

London, Aug. 29.—Of the 326,000 women in England who received pensions from the government because their husbands fell in the war, 74,000 have remarried. They have found new mates at the average of a thousand a month, according to the pensions ministry. Pensions cease on remarriage but a gratuity of one year's pension is allowed.

N. Y. LEGISLATURE TO PASS COAL BILL TODAY

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The New York Legislature, which has convened in extraordinary session at the call of Governor Miller, today will enact the administration's program creating a single headed fuel administration to deal with the coal strike shortage, and appropriate $10,000,000 to buy and sell coal by the State, if necessary.

that, also, is part of public education well worth the cost.

Some of the news is good. There's a new speed mark in the air. An Italian, Brakapapa, flew 209 miles in an hour. That's good.

And the income tax collections drop more than $100,000,000. That means happiness for some that have their money in corporations, leave it there to be reinvested, as they please, and thus escape the high tax.

France has lost a battleship that cost 40,000,000 francs. It will cost 200,000,000 francs to replace her. All will sympathize with France in her loss. But perhaps, if prices go high enough, war will dwindle. Truth is in the aged poker player's remark which always preceded a raise: "The way to discourage vice is to make it expensive."

Poland has one million extra geese to spare, and will ship them to other countries. That's good news; 1,000,000 extra geese are better than 1,000,000 extra soldiers. Poland is opening public libraries, which is even better news than the goose surplus.

Boddy, a negro, killed two detectives that arrested him, and will be electrocuted next Thursday. He has decided to allow two clergymen to console him, as he walks to the chair. At first he declined, saying, "I am not interested in religion." His change shows us that soon or late, white or colored, we realize that the future is a mystery worth thinking about. And that is a good thing.

John Bergen intervened with another man's wife. Faced by his accusers, including the wife, he said "All women are rotten." He has been found, since then, by the husband shot him. Such things have happened on and off upon this earth for 100,000 years or so, ever since man-shaped things first appeared to puzzle Mr. Bryan.

It seems that Bergen had run away from a wife and child, returning only for a little while to get exemption from war duty, hiding behind the wife and child. Crime is always deplorable, but, according to Bergen's widow, he will not be missed.

Stockholm, Sweden, has voted two to one against prohibition. More than half the women questioned in this country have voted against absolute prohibition also. It seems hard for the human race to make up its mind what it really wants.

BERGEN, UNARMED, DIDN'T HAVE A CHANCE FOR HIS LIFE, SAYS GIRL

TRAPPED, SHOT BY KLINE

Tells Story of Night Tragedy in Home of Moving Picture Manager

New York, Aug. 29 (International News Service).—Damaging information against George Kline, charged with the murder of John Bergen, an actor, was in the hands of Prosecuting Attorney A. C. Hart today for presentation to the Grand Jury, September 8.

According to stories told the prosecutor by Miss Alice Thornton, a pretty nineteen-year-old actress, and Joseph Iurlio, the latter figure to enter the tragedy, Kline did not propose a duel to avenge an alleged wrong to his wife by Bergen, but shot the actor down in cold blood.

Both Miss Thornton and Iurlio were in Kline's home in Edgewater, N. J., when the shooting took place Friday night.

Both Miss Thornton and Iurlio denied hearing anything indicating that a duel was fought or was to be fought. They said they believed Bergen did not have a pistol in his hand and that he did not have a chance for his life. They declared they heard Kline accuse Bergen of attacking his wife and that Bergen admitted the truth of the charge. Then, they said, Kline pointed a gun at Bergen and ordered him to go upstairs.

The pair disappeared up the stairway. Miss Thornton and Iurlio said, and a moment later they heard a shot. Almost immediately Bergen's body came bumping down the stairway.

Miss Thornton was invited to the Kline home to confront Bergen when Kline made his accusations.

Miss Thurnton lives with her grandmother in this city. Iurlio, who is also engaged in the moving picture industry, but not as an actor, lives in Grantwood, N. J. He had called upon Kline on the night of the tragedy to see about a contract.

Says Bergen Was a Mirorr Gazer

New York, Aug. 29.—"Jack Bergen, known as 'Red Jack,' had a way with him that was dangerous to women and has proven fatal to himself. I heard that shortly after he deserted my daughter he married again—a Swedish woman by the name of Olga."

This was the statement of John Dibble, father of the deserted wife of the Jack Bergen, motion picture actor who was slain in Edgewater, N. J., Friday night. Gibbin continued:

"Jack was a handsome looking chap, six foot tall and always well groomed. He was very careful about his clothes. I remember his standing in front of a mirror time and time again for twenty minutes at a stretch looking at himself. He also spent hours taking care of his finger nails.

"He was neat as neat as a pin, and there was something about him which made women love him.

"He fooled me that every woman he met was smitten with him."

Slain Army Officer

MAJ. ALEXANDER B. CRONKHITE.

Investigation of the mysterious death of the officer has been reopened.

NEW INQUIRY IN KILLING OF CRONKHITE

Providence, Aug. 29.—Further inquiry into the death of Major Alexander B. Cronkhite, son of Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite, at Camp Lewis, Washington, in 1918 was started by the Federal Government today when former United States Marshal John J. Richards was served with a subpoena to appear before the Federal Grand Jury at Tacoma, Wash., September 15. Former United States District Attorney Peter C. Cannon is also expected to go to Tacoma as a witness.

Roland R. Pothier of Central Falls and Captain Roland Rosenbluth of New York are the only two men who have been held in connection with the case. Over a year ago Attorney-General Daugherty ordered the probe stopped as far as Captain Rosenbluth and Sergeant Pothier were concerned, on the ground that the shooting took place on a part of the camp reservation to which the Federal government did not possess title.

Pothier, however, has never been released from $10,000 bail. He was first held on a charge of involuntary manslaughter for the Federal Grand Jury at Seattle, but it developed that the Grand Jury for the western district of Washington held session in Tacoma and new bail was given for his appearance there.

The major was killed on the range by mistake, some have said. One soldier said the killing was due to an enemy's desire for revenge.

SOUTH BOSTON BOOTLEGGERS FINED

John Cerullo of No. 99 P street, South Boston, was fined $100 and given three months in the House of Correction today in South Boston Court.

He and his brother, Martiano, were arrested charged with displaying and offering liquor for sale. As a defence the brothers argued that the search warrant upon which a raid was based was directed against Martiano as owner of the fruit store at the P street address, whereas as a matter of fact it is John who owns the place.

Despite the technicality, John was found guilty and Martiano not guilty. The court was informed that the brothers were notorious offenders along moonshine lines.

John Savachi, No. 110 Silver street, was fined $120 and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for selling and exposing liquor. James Meade of No. 27 Dorchester avenue was fined $50. Joseph Budrovits of No. 62 Silver street was fined $50. A still, three hogsheads of mash and a quantity of liquor were seized in his place. John Aronosky of Silver street was fined $50.

JOHNSON AND MOORE FIGHT FOR SENATE

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—A record registration and a sharply contested race for an important nomination combined today to indicate a heavy vote in California's primaries. The contest attracting chief interest is that between Hiram Johnson, incumbent, and C. C. Moore for the Republican nomination for Senator.

Upton Sinclair of Pasadena, writer, is unopposed for the Socialist senatorial nomination, and the Democrats also have a candidate in the field without opposition.

The races for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and for the lieutenancy on the same ticket also are receiving much interest. These were contested vigorously by Governor William D. Stephens and Friend W. Richardson, State treasurer, and C. C. Young, incumbent, and Joseph A. Ominger.

JAPANESE GET KEYS TO BOSTON

Seki Hofhino, Sr., and T. Atuso, Jr., president and director, respectively, of the Tokio Printing Company, of Tokio, Japan, visitors in Boston for the Graphic Arts Exhibition, today received the keys of the City of Boston from Mayor Curley as a token of their welcome officially.

Following their visit to City Hall, the Mayor made arrangements to have them tour the city tomorrow. They will plant a tree next Spring in commemoration of their visit to Boston this week. They will also attend the Readville horse races tomorrow. The visitors are the guests of S. H. Ordeb of the American Trading Company, and are being entertained by L. G. Morrill of the George H. Morrill Company.

41-2 INCHES OF RAIN IN LAST FOUR DAYS

The sun appeared today, marking the end of four days of heavy rain fall.

During four days a total of nearly 4.50 inches of rain fell. This amount exceeds the entire rainfall for the month of July. The total rainfall for the month of August is nearly six inches which, compared with the usual total of 3.91 inches, has not been surpassed in the past thirty-seven years, save in 1919.

Plymouth received a total precipitation since Saturday of 5.06 inches.

"MISS BOSTON" MAY BE ONE OF THESE

TWO MORE GIFTS FOR 'CHARMING GIRL' WINNER

Two more gifts have been added by Boston concerns for the winner of the Boston American's MOST CHARMING GIRL tournament, which closes Thursday at 3 p. m.

A handsome bouquet of the finest roses will be presented to "Miss Boston" by Dolansky & MacDonald, the widely known Winthrop square florists, when she boards the train next Monday at the South Station for her free week's visit to Atlantic City.

PERMANENT WAVE FREE.

A permanent wave will be contributed by the Merrin Beauty Salon, Room 303, No. 453 Washington street. The latter gift is valued at $30. If the "Queen of the Hub" does not desire a permanent wave she may have her hair arranged by the salon's experts in any other manner of her own selection.

Dr. R. Merrin, president of the company that conducts the salon, wants Boston's most winsome girl to be at her best while she is in Atlantic City next week at the expense of the Boston American. "The coiffure is very important in displaying a woman's charm," said Dr Merrin.

As the hour for ending the tournament nears many girls are sending in their photographs. No exceptions will be made. The "Charming Girl" editor gives fair warning that photographs of entrants MUST be in the Boston American office not later than 3 p. m. Thursday.

SOCIETY DANCER NOMINATED.

Among the latest entrants are Francesca Braggiotti, the talented 19-year-old Brookline society dancer. She was nominated for the week's free outing to America's marvelous watering place by Margaret Maguire, Mrs. Margaret Duffy of No. 763 Sea street, Hough's Neck, Quincy, who participated in the Boston American's annual swimming race in Charles River Basin last Saturday afternoon, is one of the athletic young women entered.

Still another entrant, whose friends regard her as unusually charming, is Miss Agatha R. Dowd, twenty years old, of No. 24 Arnold street, Roxbury. She was nominated for the trip by Mrs. L. B. Dowd.

CROWLEY SAVES BIG CROWD IN SQUARE

Patrolman Paul Crowley of the City Hall Avenue Station wears the laurels for this month's most vivid act of heroism, performed in Scollay square. Diving beneath an auto truck loaded with gasoline, where a lighted rag clung to the exhaust, which would have set fire to the gasoline and blown up Scollay square and hundreds of people, Officer Crowley quickly snatched the rag and stamped it out.

LIQUOR REPORT IS AGAINST KEEFE

Arthur Dehon Hill, acting as master in the petition of Cornelius Keefe to have restored to him a large quantity of pre-prohibition liquors, seized several months ago by Federal authorities, today filed a report with Judge Morton in the United States Court adverse to Keefe's petition. The seized liquor is valued at approximately $250,000.

Master Hill in his report found that the liquor was not in a private cellar, as there was evidence to show that at least one sale of liquor had been made on the premises.

There was no evidence to show that Keefe was aware of the sale, which was a pint of brandy to a government agent, but the master found that the burden of proof was upon Keefe, who failed to show that he had not authorized the sale.

LODGE SAYS 'PASS BONUS OVER VETO'

Senator Lodge, in a letter replying to Joseph Walker, his only opponent for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, today declared he would vote to pass the soldiers' bonus bill over President Harding's veto if necessary to secure justice for the war veterans.

While indicating that he personally favors light wines and beers, Senator Lodge also declared that he believed the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act should be given a full and fair trial and should be "thoroughly and honestly enforced."

THREW BUTT IN CELLULOID; 3 FIRES

Poof!!

The fire apparatus came quickly, but the celluloid was already reduced to a bit of white dust smelling of camphor. A truck which had backed up to take away the scraps, a telegraph pole and the front of Johannson's machine shops were all blazing, however, and the firemen had a bit of work to do to extinguish the three fires started by the explosion.

FINDS CITY WORK FOR 24 MORE VETS

Mayor Curley today announced he had placed on city payroll twenty-four more war veterans as laborers for work on the East Boston tunnel. Of the 1,600 men now employed in this work 1,300 are World War veterans.

Siam's King Weds Cousin; Father Had 300 Wives

And the bachelor King of Siam. What a lonesome old geezer I am, its time that I wed. King Majiravudh said. So he married the Princess Lavam.

Bangkok, Siam, Aug. 29. — The marriage of Maha Majiravudh, 42, King of Siam, to his cousin, the Princess Lakshi Lavam, has been announced.

King Maha was the first of his line to renounce his rights to a harem. Despite the fact that his father, King Chulalonkorn, had 300 wives, Maha was a confirmed bachelor until recently, when it was officially announced that until Maha had male issue the succession to the throne would pass presumptively to the line of the Queen Mother's son.

Maha, who succeeded to the throne of Siam in 1910, is styled King Rama VI, being the sixth sovereign of the present reigning line.

ARMED BOYS FALL IN POLICE HANDS

Three 15-year-old boys from Providence were arrested today by Patrolman Kelly of the Metropolitan police at the Leverett street yards of the Boston & Maine railroad in the West End. The boys said they were just strolling along, but Officer Kelly found a revolver on one. The other two ran away but were captured. One of them had an iron pipe and the other a dirk.

FIVE COLLINS MOURNERS SHOT

Belfast, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Republican irregulars fired upon a congregation of mourners yesterday as they were leaving a Westport (Mayo) church, having attended mass in honor of Michael Collins, says a message received today by the Athlone correspondent for the Belfast Telegraph.

The correspondent telegraphed his paper that the Athlone military headquarters was without official knowledge of the reported shooting, but the unofficial message stated that five civilians were killed and several others wounded.

The Republicans fired at the worshippers from across an adjacent river, the message said, and men, women and children fled in all directions as volley after volley was poured in their direction. Troops vigorously replied to the firing and a stiff engagement ensued after the arrival of reinforcements, but the Republicans were finally driven from the town.

HARVARD MAN IS KILLED IN CLIMB

Mexico City, Aug. 29. — Wright McCormick, Harvard '15 graduate,

was killed by a 30-foot fall while climbing Mt. Ajusco. At the time of the accident McCormick, who was teaching at the University of Texas, was with several other professors of the institution, who later recovered his body.

McCormick was twenty-nine years old and was the son of James McCormick of Washington, D. C., former editor of the Geological Survey. He has been a professor at the University of Texas since the war, and a few weeks ago went into Mexico with the intention of spending a year there studying the lives and customs of the people.

While at Harvard from 1911 to 1915 he was prominent in dramatics, a member of the Harvard Dramatic Club, and was editor of the Harvard Monthly Magazine. He served with the 17th Division for thirteen months in France.

FIFTY POISONED AT MARSHFIELD FAIR BANQUET

Marshfield, Aug. 29.—Food eaten at the celebration banquet which closed the Marshfield Fair here last week is believed responsible for the poisoning of at least fifty persons, it was learned today.

Despite efforts to keep the affair hushed up, news of it leaked out. Dr. Frederick King of Marshfield admitted he had treated some fifteen or twenty of the banqueters for ptomaine poisoning, but he would not say what he believed had caused their illness.

The affair is complicated by a statement from D. O. Strange, who has been one of the directors of the fair for the past ten years. Mr. Strange declared that the illness of a large number of banqueters is an annual feature of the fair.

Governor Cox, Attorney-General Allen, Senator Lodge, Lieut. Gov. Fuller and others were present at the banquet. So far as can be learned, none of the dignitaries were made ill.

Among those who were taken sick shortly after the banquet were:

Miss Lena Baker, local school teacher; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ryder; Charles Bates; Marion Frisbie; Hedda Strange, Brockton school teacher; Mr. and Mrs. E. Cudworth, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hager, (Mr. Hager is president of the Marshfield Agricultural Association, which conducts the fair); Harold Vester; Warren Baker; S. M. Lamson, treasurer of the association, and Mrs. Lamson.

All of these, with the exception of Miss Strange, live in Marshfield. They told a Boston American reporter that they believe a lobster salad which was served is responsible for their illness.

REPORT PRINCE LEOPOLD ENGAGED

Brussels, Aug. 29.—Unofficial announcement of the engagement of Prince Leopold, heir to the Belgian throne, to Princess Yolanda of Italy has been made here. It is expected that the engagement will be officially announced when the Princess accompanies the King and Queen of Italy on their visit to Brussels in October, to return the visit which the Belgian monarchs made to Rome a year ago.

ACT TO FORCE SPRINKLERS IN APARTMENTS

Drastic action will be taken by the city against 500 to 600 property owners who have been violating the law regarding the installation of automatic sprinklers in apartment houses.

Corporation Counsel E. Mark Sullivan told Mayor Curley that although during the Peters administration a bill in equity was brought which made it obligatory to install sprinklers in apartment houses, and the court then gave the landlords ten days' grace, "nothing has been done in the majority of these cases."

The city law department will bring action, first in cases of apartment houses with ten or more suites. Owners will be told that unless work be started immediately they will be enjoined from further maintenance of the building.

"I feel," said Mr. Sullivan, "if a fire should break out in a building without sprinklers a great many lives would be needlessly placed in danger."

Mayor Curley, in reply to the letter, said: "I approve drastic action for the protection of life and property."

HAINES RALLIES ARE HALTED

Mayor Benjamin F. Haines of Medford today announced the temporary cessation of his campaign for the Republican nomination for District Attorney of Middlesex County because of the death of his father-in-law, William L. Ely of New Bedford. Mr. Ely, who was seventy-nine, died in Portland, Me. The funeral will be Wednesday morning from Mayor Haines' home in Medford.

DRUNKEN AUTOIST FINED $50 AND $5

Harry J. Davidson, of No. 118 Norfolk street, Cambridge, charged with operating a car while under the influence of liquor was fined $50 and $5 additional for drunkenness by Judge Hardy in Roxbury Court. Mounted Officer Francis R. Sullivan of the Back Bay station testified that the car was going more than forty miles an hour. Edward F. Sweeney, of No. 24 Flagg street, Cambridge, owner of the car, who sat on the rear seat during the speed ride, charged with allowing the driver to operate the car while he was in that condition was on hand, sending word that he would appear tomorrow.

BIG ANTI-DRY VOTE IN SWEDISH TOWNS

London, Aug. 29.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Stockholm says the towns generally voted against prohibition, Stockholm having given 139,122 noes against 23,025 ayes, and Gothenburg 54,847 noes against 19,668 ayes. The country districts, however, mostly gave majorities in favor of prohibition.

The dispatch adds that it is evident prohibition will not become a fact as Parliament and the government would oppose a dry measure only if the referendum had shown a big majority for prohibition.

50 GUESTS FLEE NIAGARA BLAZE

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Fifty persons were driven from their night clothing when flames spread through the Sender Hotel at Riverway facing the State Reservation early today. Most of the guests dressed in the street, though a number of pajama-clad men assisted the firemen. Timely awakening of one of the guests who smelled smoke permitted all of the people in the place ample time to get out of the building, though many personal effects, and all the furniture in the place were destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $25,000.

BELIEVE HUGHES PARTY IN STORM

Washington, Aug. 29.—The Shipping Board steamer Pan-America, carrying Secretary of State Hughes and other members of the Brazilian exposition commission to Rio de Janerio has not been heard from for twenty-four hours. It was stated at the Navy Department today. Officials here believe the Pan American has encountered a storm which was reported over the Caribbean Sea, rendering the vessel's wireless ineffective.

GEN. EDWARD HAS DECIDED TO RETIRE

Major-General C. R. Edwards will accede to the request that he retire from the army before his time limit which would be January, 1923. The letter of Secretary of War Weeks was written in three other major-generals and two brigadier generals whose names have not yet been made known by the War Department.

General Edwards lays before receiving the request thought it would be wise for the major-generals over sixty-two years of age to retire and make room for some of the younger men.

FRANTIC EFFORT TO SAVE 48 TRAPPED IN COAST GOLD MINE

Jackson, Cal., Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Held in the grim grip of despair as hour follows hour in their vigil, families and fellow workers of the forty-eight gold miners imprisoned since midnight Sunday nearly a mile below the earth's surface in the Argonaut mine, today clung to the shred of hope that the men still live, although the most optimistic hope was to reach the men within eighteen hours.

Dawn today found that tense group still waiting.

During the night, men attempting to mine "skips" to ride down through the flaming levels were dragged back to the surface, their faces blackened. They came to gasp eagerly for fresh air and to tell of the hopelessness of the trip below.

Flames which started yesterday morning at the 4,000-foot level today had worked up above the 2,400-foot level. A half mile below the earth's surface, working frantically with drills and picks to break through a concrete barrier which long has sealed the shaft of the Argonaut from the shaft of a neighboring mine, the Kennedy, other miners sought to make a possible channel of escape for their trapped comrades. It was a slim hope.

One miner at the mouth of the pit said: "The boys can't get through that wall in a month."

Superintendent Virilio Gabarini said that workers expected to establish communication with the miners, if any still are alive, within eighteen hours. Until their bodies are brought out, the hope that some of the forty-eight still live will endure.

A portion of the main shaft below the 2,700-foot level had caved in, and workmen could remain at the 2,400-foot level to fight the flames only a few minutes at a time. The trapped men are believed to be on the 4,500-foot level and lower levels.

Bacardi Is Dead

Don Emilioo Bacardi, known all over the world from the famous rum which bears his name, died at San Diego, Cuba, yesterday. Bacardi was seventy-eight years old. He was the first Mayor on the Island of Cuba after American took possession.

"Mother Why Not Try The Newer Form Of Iron

CALLED NUXATED IRON

And Be Strong and Welland Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable all the Time and Looking So Haggard and Old?

"The doctor gave some to Susie Smith's mother and she was worse off than you are and now she looks just fine." There can be no healthy, beautiful rosy-cheeked women without iron. Good physicians have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more of the newer form of iron—Nuxated Iron—for flabby nerves, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks, and strength and vitality from their bodies. This newer form of iron, and the iron in your blood and like the iron in certain green vegetables, is highly recommended to thousands who want quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not realize it is responsible for their condition. Without iron, you can't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly-looking. Just like a plant trying to grow in soil deficient in iron, you need more iron in your blood—women with plenty of iron in their blood are strong, healthy, rosy cheeked women, full of life, vim and vitality. You can get Nuxated Iron from Boughton & Dutton, Eastern Drug Co., D. F. Keyes & S. Pierce, Armstrong Co., or any druggist under the absolute guarantee that if you do not find it as represented you can have your money back.

AS A WATCHMAKER, I'M A GOOD ROOSHUN DANCER

"Tick-Tock, Dickery Dock, the mouse ran up the clock, the clock struck one, the etc"—Well this clock will never strike one when I get through with it, but will go on strike for a long, long time.

By THE FLAPPER.

Nobody has more troubles than a watchmaker. More things can go wrong on the inside of a watch than on the inside of a City Hall. I mended a lotta watches yesterday, an' my sakes, I nearly went crazy.

You snap open the rear trapdoor to see what's ailing the fool thing an' the works uncoil an' hang you on the becker. It's very risky work. I knew a mailman once who blew out a best front tooth with his whistle, an' he quit an' took up stenography, because it wasn't so hazardous. He shoulda tried watchmaking.

Old Pa Whiffen's been mending watches for so long that he can't see anymore without a jeweler's eye-thing. He's got one eye trained for close-ups, and now it won't work on long shots. He looks awful funny walking down the street with half an' opera glass on his eye—but he says it's as necessary as his store teeth, now.

STARTS ON A RELIC.

"If you're a watch-maker," Pa Whiffen said to me when I sat in at his shop on Bromfield street, "I'm a Rooshun dancer."

"Oh, I can fix watches," I told him. "I've had an alarum clock apart lots of times. It's easy."

So Pa gave me an old egg shaped repeater to start on. As a watch it certainly was the goat's goatee. It had an engraving of Niagara Falls on one side an' a train goin' over a trestle on the other side. Besides that there was a complete set of initials scrolled all over the train side.

"Whassa matter of it?" I asked Pa.

"Asthma," he said, shortly.

I tried to pry it open to peer inside but I only broke my favorite finger nail. I tried a hair-pin next. Notta chance. It had been sealed since Abraham Lincoln was a youth. Finally I tried an axe an' got it open.

UNEARTHS MOSQUITO.

It had more springs inside than a bed. They all unwound and twined themselves around my neck. Besides the springs there were a bunch of little wheels of assorted sizes. And inside the most inner little wheel I founda mosquito.

"No wonder the darn thing wouldn't go," I said, brightly. "The engineer was dead."

"See here, young woman," said Pa Whiffen, severely, "that was an uncommon bum joke when I was a young fella jus' learnin' the trade. An' forty year more or less of airin hasn't helped it none. One more like that and out you go."

Pa an' I both worked in silence after that. I took all the insides of the watch, then 'em up for grabs an' put 'em back in their case. It was like tryin' to unscramble an egg. Funny thing, I could only get about half the machinery back in an' even then I hadda step on the watch to get it shut. There was enough left over to make an ingersol.

"Is this a riddle?"

"Yup."

"Then I give up."

"Waterbury," I said.

"Why?"

"Because there're so many watches," I said. "By gollies, Pa, the old egg watch is going."

"An' so are you," he snapped.

$600,000 READY FOR MUSCLE SHOALS WORK

Washington, Aug. 29.—Funds totalling $600,000 have been authorized by President Harding to enable army engineers to begin construction work on the Wilson dam, at Muscle Shoals, Ala., on an extensive scale, pending use of the 7,500,000 appropriation by Congress, which becomes available October 1.

CAPPER PLEADS SOLDIER BONUS IN THE SENATE

Washington, Aug. 29—Announcing his support of the soldiers' bonus as "nothing more than a square deal for the boys who did the fighting," Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, told the Senate today that "the war profiteers and the peace profiteers owe a bonus to the soldiers of the World War."

"There is no better guarantee against militarism than to require the men who profit out of the war to pay for it," he said. "Those who remained at home made enough here in the United States to enable us to pay many times over the debt we owe to the men who fought our battles. Wall street wants to pay it with a sales tax which would be paid largely by the farmers, the laboring people and others in the form of a tax on food and clothing and other necessities."

"Profiteering during the war produced one American millionaire for every three American soldiers killed in France. I would like to see the government recover the hundreds of millions of dollars stolen from the treasury by the crooks and grafters who profiteered off the government in war contracts and then use that money to pay the soldiers' bonus."

Senator Capper said the most powerful influence against the bonus was the United States Chamber of Commerce, which, he charged, had taken a referendum of its membership not upon the measure before Congress, but upon a measure of its own "concocting."

BEECHAM'S Sweeten the Stomach PILLS

MAY MOVE FOR INDICTMENT IN 'JURY-FIXING'

Assistant District Attorney Maurice Caro, who is investigating the report that large sums of money were used in an attempt to "fix" the jury in the Scarpone murder trial, in behalf of Joseph Sibbell, who was acquitted, will probably present evidence to the Grand Jury at its sitting on Sept. 6 or 7, which will tend to show that an attempt was made to corrupt the jury.

Mr. Caro will confer with District Attorney O'Brien and will be advised to ask for indictment against the alleged jury fixers.

Police inspectors today co-operated with Mr. Caro in his attempt to clear up the matter. All members of the jury and several alleged "go-betweens" have been interviewed.

A mass of evidence has been obtained, but much of it is contradictory. If District Attorney O'Brien consents to his program Mr. Caro will present it all to the Grand Jury and let that body decide.

$210,000 FERRY JOB AWARDED BY MAYOR

A contract of $210,000 for two sets of machinery for the South Ferry drops was awarded today by Mayor Curley to the J. Edward Ogden Company of New York. The massive chimney to be supplied is called Ferry Bridge Gallows Frame, similar to that used at the ferry slips of the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York.

The money will come from a special $1,000,000 bond issue authorized by the Legislature in 1920 for special ferry service and of which $252,000 remains.

Kid McCoy Balked on Ninth Venture in Matrimony

Los Angeles, Aug. 29.—Norman Selby, better known as "Kid McCoy," the ex-pugilist, applied for a license to marry Mrs. Jacqueline McDowell, a Baltimore widow. "Cupid" Higgins, in charge of the bureau, refused to issue the license because the prospective bride was not along. The "Kid" explained that she was in Baltimore and would not start West until he had secured the license. Selby was manifestly cast down at this figurative black cat crossing his path at the very outset of his ninth excursion into matrimony.

U. S. TO GET ALL OF DEBT, SAYS PREMIER

London, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—Prime Minister Lloyd George today, in conversation with Colonel E. M. House, who breakfasted with the Premier, reiterated Great Britain's intention to discharge her present debt to the United States to the last farthing, Colonel House told the Associated Press.

Colonel House said the Premier begged him to tell those at home that Great Britain was not seeking financial assistance from the United States, but desired very earnestly her continued moral support.

Can You Answer This Movie Puzzle?

On the Movie Screen above are the names of 10 Popular Movie Stars, rearranged topsy-turvy. The operator played a joke on the audience and you'll admit it was a good one.

To solve the puzzle, and puzzle it is, rearrange the peculiar sentences on the screen so as to correctly spell each star's name. For example, No. 10 is Charlie Chaplin. You know him. If you can name all 10 Stars correctly you can win the $1,000 or an Oakland Touring Car.

You most likely know the names of the most popular Stars, but just to refresh your mind we are mentioning a few of them:—Constance Talmadge, Otis Skinner, Buster Keaton, Anita Stewart, Charles Ray, Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Helen Chadwick, Thomas Meighan, Pearl White, Warner Oland, Beverly Bayne, Ralph Ince, Wallace Reid and Dorothy Dalton.

185 "POINTS" WINS FIRST PRIZE

For each name you arrange correctly you will receive 10 "Points" toward the Oakland Touring Car or the $1,000 in cash, or you will receive 100 "Points" if you arrange all 10 names correctly. You can gain 60 more "Points" by Qualifying your answer. That is, by proving that you have boosted the Big Magazine, FRUIT, GARDEN AND HOME to five people. The final 25 "Points" will be awarded by 3 Judges, whose decision will be absolutely fair and is to be taken as final and without question, to the person making up the largest list of correct words from the name of the 10th Movie Actor listed on the screen above—CHARLIE CHAPLIN. It's easy! Can you make out 10-20-30 words like, are-lie-car-pie-hall, etc.? Send in your list of words right away with the names of the 10 Movie Stars. RULES—Number each word, and in making up your list, don't use proper names, abbreviations, prefixes and suffixes, or obsolete and archaic words. Webster's Dictionary will be used as Final Authority. Use each letter only as many times as it appears. For example: There are 2 a's, therefore "a" may be used 2 times if necessary in forming a word. The answer gaining 185 "Points" (which is the maximum), will win the Oakland or the $1,000. In case of a tie, all tieing contestants will receive a prize identically the same as the prize tied for. Send in your answer TODAY. As soon as it is received, we will send you a FREE circular telling you all about the Big New Magazine, FRUIT, GARDEN AND HOME, to assist you in qualifying.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY

You will not be asked to subscribe to FRUIT, GARDEN AND HOME, nor to spend a penny in order to win. Just write your answer to the Puzzle on one side of the sheet of paper and PRINT your name and address on the upper right hand corner. Send in your list of words with your solution before October 10th, the Final Day. Do your best and you can win. Answer the Puzzle NOW.

TRAFFIC SQUAD SHIFT DENIED BY WILSON

No shake up in the traffic squad of the Boston police force is contemplated, according to Police Commissioner Wilson, who emphatically denied rumors that had been current about a change in that division.

"There is no better traffic officer in the East than Captain Hoppe of the traffic squad," said the commissioner, effectively spiking the report that Lieutenant Laffey was due for a promotion and that the only promotion possible would be into Captain Hoppe's place.

The traffic situation in Boston has been developed by Captain Hoppe, and he can have his position as long as he wants it, while Mr. Wilson is commissioner.

RADIO WAVES TO 'REPLACE GUNS'

London, Aug. 29.—Wireless waves may replace guns in the next "world war" if the present progress of radio science continues, according to opinion expressed today by Professor A. M. Low, British scientist and inventor of the British wireless controlled airplane and torpedo.

"The old-fashioned battle with infantry, cavalry and artillery fighting with the bayonet, the sabre and gunpowder is a thing of the past. The weapons of the future are the airplane, the wireless and the poison gas wave. Aerial electrical battles may turn the tide of future wars," Professor Low says.

"Our plots in the future will be armed with electrical impulse guns, firing enough bullets in one second to make a "miss almost impossible," said Professor Low. "Another development will enable us to see the invaders or attackers by wireless, even on the darkest night.

"More important still, in considering the question of aerial defense is the series of experiments now being conducted with a view to using wireless as a definite weapon against a possible enemy.

"There is another way in which scientists are probing to solve the great problem of aerial defence. "That is by damaging the hostile planes by local heat. Parts of every airplane, especially the rigging, are still susceptible to fierce heat.

"Once we have learned how to induce local currents of such magnitude that the temperature of conducting parts of the airplane can be raised, we shall see the invading machines crumpling up like so many pieces of cardboard."

HARRIMAN WEDS AT 19, FORGETS TO TELL OF IT

New York, Aug. 29.—The marriage of John Harriman, nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, to Miss Alice A. Laidley, also nineteen, daughter of Mrs. William H. Laidley of Chicago at Fort Chester, N. Y., on August 12, was made public today. The belated announcement was made by Howard Chandler Christy, illustrator, who has been acting as Miss Laidley's guardian during her mother's absence in Europe.

While in New York Mrs. Harriman, who is a vivacious brunette, has been studying music and dancing. Her husband, who tutored for Princeton University, has decided not to go to college in the Fall but will enter the real estate business with his uncle, Frank Carley, Jr., in Florida.

Mr. Harriman said his marriage met with the approval of his parents and that the announcement had been withheld simply because they had forgotten it. He has two brothers, Oliver O. and J. Borden Harriman.

WEEK-END PARTY RESCUED FROM BAR

Bridgeport, Ct., Aug. 29.—Eleven engaged couples in a party of thirty young men and women, rescued from the yacht Ella May of New Haven, strangled on a sandbar off Stratford Point Light, passed through this city en route to their homes in New Haven, Wallingford and Hartford.

Driven out of its course by the fury of the week-end storm, the yacht was discovered at daybreak with its seams opening from the rough pounding of the seas. Capt. George Sherman of New Haven, in charge of the Ella May, stated he was headed for New Haven when the storm came up, but heavy rain put the engine out of commission.

MOTHER REVERSES ORDER, SAYS GIRL TOO GOOD FOR HER SON

THEN BOY NEARLY IS SHOT

Mimp In House Looks Like Pailble Murder, and Police Hr In; Now Boy is Gone

Apparently she was too good for him.

Gerge F. Wagner, twenty-two, cecled to his mother, Mrs. Cathris Fagner, who runs a rooming hous at No. 35 Upton street, South End, nat he was about to take a wih

She quired who it was. He told her the name of the girl—a lass of Lowi.

"SHE TOO GOOD."

"She too good for you," Mrs. Wine said. "I won't have it."

"That's the way you feel about it, wil elope," her son retorted. He rsed for the door. Mrs. Wagner bien by the arm. He yanid away and started for the door. Mrs. Wagner screamed as he ran from the house.

This innocent scene was the prelude to the spectacle which confronted Patrolmen Donovan and Mosher, who happened to pass the house just as George ran out.

Nothing less than attempted murder, the policemen figured, and they gave chase. George's earnestness in trying to get away convinced them they were due to make an important capture. Street after street the chase continued. After several shots had been fired George consented to stop.

A few minutes after he had been taken to the police station Mrs. Wagner showed up and told her story.

"Even if he is my son I must admit the girl is far too good for him," Mrs. Wagner said. "I won't tell you her name, but I know her, and she's a pure, sweet girl—one of the best I ever met, and I won't stand to see my son marry her."

GONE TO NEW YORK.

George was released from custody. A reporter called at the Wagner home.

"Where's George?"

"He's just taken a train for New York. I know, because I bought him the ticket. The girl was too good for him."

Would there be nuptials in New York?

Decidedly not.

"She's too good for him," said Mrs. Wagner.

BRYAN TO STUMP FOR HITCHCOCK, AN ENEMY

Washington, Aug. 29.—William Jennings Bryan announced today he would "take the stump" for his former political enemy, Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, who is seeking re-election to the Senate from Nebraska. Bryan's endorsement of Hitchcock officially ends the oldest feud within the Democratic party, and one which a decade ago threatened to destroy the party.

No Perfumes When Maxim Attends Beauty Contest

Atlantic City, Aug. 29.—Hudson Maxim, the inventor, who is to be Father Neptune in the pageant here in connection with the contest for the title of the country's most beautiful bathing girl, has succeeded in having perfumes banned.

"While experimenting with smokeless powders and other explosive materials," the inventor wrote, "I was obliged to work in an atmosphere charged with vapors of aceton; acetate of amyl, benzol and other volatile solvents of guncotton.

"So offensive have perfumes become to me, that when I give a reception at my house, I send all the invited guests a printed slip requesting them to refrain from wearing any perfume."

Mrs. Nevil Ford Enters List of Talented Society Musicians, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

Mrs. George Von L. Meyer, Jr.
Mrs. Nevil Ford.

SOME time ago the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Nevil Ford learned with great regret that they are to make their home in New Jersey. The very lovely voice of Mrs. Ford—she was Louise McAllister—has been heard at many a function given within the circles of the smart set, and I had no hesitation in putting her name on the list of Boston's six most talented society musicians.

If you are in the smart set and especially clever at wooing the Muses, just leave it to the Vincent Club girls. They'll find you out, and then, presto! will vanish the days of your idleness forever. For the Vincent Club must have—and does get—a good deal of talent for the annual shows given by the club.

And that's exactly what happened to the former Louise McAllister, daughter of Mrs. Hall McAllister. No sooner had she made her bow to society, when the eagle eyes of the Vincent Club's various "talent discoverers" found her out just as quickly as any Mr. Ziegfeld could have done it. With the result that the talented young woman sat down and wrote "Hello Frisco," that entertaining comedy produced by the Vincent Club in 1916.

The scene of "Hello Frisco" was laid in San Francisco's Chinatown, and the stage was gorgeously set with the most sumptuous of Oriental trappings. The then Miss McAllister played the part of Juanita Sharon and sang several clever and altogether pleasing songs.

DO you remember back in 1917 when there was so much fuss because members of the Vincent Club announced that for the first time in the history of the club, male persons might be permitted to witness their annual show—and it turned out that said male persons evidently didn't appreciate the honor bestowed upon them because very few of them attended the performances? Well, anyway, that was the year the Vincentites gave "Pleasure Island," for which the former Miss McAllister, together with Mrs. Jimmie Minot, Jr. (Miriam Sears), adapted the music.

Two years ago, when the Vincent Club enriched the coffers of the Vincent Memorial Hospital by the presentation of "Satni," written by clever little Mary Atkinson, Mrs. Ford played one of the leading parts.

But the artistic renderings of this accomplished musician have by no means been restricted to the Vincent Club shows. In fact, there have been very few musical events occupying the smart set's attention to which Mrs. Ford has not generously contributed. Boston regrets indeed to lose her, but unless I am greatly mistaken, she will still be a frequent visitor to the Hub. Her mother's home is at No. 386 Commonwealth avenue.

THE comings and goings of the Boylston A. Beals of Beacon street and the North Shore are always noted with good deal of interest by their host of Hub connections.

This summer none of the family came to America, but remained for the greater portion of their time in London, where Mr. Beal is the commercial attache of the American embassy. I hear now that Mrs. Beal, who was formerly Miss Elizabeth S. Grew, is leaving the English capital tomorrow for Scotland, and that she plans to sail for America on September 19.

Last Fall Mrs. Grew and her popular young daughter, Betty Beal, came over here to be present at the marriage of their niece and cousin, Miss Katherine Crosby, to young Bobbie Burnett Choate, their wedding at St. John's Church in Beverly Farms being one of the smartest in the long procession of brilliant Autumn ceremonials.

MRS. NATHANIEL THAYER has just been made chairman of the Woman's Household Fuel Committee of Massachusetts. Which, of course, may not be as terrific as it sounds, but this prominent Boston matron, whose Winter residence is on Fairfield street, has so many things to attend to that it seems well nigh impossible for her to undertake another.

However, Mrs. Thayer is having a glorious Summer at Newport, where she is one of the most charming hostesses. She is also a member of the board of governors at the Newport Casino, which is undeniably the centre of practically all the sporting events at the famous Rhode Island watering place.

SLICK THIEVES TAKE $10,000 GEMS AT RYE

Rye Beach, N. H., Aug. 29.—Residents of the fashionable summer colony here are terror-stricken as depredations are committed in their boudoirs nightly by a gang of "phantom burglars."

Harry N. Matthews of Waban, Mass., and A. B. Swift of Chicago, whose homes were looted of more than $10,000 in gems and cash, are the latest victims.

While twelve persons, including children and servants, were asleep in the Mathews home, every sleeping room was visited, women's handbags and jewelry boxes opened, and jewelry amounting to $5,000 was stolen.

ONE LAWRENCE MILL TO RAISE WORKERS' PAY

Lawrence, Aug 29.—An official of the Selden Worsted Mill, which employs about 250 men, and which has not cut wages since the war, told a Boston American representative here that his concern would increase its employes' wages twenty per cent.

Even before this increase was announced, the Selden company was paying higher wages than any other textile concern here. In fact, the new raise is a raise over the "war peak" wages, and is taken as a sign of business in the textile industry.

Lawrence, Aug. 29.—Signs of dissatisfaction in the ranks of the textile strikers who accepted the wage restoration offer of local mills were evident today, following the failure of the mills to reopen with their full working strength.

The union men accepted the offers on the verbal promise of mill heads that there would be no discrimination against them. When the Acadia Mills resumed operation on the basis of pre-strike wages, however, many applicants for work, who had gone out on strike from that mill, could not obtain jobs.

Similar conditions prevailed at the Monomac and Katama Mills. All of these mills are running today with about 50 per cent. of their normal force at work.

As a result, Organizer Francis Gorman of the United Textile Workers has protested the alleged discrimination. A number of the strikers are already accusing the mill operators of bad faith.

William Pedler, agent of the Acadia Mill, declared, however, that the mill has no intention of discriminating against any of its old workers, and that all difficulties will be ironed out in a week or so. He pointed out that it is impossible for the mill to resume work at full strength on ever-night notice, but says that the entire force will be back at work inside of two weeks and that the strikers will find the mill is keeping its faith.

It is generally believed here that the difficulties will, as Pedler predicts, disappear shortly, and that the victory won by the strikers will dissolve the atmosphere of distrust which now prevails.

Following a mass meeting on the Common, several hundred members of the One Big Union, which is still firm against the acceptance of the mills' offers, marched to the mill district and formed the customary picket lines. The police were on hand in force, however, and no trouble resulted.

DIRIGIBLE AND PLANE TO RACE ACROSS U. S.

San Diego, Aug. 29.—The spectacle of a race across the country between an army dirigible and a reconstructed De Havilland airplane will be witnessed on September 5 and 6, according to plans outlined in a letter received by Lieutenant John McCullough, adjutant of Rockwell Field, today.

The letter came from Lieutenant James Dpolittle, army flier, who recently started to make a one-stop flight from Pablo Beach, near Jacksonville, Fla., to San Diego, Cal., but met with an accident. He plans now to take wing from Pablo Beach at 9:30 p. m., September 5. On the same day, according to plans, the big dirigible C-2 will leave Langley Field, Hampton Roads, for a flight to Rose Field, Arcadia, near Los Angeles.

GARY WRECKERS CONFESS NEW TRAIN PLOT

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Five men were charged with murder today, accused of wrecking the "million dollar express," on the Michigan Central, near Gary, Ind., August 20, when two of the train crew were killed.

Five others were held in connection with the wreck investigation and at least two more who are known were sought, according to the police.

Confessions obtained from some of the prisoners not only solved the wreck of the express, but bared a plot to wreck the twentieth century limited, crack new York-Chicago train, near Elkhart, Ind., the police said.

The five who face murder charges are: Joseph Papourvitch, Charles Usells, John Petrowski, Albino Alessio and James Prohetsh. All were said to be striking shopmen.

Usells, Petrowski and Papourvitch were said to have confessed the wreck plot. The men are Russians, and before the strike were employed in New York Central shops. They named Alessio in their confessions, and he admitted knowledge of the plot, according to the police, but maintained that Usells, Petrowski and Papourvitch were responsible for the wreck.

Taken to the scene of the wreck, Usells, the police said, described the work of the wreckers in pulling spikes and loosening rails.

According to the story of Usells' confession, he and his companions had attended a meeting of strikers and radicals in Chicago the day before they Gary wreck.

"TANGERINE" SCORES BIG HIT AT SHUBERT

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

"Tangerine" is as luscious as the fruit it's named after.

From Julia Sanderson down to the humblest chorus girl,—although, who ever saw an humble chorus girl,—Carle Carlton, the producer of this New York Casino sensation, has picked them with regard to their delectability, and in a "girl" show, that is the prime essential.

"Tangerine" is styled a musical comedy satire by Guy Bolton, Philip Bartholomae, and Lawrence Langner. The lyrics were written by Howard Johnston and the score by Carlo-Sanders. A large part of the score is already familiar to lovers of dance music, for "Tangerine" is what is called a "dancing show."

LALOR CROWNED "KING."

One of the most amazing features of "Tangerine" is the fact that the chief comedy role has been played by no less than six different comedians, who include Jack Hazzard, Richard Carl, Herbert Corthell and Frank Lalor, who now holds the fort. They say that just before coming to Boston Julia Sanderson held a celebration in honor of Frank Lalor, and crowned him "King Tangerine, the Sixth and Last."

It's one of those spontaneously hilarious roles, a king of South Sea Island, who has a lot of beautiful ladies working for him.

The general idea of "Tangerine" is that a wife is hard to get rid of, in fact, almost impossible. In the first act we find three merry gentlemen who have gone to jail rather than pay alimony. One of these is Frank Crumit, one of the sweetest singers now in musical comedy, and a good comedian. Despite the fact that these creatures have been jailed by their wives, they still love them, proving that true love defies bolts and bars, or something like that.

HAS EIGHT WIVES.

From the Ludlow Street Jail to one of the South Sea Islands is only ten minutes' intermission in a musical comedy. Thus we see our friends and their ex-wives landing upon one of those interesting islands, where they find a shipwrecked sailor named Joe Perkins in soft circumstances. Joe has been elected King and has eight wives and any quantity of the ladies King Solomon had to wail on him. The theory of the island is that women should do all the work.

When the divorced wives land on the island and have to go to work to support their former husbands—ah—well, it's one of those things that could only happen in a musical comedy.

Warmly Welcomed

From a critical standpoint the show starts like a house afire and continues at that pace until late in the last act, when the fire kind of goes out. But it's a darn good show. Julia Sanderson is the sweet and personable prima donna we have been loving since "The Arcadians." Beulah Berson as Nos, the cannibal belle, sings and looks lovely. Lalor is irresistibly funny in his quaint, dry way. The California Four, one of those male quartets, disguised as as cannibal policemen, go very big. You will enjoy looking at Gloria Dawn, Rebekah Caudle and Lora Sonderson. The Shubert Theatre never held a bigger or more enthusiastic audience.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Wallace Reid scored an artistic triumph in his latest Paramount picture, "The Dictator," which was shown with considerable success at Gordon's Scollay Square Olympia Theatre last night. The scenes of the photoplay are located in Latin-America and deal with a revolution in which Mr. Reid, as the hero, takes an active and not inglorious part.

NORUMBEGA PARK—The baby show which opens on Thursday for three days is the most important event of the week at Norumbega Park. Already there have been sufficient entries received to assure the success of the various events, which, in addition to competition in various classes for babies, include a decorated baby coach parade, a white dress ramble for school girls and the crowning of the King and Queen of Babyland. Several of the little ones who won prizes at the Home Beautiful baby show will strive for further honors.

GAYETY OFFERS NOVELTY IN BURLESQUE

Smiles, laughs, tuneful songs and graceful dances are a few of the outstanding features of James E. Cooper's big music-girl revue, "Keep Smiling," which was presented for the first time this week at the Gayety Theatre yesterday.

"Keep Smiling" is in two big acts and nine scenes, including a prologue. William K. Wells, creator of many burlesque hits, has both written and staged the piece. The musical score is the work of Melville Morris and Hal Dyson, noted composers. Raymond B. Perez, a genius of stage dancing, originated the terpsichorean numbers. There are seventeen musical numbers of the jingly, singable variety, and they are presented by a cast and chorus of real singers.

Costuming plays an important part in the staging of "Keep Smiling." The chorus especially has been dressed in a series of bizarre and colorful gowns and unique costumes.

James E. Cooper is known for the spectacular nature of his productions, and this show surpasses any of his other efforts in the gorgeousness of its scenes.

BOSTON THEATRE — William Farnum, starring in "Moonshine Valley," the feature at Boston Theatre, is a story of gold prospecting and the guiding influence of a child. Finlay and Hill; Welch, Mealy and Montrose; Gardner's Maniacs; Kennedy and Kramer, and Harry Bentell make up a fine vaudeville bill. Ben Turpin's latest comedy, "Home-Made Movies," is also a feature of the program.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS—There were enthusiastic audiences yesterday at the Somerville Theatre to witness the screenings of "Your Best Friend," featuring Vera Gordon. The picture is of compelling appeal. Chief in support of Miss Gordon appears Harry Benham, a well-known figure of stage and screen life. For the remainder of the week Mr. Benham will appear on the screen, but next week he makes his personal bow as the new leading man of the Somerville Players.

Nantasket Boats

Nantasket boats are this week carrying some of the greatest crowds of the entire Summer. The last week in August brought the tide of vacationists to its crest and Nantasket seems to be the popular resort for them.

"THE VALLEY OF SILENT MEN"
Cosmopolitan Production

Marotta	Alma Rubens
Kent	Lew Cody
Jacques	J. W. Johnston
The Stranger	Mario Majeroni
Kedsty	George Nash
O'Connor	Joseph King

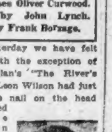
Story by James Oliver Curwood.
Scenario by John Lynch.
Directed by Frank Borzage.

Up to yesterday we have felt that with the exception of Marshall Neilan's "The River's End," Harry Leon Wilson had just about hit the nail on the head when he poked fun at the "great, open spaces, out there where men are men." That was up to yesterday. Then we saw "The Valley of Silent Men," playing at Loew's Orpheum this week. This film is one of the most thrilling we have seen in some time. An interesting story, well played, has been laid in the Canadian Rockies—and the Rockies themselves form the background. The scenery is nothing short of gorgeous.



Alma Rubens.

Curwood's stories have nearly always scored. They may be at times rather obvious, but their effect is telling, and what more can be said of a story? "The Valley of Silent Men" is several notches above the best of the stories of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. The fact that it is out of the ordinary once the famous murder has been committed is greatly in its favor.

One can be pretty certain that when Frank Borzage takes his megaphone in hand, something worth while will result. It has in this case. He has directed the story to advantage, bringing out the picturesque and dramatic possibilities. Miss Rubens, one of the most beautiful actresses on the screen today, handles the role of the Canadian girl very capably, making the most of the emotional moments. Lew Cody has given up his villain role for the time being and is the hero of the occasion. He is acceptable as the sacrificing officer. Johnston, Majeroni, Nash and Nash deserve mention for their playing of their respective roles.

The scenery, as I have already said, is remarkably beautiful. The photography, too, deserves a word. This is unusually clear and well lighted.

STATE THEATRE—A bill the quality of which fairly dazzles the audiences by its magnificence, was presented to patrons of Loew's State Theatre yesterday. Heading this remarkable program was "Her Gilded Cage," starring Gloria Swanson. Miss Swanson is known as the best gowned star of the screen, and as a French dancer who becomes the rage she has abundant opportunities for the display of rich toilets, all of which were warmly admired, especially by the ladies present. David Powell, as the leading man, showed remarkable ability in his difficult role. The companion picture was another masterpiece and showed the eminent and likeable Frank Mayo in an unusually interesting picture called "Caught Bluffing."

MODERN AND BEACON—Melodrama in excelsior fills the screen at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week, through the presentation of a picturing of Lincoln J. Carter's famous thriller, "The Fast Mail." The companion picture forms a pleasantly relieving contrast, in which Charles Ray provides abundant humor in his newest offering, "The Deuce of Spades." There have been melodramas providing thrills galore, each holding its place of eminence with theatregoers, but there have been few indeed to embrace in the course of its running plot so many exciting incidents as Mr. Carter injected into "The Fast Mail."

Mr. Ray is seen at his best as a young man from Boston who sets up in business in a Western mining town and conquers the many difficulties that face him. A new Ben Turpin comedy, "Home-made Movies," and news pictures completed the bill.

PARK THEATRE—Doris May in a lively comedy of city life, "Up and At 'Em," and a melodrama of the Canadian Rockies, "The Fighting Guide," forms the bill at the Park Theatre this week.

Miss May is in her most fetching mood as a gay little madcap, whose aptitude for mischief leads her into adventures that divert from humor and threaten serious results. However, her resourceful nature leads her to skirt the danger successfully and all ends happily, though after many a lively twist in its story, with a heart romance finding conclusion.

"The Fighting Guide" is a melodrama depicting the adventures of a young man who sets out to guide a visiting English nobleman through the Canadian mountain country. By a turn of events the servant becomes master and in the dramatic incidence following asserts his right to be leader. It is a quick-moving dramatic plot that constantly arrests interest and satisfies with its happy termination.

"BLOOD AND SAND"—The real screen sensation of the season, long and patiently awaited by the theatre-going public, is at last to be shown in Boston. Due to the remarkable sagacity of Marcus Loew, whose constant endeavor is to please the many patrons of his beautiful theatres, "Blood and Sand," with Rodolph Valentino as the star, will be shown at both of Mr. Loew's theatres, the State and the Orpheum, during all of next week.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQ.—That Betty Compson has scored another success was evident at the first showing last night of her newest Paramount feature, "The Bonded Woman," at Gordon's Central Square Theatre. This is a charming sea story, adding another clean-cut, emotional characterization to the shining record of this popular young star.

GORDON'S STRAND—Norma Talmadge is in a fine dramatic vehicle as the magnetic screen attraction at Gordon's Strand Theatre this week. The production in which she appears is "Smilin' Through," screen version of Allen Langdon Martin's famous play that gained new laurels for Jane Cowl on the speaking stage.

"A CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM"
Fox Production.

Col. Lewis	Roger Lytton
Betty Lewis	Peggy Shaw
Barbara Draper
	Florence Billings
Draper	Ernest Hilliard
Bob Hale	Robert Agnew
Mrs. Tyler	Adelaide Prince
Ken Tyler	Niles Welch
Hannah	Marie Reichardt

Story by "Mr. X." Scenario by Paul Sloane. Directed by Searle Dawley.

The season at Tremont Temple opened yesterday with the Fox special, "A Child Shall Lead Them." This tells a story of how much a child means in the family. There are varied and frequent allusions to "little angels that bring sunshine into the home," and there are a number of orphan asylum scenes. It is, in a word, "sob stuff," and the audience sniffs wholeheartedly throughout.

Colonel Lewis has brought up his two daughters with a hand of iron. The elder, Barbara, is married and spends her time winning blue ribbons with her pedigreed horses and Boston terriers, to my mind a decidedly interesting occupation. Her husband, however, wishes she would turn her thoughts to "a little child"—his own words—instead. That's one angle. He later leaves home, she adopts two orphans, and he returns home.

The other daughter, Betty, has run away and married impecunious Bob Hale against her ambitious father's wishes. The marriage is kept secret. Bob is killed in an automobile accident and Lewis makes Betty keep the marriage a secret. They go abroad, where her baby is born and dies. Later she marries her neighbor, Ken Taylor, and there are several reunions in all quarters. Her baby is not, after all, dead, and all households fade out in a happy state.

There are some particularly happy scenes in which a group of dog actors shine. The "grown-up dogs" are more than clever, they have understanding, while the pups bring in comic effect. There are a number of children's scenes designed to twist the heart-strings.

The important thing about the production is that it has brought to light a remarkably beautiful player, Peggy Shaw, who is, I think, a newcomer to films. At times she resembles Mabel Ballin, but is rather better looking. Too, she shows decided latent talent. She should go far.

Plays That Remain

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—The second and last week of the engagement of Walter Scanlan, the Irish singing actor and comedian, in "Maytime in Erin," began at the Plymouth Theatre last evening.

TREMONT THEATRE—Geo. M. Cohan's Comedians in Mr. Cohan's new production, "Little Nellie Kelly," began the fifth week at the Tremont Theatre last evening to customary crowded house.

SELWYN THEATRE—The sensational all-colored musical hit "Shuffle Along" began the fifth capacity week of its Boston engagement at the Selwyn Theatre last evening.

SPLENDID BILL FOR KEITH'S PATRONS

Joseph E. Howard, composer of popular songs that have lived through the years, heads the best bill that has been presented at B. F. Keith's Theatre for many a moon. The old time composer of "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" is ably assisted by Ethelyn Clark, pretty and clever little singer. In these days of modern jazz—tempered with Oriental strains—Howard's act and songs was a real delight.

J. Rosamond Johnson and his five colored song and dance artists shared the honor. Boston forgot it's be dignified and gave way to really boisterous applause. The majority of the audience, it seemed, would have been content to spend the entire evening being entertained by the very clever negroes.

Burt Gordon and Gene Ford, as usual, were a scream. Hermine Shone, with Jack La Rodi and Company, were pleasing in a skit entitled "Window Shopping." Eric Zarde, pianist, was a decided treat for lovers of good music.

Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace furnished a round of laughter in some clever songs and dances, mingling with jokes. Will and Gladys Ahern were unusually clever in songs, dances, jokes and lariat spinning. Jean and White, in dances: Class, Manning and Class, rope walkers, and the usual news reel made up the remainder of a well balanced program.

DORCHESTER PARK SHOW TOMORROW

Norfolk street playground, Dorchester, and not Codman square, as previously announced, has been selected for the Boston Park Show, which will be given tomorrow night. The program will commence at 8 o'clock and will include community singing, motion pictures on life saving and street accident prevention and comedy films. The attention of the people will be called to the importance of keeping streets, alleys and back yards clean as part of the campaign inaugurated by the Health Commissioner. The show scheduled to be held at Rogers Park, Brighton, last night, was postponed until Friday evening on account of the rain.

CHALONER TO STAGE HIS ASYLUM PLAY

Newport, R. I., Aug. 29—John Armstrong Chaloner of Richmond, Va., who has been at the Merchinger-King cottage here for a few days, will go to New York in January to begin rehearsals of his new play entitled "Robbed Under Law," which portrays some of his own experiences in institutions for the insane in New York State and other institutions in the Bloomingdale Asylum in March, 1897.

Coming Events

COLONIAL THEATRE—Seats for the resumed engagement of Ziegfeld's "Sally," which reopens the Colonial next Monday evening, will go on sale next Thursday.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"The Nest," an absorbing and powerful play of the home and rated as one of the great dramatic offerings of the year, will be sent by William A. Brady to the Plymouth Theatre next week, its initial Boston performance being given on Monday afternoon.

WILBUR THEATRE—The advance demand for seats for "The Bat," which opens its engagement at the Wilbur Theatre with a Labor Day matinee, Monday next, started off very briskly yesterday, when the sale opened at the box office. Acclaimed "the world's greatest mystery play," with a record run in New York city, it comes here with the New York cast and production, and there is every indication that the curiosity on the part of Boston theatre-goers to see it is every bit as strong as it was in New York.

Other Theatres

WALDRON'S CASINO—Enthusiastic capacity audiences yesterday greeted the re-opening of Waldron's Casino. The theatre presented a spick and span appearance in its new coat of paint and decorations. And the program was a feast of high grade entertainment, a three-in-one continuous performance such as became popular at Waldron's Casino last year. The burlesque part of the program was furnished by Lewis Talbot's big "Wine, Woman and Song" company. Several celebrated vaudeville artists contributed unique specialties, and the headline photo play was a powerful screen dramatization of James Oliver Curwood's story of the Canadian North, "I Am the Law."

Bert Bertrand is ably supported by a notable cast, including Harry S. Levan, Jean Schuler, Charles Cole, James McInerny, Gertrude Ralston, Vi Penny, and Dotty Bates. Other honors at Norumbega.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Not satisfied with having won the title of King of Comedy, Mack Bennett has set out to conquer the field of comedy drama. "The Crossroads of New York," released through Associated First National Pictures, Inc., with 12 well-known players in the cast, opened its run yesterday at Gordon's Olympia Theatre. The plot concerns Michael Flint, who, like young Lochinvar, comes out of the West to make his fortune in the big city of the East. Unlike Lochinvar, however, young Michael has no steed, so instead of joining the mounted police he seeks a position with the street cleaning department. His wealthy uncle becomes enmeshed with a Broadway vampire and flees to distant parts from which rumors of his untimely death make Michael the possessor of a large fortune.

COMEDY OPENS ST. JAMES THEATRE

All the old favorites and several new members of the Boston Stock Company were given a rousing reception when the St. James Theatre opened its second season with "Nothing But the Truth," last night.

William Collier made one of his biggest hits in "Nothing But the Truth," and Walter Gilbert follows in Mr. Collier's footsteps.

Anna Layng, the new character woman, portrays the "mother" well.

The third newcomer is Miss Lois May, who has forsaken the silver sheet for the spoken drama. Edward Darney, also a new member of the company, shared the honors. Viola Roach, Lucille Adams, Mark Kent, Ralph Remley, Houston Richards and Hal Chase repeated former successes.

NOTED BRITISH EDUCATOR DEAD

Geneva, Aug. 29 (By the Associated Press).—The body of Sophie Bryant, aged British educator, was found on the rocks along a short cut between the villages of Montanvbert and Chamonix, in the Alpine region by mushroom hunters today.

She apparently had become lost and had taken off her shoes to bathe her feet, but there was no indication of the cause of death.

Sophie Bryant was 72 years old and the widow of Dr. William Bryant of Plymouth. She was known in England as an educational authority, and was at one time a member of the committative committee of the Board of Education. She also was the author of various educational, philosophical and scientific works.

AGED QUAKER TO WED BACK BAY ARTIST

Boston is to witness a quaint Quaker wedding when Joseph B. Swan, 74 years old, of No. 3 Derne street, West End, marries Miss Elizabeth A. Aldrich, an artist, 55 years old. Miss Aldrich resides at No. 20 Evans Way, Back Bay.

Mr. Swan, who is a Quaker, refused to swear to any of the statements in the marriage intentions which he filed at City Hall. He offered to affirm the intention of marriage, however, and officials at the registrar's office granted the license.

8 Mahogany Pieces $435

And Brisbane knows!

Above sketch but faintly suggests the pleasing effect of combining two tones of wood in this distinguished suite.

You must see the individual pieces to realize how strikingly the lighter tone in top drawers of dresser and chiffonier, and in footboard of bed, contrasts with the darker body tone.

Handles of oxydized brass. Chair and bench upholstered in blue

Priced separately: Full size bed, $55; bureau, $95; chiffonier, $85; toilet glass, $25; vanity case, $135; night stand, $13.50; chair, $16.50; bench, $13.50. Twin beds may be had if preferred.

A Suite everyone in need of bedroom furniture should see. Keen buyers will at once sense the extra value.

HUB COTTON MEN LOSE FORTUNE WHEN GERMANY CAN'T PAY

KOMFY AND KARESSING TO THE Skin! The fashion experts have designed some Fall lingerie beautiful and wearable enough to suit the most fastidious woman. Here is one model, fashioned of flesh crepe jersey, that is sure to win Milady's approval. You'll find the latest fashions on this page first.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN'S EXTRAORDInary Grand Jury Begins Investigation of Blue Sky Law Violations! The first case called is that of the H. V. Greene Company and associate enterprises, including the Commercial and Mutual companies and the Massachusetts Motors Company. The latter were exposed by the Boston American. The sessions are being held on the fourth floor of the Pemberton square courthouse.

ALL GIRLS ARE CHARMING, BUT to Wear These You Must be THE Charming Girl! Miss Winifred Wilson of Allston wearing coat coat and hat that will be awarded to winner of Boston American tournament. Coat donated by I. J. Fox, No. 41 Winter street, and hat by George L. Griffin & Son, No. 370 Washington street.

PAINTING THE LILY! ANOTHER one of our society girls innoculated with the stage germ is pretty Isabel T. Pell of Boston, Newport and Westbury, who is here caught applying the rouge stick for appearance in "Fools Errant," coming here from New York soon.

IF BABE RUTH COULDN'T, FRANK BACON CAN! Judge Landis (at right) can humble baseball players, but actors are another fry of fish. The diamond chieftain was defeated at golf by Frank Bacon at the Midlothian Golf Club, Chicago. Here he is glowering at his rival. Remember that wheeze about the "peas in the pod?" —well, they're it.

WIDOW OF SLAIN MOVIE ACTOR Refuses to View His Body! "He died as he had lived" is the simple comment made by Mrs. May Cribben Bergen, whose husband was killed by George Kline, a film director, at Edgewater, N. J. Kline accuses the actor of betraying his wife. With Mrs. Bergen (above) is her five-year-old daughter Margaret. The Bergen couple had lived apart for several years.

BOSTON EXPORTERS LOSE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS WHEN GERMANY CAN'T Pay for Goods in Gold! Photo shows the unloading of 3,000 bales of cotton from the City of Flint at Mystic wharf. The cotton was sent to the city of Hamburg several months ago, but the consignees were unable to pay for it in gold and the decline in the mark made it impossible to dispose of the product. It was then brought back. Inset shows Germany's new three-mark coin.

GET "IN THE SWIM" IF You Like to Swim! Send your prettiest bathing photograph to the Sea Beauty Editor, Boston American. It may win you a prize. Today's lucky winner is Mrs. H. F. Blake of No. 1407 Commonwealth avenue, Allston. A check for $5 will be mailed to her. Be sure that a negative accompanies every snapshot. Incidentally, contrants are again warned that we agree to send no pictures back until the end of the tournament. Please do not ask for your picture back before then!

SPEAKING OF TYPE, EVERYBODY ADMIRES the Brunette! Miss Doris Otto is "making up." No, Oscar, not the kind you're thinking of—it's printer's makeup. The little device she holds in her hand, strangely enough, is a "stick." Another printing term. It's a fascinating game—go to the Graphic Arts Exposition and see for yourself.

"SALLIES" CLOSE GREATEST CAMP MEETING IN HISTORY OF ORGANIZAtion at Old Orchard, Me.! Meetings, which drew thousands, lasted for ten days. Hundreds of Bostonians attended. Among the Salvation Army leaders present were Brig. Gen. William C. Crawford of Boston, Mrs. Crawford, Col. S. L. Brengle, D. D., Mrs. William A. McIntyre and Col. McIntyre, provincial officier for New England. Cadet Rhoda Farrell (shown in circle) was the pretty cornetist of the lassies' band.

GEAR-DROPPING INVENTION TO REVOLUtionize Flying! Lawrence B. Sperry, young wizard of the air, showing how, by the simple pull of a lever, he released his "take off" and landing gear while 2,000 feet in the air. The army is considering the adoption of the invention. Dropping gear cuts wind resistance and enables flier to land in small and rough places.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Not all of the men you meet in the West radiate the spirit of the West. Some, not to say most, do.

Harry W. Child, owner of one of the largest ranches in the world, and boss of Yellowstone Park's hotels and automobile fleet, does.

A millionaire today, he started life in Montana as poor as the rest of us. He first made his mark in the mining game. Then he became a large scale farmer. On the land he owns today the whole of Manhattan Island could be set down and enough space would be left to conduct agricultural operations on a big scale. He buys and sells cattle by the thousand, grain by the train load.

He is constantly staking young fellows ambitious to launch out as farmers and cattle raisers, and, as a consequence, he has what he calls "partners" by the score.

Some of this breezy, energetic Westerner's comments will interest you. Thus:

"In the West, if he has an honest face, red blood, hard muscles and courage to go to it, a man can always get backing without a dollar of security. Almost any bank, as well as many individuals, will have enough confidence to lend an able-bodied, aggressive fellow a thousand dollars to give him a start.

"But if you go to Wall street, some of them down there want you to hock everything tangible you have and your soul as well, before they lend you twenty dollars. That's one difference between the kind of people we have in the West and the kind you have in the East, in Wall street.

"Out here in God's country, among the glorious mountains and the vast plains, we place more importance upon men than we do upon money. We may not make any great mark in the world, but, by heavens, we don't let the world make its mark on us! We live and let live. We haven't operas and theatres and midnight frolics and great white ways to supply us with 'pleasure.' But we get more fun out of life, more joy out of human companionship and sociability than can be got out of your New York shows and show places and cabarets and the like.

"When I go East, they are usually scrubbing the floors when I get downstairs in my hotel in the morning, and there is nobody on hand to serve breakfast. You city people use the wrong end of the day. You can do more work, and you can get more fun out of doing it, in sundight than in electric light.

"Here's one funny thing I have noticed. I know lots of your 'Napoleons of finance' and your 'captains of industry' in the East; men who are supposed to be so darned busy that they haven't a moment to spare when at their daily grind. But I notice that whenever I pop my nose through the door of the office of any of these fellows they push back their chairs and seem eager for a good long chin-chin. They seem mighty glad to pull their noses away from the grindstone for a while. And the funny thing is that, when they make up their minds to do it, they seem to have all the time in the world for it.

"Easterners seem to have a code of ethics which is entirely different from our code out West. We try to win our wealth from the soil, from mines, and from oil wells. We would rather help a fellow to make money than scheme to get away from him any money he may have made. I am not a preacher and I'm not your goody-goody sort, but I hope I am something of a real sportsman and I swear I can't see how a lot of men in business can get any fun out of trying to snatch the fish another man has hooked, or grab the game another fellow has brought down."

* * *

Isn't that good, red-blooded talk for you?

(Copyright, 1922, by B. C. Forbes.)

Point or more losses showed in Jewel Tea, Coca-Cola and Columbia Gas.

STEEL HEADS WORK ON PRICE SCHEDULE

Chicago heads of steel companies are working on details of proposed schedules advancing steel prices, but claim they are not sufficiently advanced to justify announcement at the moment.

Wall St. Gossip

PRINCE & WHITELY—"Continue to purchase stocks on all recessions favoring especially the rails, equipments and public utilities."

LIVINGSTON & CO.—"Neither current earnings nor future prospects encourage buying of general industrial list."

GOODBODY & CO.—"Irregularity of Monday is likely to continue with more recessions than advances."

NEW HAVEN is now in period of largest gross earnings and July operating revenues of $10,76,218 were the best for any month of the year to date. In view of rate reduction, it is significant gross in July increased $429,331 over July, 1921.

GULF STATES STEEL profits for quarter ending next month are estimated at annual equivalent of about $12 a share on common. In first half of 1922 net profits were at rate of above $2 a share on common. Year's average ought to be around $8.

NORTHERN PACIFIC is to issue $4,500,000 equipment trusts. Rumor that the amount was to be $44,000,000 caused setback of more than a point in stock one day last week.

WESTERN MARYLAND is said to be under accumulation by interests connected with another big railroad.

AMERICAN TOBACCO was picked up in wise quarters, in belief it was behind other tobacco shares in advance the new high showed. Earnings are said to assure continuance of $12 dividend.

STROMBERG CARBURETOR earnings have been improving substantially and next dividend may be at annual rate of $6 a share.

ABOUT $3,300,000 in gold bars is on the Olympic, due today. Most of it is believed to be for J. P. Morgan & Co.'s account.

GROSS EARNINGS for July of the Minneapolis & St. Louis were $1,190,448.

AFTER REACHING a new 1922 low mark, crude rubber is firmer, with 14 cents asked and 13¾ cents bid for spot smoked sheets.

STEEL COMPANY heads in Chicago are working on details of the proposed schedule for advancing steel prices.

TEXAS CO. has organized subsidiary in Colorado to handle its production in Northwest, with $1,000,000 stock, known as Texas Products Co.

MEXICAN PETE'S monthly gross earnings are now set at around $7,000,000. Monthly net is placed around $3,000,000.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO is being accumulated by interests who declare it has earned $5 a share on common in year's first half. In all of 1921 it earned $6.20 a share and disbursed $3.

SHOE SALES ARE SLIGHTLY LOWER

Lower prices are the cause of a 2 per cent. loss in sales in July over the same month in 1921 in the shoe trade, the Monthly Review of Credit and Business Conditions, out this week, says. However, chain store systems show a gain of 12.9 per cent. this July over last and business expansion has caused the opening of many branches, the report states.

Lowell Financing

Lowell will receive bids until 11 a. m. Thursday, August 31, for temporary loan of $200,000, dated August 31, maturing December 8 1922.

NECKWEAR MEN SEE IMPROVING TRADE

Improving sales and indigations for a good Fall business are reported by the Associated Men's Neckwear Industries. "During the past year or two the public has not been buying men's wearing apparel to any large extent," says the report. "But indications are good that such buying will now pick up steadily."

AM. TELEPHONE SETS NEW HIGH FOR 1922

American Telephone rights to new stock were active and strong in Boston. At 3⅝ they were at their top since listing.

American Telephone stock itself was at a new high for 1922, up 2⅛ at 125½, which should be added fraction representing value of rights per share. At this point the big telephone issue is a convincing case of recovery against the decline which followed faulty interpretation of its new stock issue.

Massachusetts Gas, up 5½ at 87⅛, sold at a new year's high, no doubt aided in part by the Storrow advice to householders to burn gas until Winter in view of coal shortage. The preferred was also at a 1922, up 1 at 71.

Point or more gains were made by Mohawk, Boston & Maine A, Boston Elevated 2d preferred and Warren Bros. Mexican Investment sagged 2⅛ at 16½. Boston Elevated 1st preferred a point, and International Cement 1⅛ at their lowest.

New Haven took on a point at 31⅝. United Fruit was up 2⅜ at 153¼. Calumet & Hecla aded 2 at 298 and Mergenthaler 1⅝ at 155½.

Pacific Mills chipped off 1 at 159 and American Agricultural Chemical preferred 1 at 70. National Leather sagged ⅝ to 7⅝.

ARLINGTON LOAN IS BOUGHT IN BOSTON

Arlington has awarded a temporary loan of $50,000, dated Aug. 31, 1922, maturing June 14, 1923, to Old Colony Trust Co. at 3.45 per cent. discount. Other bidders were: Grafton & Co. at 3.48 per cent.; S. N. Bond & Co. at 3.49 per cent plus $2.75 premium; Commonwealth Trust Co. at 3.50 per cent.; F. S. Moseley & Co. at 3.59 per cent.

GOOD RECOVERY IN FRENCH BOND SALES

Substantial recoveries from Monday's heaviness were made by French governmental and municipal issues in the New York bond market. Lyons and Marseilles 6s each advanced 2½ points, while gains of 1 to 1⅝ points were made by French 7½s, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s, Bordeaux 6s, Seine 7s and Franco-American 7s. Liberty issues were slightly lower.

Wholesale Trade Shows Gains in Past Month

Gains in the wholesale trade for July are recorded in figures just made public by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The July sales were 2.3 per cent. better than those of the same month in 1921.

"The gain reflects greater confidence of retail merchants in placing Fall orders and the somewhat higher prices which some of the commodities now command," the bank says.

Replies to Investors

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Address questions, with stamped and self-addressed envelope to Frank H. McLeon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

American Telephone.

To W. B. W., Canterbury street—If you had waited for a rally before selling your American Telephone, instead of letting it go at the bottom price on the recession, I doubt if you would have sold. The stock may go lower yet, though not on present outlook, but it will still yield above 7 per cent. on present prices and it will still appeal to most people as an investment of the first class.

I see no reason why it should not continue its 9 per cent. dividend indefinitely, as the new financing will be taken care of by new business for which it is designed to provide.

Beech-Nut Packing Company.

To F. S. S., Hull—The balance sheet of Beech-Nut Packing Company, as of June 30, 1922, shows as follows:

Assets—Cash, $1,034,160; government securities, $204,155; accounts and notes receivable, $733,667; inventories, $3,244,898; due from affiliated corporations, $34,707; investments, $1,516,566; fixed assets, $2,807,210; deferred charges, $128,166; total, $9,703,879.

Liabilities—Preferred stock, $1,124,500; common stock ($20 par), $5,000,000; accounts and notes payable, $284,156; Federal tax and other accruals, $204,063; short-term notes, $725,000; deferred credit, $15,358; employes' insurance and other reserves, $122,590; surplus, $2,213,173; total, $9,703,879.

DEMAND BIG FOR LISTED BONDS FROM BANKS

By MONROE ROBERTS.

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

Trading in listed bonds has been of very large proportions both for the reason that banks and fiduciary institutions have been compelled to resort to the investment market in order to employ their surplus funds and that new issues of prime securities have been materially reduced since the latter part of July.

There has been an unusually large turnover of government issues, with domestic Liberty bonds predominating, though French, English, Canadian and South American government bonds have made up a large proportion of the total.

Interest is also largely centred upon the financing plans of a number of the important railroad systems. The new adjustment bonds of the International & Great Northern Railroad have been the most active of the low-priced railroad bonds, heavy sales in the new adjustment 6 per cent. and 5 per cent. certificates featuring the market at the present time.

This road operates to the extent of 1,000 miles in Texas and has recently filed with the Texas State Railroad Commission an application to issue $20,000,000 first mortgage bonds and $17,000,000 income bonds. The total funded debt of the company when reorganized will be about $27,000,000. The new company proposes to take over property of a number of other small roads in Texas, making them subsidiaries.

During the balance of the Federal government's fiscal year the Treasury Department will be compelled to take care of a little over $4,000,000

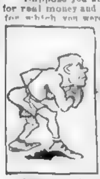
KAYO SHOULD DECIDE BOUT AT BROOKLYN

By JACK CONWAY.

Suppose you and your friend John D. Rockefeller began matching for real money and that after each whirl of fate you doubled the amount for which you were gambling how much of a chance would YOU have of draining the world's leading oil can?



Gaze at your old B. R. and weep. You would be kayoed in less time than it takes a flapper to tell all she knows.

At Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight, Harry Wills will act in the role of the big oil can, while Tut Jackson will attempt to do a little draining. He'll get just as many drops of success as Wills cares to let him have.

Wills outclasses Jackson as a fighter about the same rate that Rockefeller does the rest of us mortals in the well known financial league.

It is sort of a benefit for the [illegible] heavyweight champion. He recently had a similar affair at Newark when he knocked out Buddy Jackson in two sweet rounds with one of those invisible punches.

Over in dear old New York where they can stage a Barnum affair most any time they have attempted to build Tut Jackson up on the strength of several bouts in the Middle West.

There is tremendous interest in this bout and it is expected that a capacity crowd will be on hand to witness the festivities.

BALL STARS NOW CARRY BIBLES ON THE HIP

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Hip pockets of the major League baseball players uniforms are being put to new usage. Many of them now carry a pocket edition of the New Testament.

W. H. Strouck, a representative of the Business Men's Council of the Pocket Testament League, appeared at Shibe Park yesterday afternoon, and presented each member of the Chicago White Sox with a Testament.

Each in turn signed a pledge to read a passage of Scripture every day. An added condition is that the player must carry the Testament with him always, on and off the field.

According to Mr. Strouck, the Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit and both Philadelphia teams have already been presented with Testaments under similar conditions.

A well known veteran baseball player and sportsman, he told them, contributed the amount necessary to distribute 500 leather bound Testaments among baseball players.

DUNDEE WINS VERDICT IN MARTIN BOUT

By ED. CURLEY.

New York, Aug. 29.—Johnny Dundee and Pepper Martin met in a fifteen-round encounter last night at the Velodrome. It was announced to be for the junior lightweight title and Johnny got the decision. 'Twasn't what you'd really call a fight. In fact 'twas a nice exhibition of missing and dancing by the two youths.

The crowd actually didn't enthuse over the fracas, if you'd call it that. Pepper was willing to fight judging from the hundreds of hard swings he missed, and Dundee didn't care to let any of those wallops land and stayed out of danger. Most of the time was spent in feinting, at which both were excellent.

From the way Dundee fought it looked as if he weren't the old boy of old. He missed steadily, and though he flopped many a left on Martin's jaw it didn't do any damage. The fifteenth round was the best for it was the last.

Pepper was knocked to his knees in the first round when Dundee sent a left hook to his chin. He also sent a left hook to Martin's head and Martin almost went through the ropes getting out of the way.

Dundee made Martin look foolish throughout the early rounds. He was able to send lefts to the chin whenever he chose. Martin fanned [illegible] in his repeated attempts to connect. Dundee's lefts to face caused Martin to miss most of his blows.

Dundee tied up Martin completely when he fought in close. One of Johnny's lefts to the chin so enraged Martin that he went after Dundee with a vengeance but was sadly disappointed. The first time Pepper made any headway was in the fourth round which closed with honors about even. Both fighters scored heavy blows in that session.

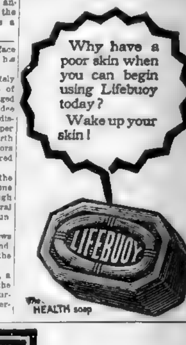
But Martin failed to show the same punch in the fifth. At one time he was driven half way through the ropes and he received several lefts to the jaw, which he was unable to return.

Martin was smothered with blows throughout the fourteenth round. Dundee smashing three lefts to the face.

Jimmy Kirk and Dick Scanlon, a pair of welterweights, opened the show. They skipped over the four-round route. At the finish the verdict was given to Kirk.

Then came Hughey Hutchinson, the Scottish featherweight, and Jimmy Cooney of Harlem. The boys put up a corking, slashing, six-round battle which Hutchinson won in gallant style.

Peter Hartley, the durable Dane, and Andy Thomas, the knockout king, climbed through the ropes. They were announced as fighting the semi final of twelve rounds and went the limit with the contest called a draw. This verdict was hooted uproariously, for everybody figured that Thomas won the beat.



OUIMET AND GUILFORD BEAT BRITISHERS

New York, Aug. 29.—The United States golfers defeated Britishers in three out of four matches in a [illegible] foursomes in the opening day's play for the Walker Cup, the international amateur golf team trophy. Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford were winners, [illegible] and seven, over Cyril J. H. Tolley and Bernard Darwin. Robert T. Jones and Jesse Sweetser won from W. B. Torrance and C. V. L. Hooman, three and two and Max R. Marston and W. C. Fownes, Jr., defeated John Caven and W. Willis MacKenzie, two and one. The American pair, Chick Evans and Robert A. Gardner, was beaten by a British team, Roger H. Wethered and C. C. Aylmer, five and four.

Guilford and Ouimet in defeating Tolley and Darwin played marvelous golf. At all times brilliant the American pair pulled a number of breath-taking shots [illegible] steady [illegible] play of the English men. In the afternoon round the Americans went out in 34, three under par. They had five birdies in 11 holes.

Guilford sank 2 foot putts for two of the [illegible] and Ouimet [illegible] for the others with pitch shots dead to the pin. Darwin substituting for Captain Robert Harris who withdrew from the play because of illness, was best with his irons, but these shots were offset by his poor putting.

Tolley was best of the four at driving. His drives in the morning round were 20 to 40 yards longer than those of Ouimet, who drove with him, although Ouimet's afternoon shots, for the most part, were on a par with those of Tolley. Guilford always was ahead of Darwin.

Guilford and Ouimet finished the morning round one down, squared at the tenth hole in the afternoon, took the lead on the twelfth and were never headed thereafter. The closest and longest match of the four was that in which Marston and Fownes won from Caven and MacKenzie, 2 and 1. Both teams played steadily all the way, the match ending on the seventeenth green when Fownes laid a perfect stymie and the Englishman could do no better than halve the hole.

The defeat of Evans and Gardner, both former national champions, was a surprise. They were behind all the way. Aylmer outdrove Gardner and his approach shots were deadly. He sank a 40-foot putt to halve one hole. Evans, usually so accurate with his irons, hooked his shots badly. Wethered held his own, his game being about on a par with that of Evans. The Americans had a medal of 82 for the [illegible] as compared to [illegible]

Evans and Gardner were [illegible] down at [illegible] the English [illegible] to one at [illegible] but Evans [illegible] two holes. In the afternoon the Englishmen had a medal of [illegible] against the Americans' [illegible]

The youthful team of Sweetser and Jones [illegible] away from Torrance and Hooman and were [illegible] after the morning round. They had a medal of 74 against their opponents' 83. The Americans increased their lead to 9 up on the first two holes of the afternoon round. The Englishmen then steadied and cut down the long lead by brilliant work with the irons. The last two holes of the match were halved. Both teams had a medal of 38 on the last stretch.

FRANK KRAMER CYCLE RACING CHAIRMAN

New York, Aug. 29.—Frank L. Kramer, the world's greatest bicycle rider, who retired recently, was appointed temporary chairman of the board of control of the National Cycling Association to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Richard [illegible] and the position for twenty two years.

[illegible] took place at the [illegible] 1531 Broadway. Kramer will start in on his new duties immediately, [illegible] ing of the National Cycling Association which takes place October 16. [illegible] Kramer said: "I have been a [illegible] rider for twenty seven years and will be [illegible] to satisfy the [illegible] [illegible] the bicycle racer."

MILITARY NIGHT LISTED FOR REVERE

Headed by the Aleppo Temple Band of 156 pieces, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Regiment, arrayed in all their brilliant uniforms, will descend upon the Revere Cycle track tomorrow night.

The occasion is the annual all-day invasion of Revere Beach by the soldiers and in their honor Manager Butler has termed the occasion Military Night.

As the Ancients are great followers of paced racing, Manager Butler has arranged a three-cornered 35-mile contest among George Chapman, the American champion, Vincent Madonna and Charles Verkeyn. This race was postponed from Saturday on account of the rain.

Another feature is the Australian pursuit race between Ralph Spears and Tom Grimm against Jimmy Cobert and Archie McDonald.

First—
In Portland, Maine

At the intersection of State, Pine and Congress Streets, 940 drivers of all types of motor vehicles were asked a short time ago which gasoline they preferred. The investigator's report, duly sworn to, showed that Socony, by a score of 3 to 1 over the second choice, is unquestionably the overwhelming favorite among gasoline users in Portland, which confirms results obtained by similar investigations in the principal cities of New York State and New England.

What Do You Want in a Gasoline—Most?

NOTE—"Boiling-point" is a common term in the gasoline testing laboratory. Most liquids boil (vaporize) at one uniform temperature. In the case of water this temperature, or boiling-point, is 212° F. However, every gasoline has many boiling points—a whole series or range of them in fact. It is this range of boiling points and the proportion of each group of them (low, medium and high) that really determine the quality of a gasoline—its volatility, power and mileage-economy.

If you were making your own gasoline, wouldn't you strive to make it satisfactory from every standpoint, rather than a little out of the ordinary in one respect or perhaps two? You'd probably try to get a gasoline that was good, dependable in starting, pick-up, power and mileage—rather than one which had wonderful pulling power on the hills, for instance, but was low on mileage and hard to start.

The all-round dependability which most motorists demand is the basis of Socony's decided popularity today. During the many years that Socony has always given consistent satisfaction, many "phenomenal" motor fuels have from time to time been offered the motoring public. But the fact that Socony is still the popular gasoline is striking evidence that gasoline users prefer all-round excellence to one-sided superiority.

Socony's unvarying dependability is the result of the most modern refining methods and careful testing. It always has the correct range of boiling points and in the right proportion to insure instant starting, satisfactory pick-up, abundant power and high mileage. (See diagram and Note.)

After all, isn't the unusual popularity of Socony a pretty good indication that it has what you want most in gasoline—uniform dependability?

TILDEN AND RICHARDS MEET AUSTRALASIAN NET CHAMPIONS

PLAY OFF DOUBLES AT CHESTNUT HILL

By FRED C. LANE

This morning's bright sunshine was welcomed by the wielders of the racquet and the fans of the net game, for it assured the finishing of the national doubles title play at Chestnut Hill, which another day's rain would have made impossible.

Patterson and Wood, the Australian contenders who met Bill Tilden and Vincent Richards in the finals, had talked of defaulting the match unless they could have dry courts to play on.

They came to this country to try to lift the Davis Cup and were unwilling to take any chances that might injure their game in the big tourney, which starts at Forest Hills Friday.

Captain Patterson endeavored to have the Davis Cup holders call for the default of the match, but Tilden's plan was pooh-pooh'd by the others who figured that Boston fans were entitled to the payoff here, after the

BIG FIELD DAY FOR NEPONSET WANDERERS

The big game on Labor Day in the Neponset-Dorchester section will be played at the Neponset Wanderer's Field Day between Joe Norton's South Boston All-Stars and Neponset Wanderer A. A.

Both outfits have dismissed records of which they may well be proud. In the past week Norton's All-Stars were only nosed out by the Cubans of Lynn and the North Cambridge K. C. in the Twilight League contest. Neponset Wanderers to date have won nine out of twelve contests played, their last win being a 4 to 3 victory over the strong Attleboro team.

On July 8th last the Neponset Wanderers were defeated by Norton's All-Stars in one of the fastest games ever seen at Neponset, score being 3 to 2, and on Labor Day hope to turn the tables on the South Boston team.

The baseball game will be one of the many features of the Neponset Wanderers' annual Field Day, and will be followed in the evening by a band concert and one of the grandest displays of fireworks ever seen in Neponset. A record breaking crowd is expected to turn out.

TWO JUMPERS IN LINE FOR EXETER

George Connors was on hand for the track and field championships and was pleased with the showing of Gail Robinson, winner of the high jump, and Dave White, broad jumper, both of whom hope to be admitted to Exeter Academy next month.

The two boys are the equal of any pair of jumpers developed out of the ranks. Robinson, local scholastic competing for Huntington School placed first in every school meet in which he competed in. He has jumped 6 feet without effort. White's best broad jumping was the lack of track on which last Spring, despite the fact that he pulled a muscle during the week, he jumped over twenty feet. Sunday White hopes to enter Harvard in 1923.

Francis Ouimet.

France's Ouimet, America's most colorful golfer, will "cover" the United States amateur golf championship, which opens at the Brookline Country Club Saturday, for the Boston American. It was on the Brookline course that Ouimet, then a mere slip of a boy, defeated Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in the play-off of the open championship back in 1913. It was the first great victory of an American golfer over famous invaders from overseas.

Ouimet, former open and amateur champion, probably knows more about golf than any man in the United States. He has been a close student of the game since a boy and has been responsible more than any other individual for the wonderful growth of the links game.

More than 100 of our amateur stars will compete in this great tournament, which will be viewed by thousands of persons.

If you want the real "inside" stories of the championship play, go off with Ouimet in the Boston American.

WIFE MUSSES UP TOMMY BURNS

Tommy Burns

London, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Tommy Burns, who weighs only 125 pounds, has so terrorized a 230-pound ex-champion heavyweight fighter that he has had her placed under bond for one year to refrain her from knocking him about. "I knew I outweigh her by more than 100 pounds," said Tommy to the court, "but nevertheless I really afraid of her. Really, I am."

Then he explained that when he went to visit the children who are in the custody because of their separation, Mrs. Burns rushed at him and knocked his hat off with a swing that narrowly missed the spot where Jack Johnson hit him for a knockout. She also created a public disturbance. Tommy said, and he wished the court would bind her per to keep further disturbance. "I weigh 125 and the size of me," the wife said, "it's preposterous to say I could mistreat him."

CARLSON COACH AT BOYS' CLUB

Win Carlson

FACEY SUES HUB PRINTING UNION

J. Frank Facey, Cambridge printer and Prominent N. E. A. A. U. official, has brought a bill in equity in the Suffolk County Superior Court against J. Frank O'Hara and the Boston Printing Pressmen's Union.

MANY NEW STARS TO ENTER B. C.

Larry Shumunde

Captain Billy Nolan of the Marston-Gold track team is more than optimistic about the athletic prospects at Boston College this fall. The Needle Island lad, whose sensational running while a member of the East Boston high school team is still fresh in the minds of the schoolmate fans, is concerned mostly about track athletes.

Jack Kelley, Winthrop High School star who attended it for a short time last year, will likely report as a freshman. Larry Shumunde, formerly of High School of Commerce and Huntington School will look after wearing one of the green. While there is Fred White of Quincy, he is a sprinter of promise and a fine broad jumper who is bound for B. C.

Then there is Jimmy Lowe, who with more weight, will surely rank with the best shot putters in the college ranks. Lowe broke all school records and scored many points in open meets against the cream of the country. Jimmy Lowe is expected to fill the hole left vacant by the graduation of Johnny Lee.

If all the Boston College stars have the spirit of Bill Nosek, there is will continue to flourish at Jesuit College.

A Paramount Picture From the story by JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD With ALMA RUBENS Directed by FRANK BORZAGE

THE VALLEY OF SILENT MEN

FACING the endless snow and ice of the great Northwest, travelling thousands of miles to preserve law and order—could you expect a member of the Canadian Royal Mounted to find time for love? Yet it came to Corporal Kent and James Oliver Curwood has made it the theme for his best story. The picture was directed by Frank Borzage who made "Humoresque" and it is in every way as great. In addition to Miss Rubens, the cast includes Lew Cody, George Nash, Joe King and other famous actors.

HORSE BREEDER FUTURITY

Thompson Dillon, Ethelinds, Brandywine.

By NICK FLATLEY

Kings and queens of the American turf opened court today at the Readville track and for four afternoons Boston horse lovers will be regaled with the greatest program of harness racing ever staged at the classic oval.

It was at this track years ago that Star Pointer raced the first mile ever recorded under two minutes. Chances are that new world records may be established this week if the track gets enough sun in the next few days to dry it out properly.

For the Grand Circuit fliers have been racing long enough this season to be ready for great speed and the course at the Hyde Park has been prepared for sensational time. The rain of the last few days has not helped any, but one of our real hot August afternoons would promptly bail out all the moisture.

Boston horses will be prominent contenders in each race of another exciting day and evening off what has always been a five-afternoon program in a day's time assured at least one big stake event for every card.

The remarkable world's champion pacing mare Margaret Dillon 1:59¾, who was the headliner for the opening day having the first full race on her merry list, is owned by Harrison H. Traiser of Boston, whose handsome Stable has several champions in the making now training at the track.

Has Been Several Miles in Even Time or Better

The Dillon mare has been several times this season in even time or better, and she may be sent out to clip a real flying journey for the delectation of the Boston enthusiasts, who naturally look on her as a local institution.

Opposing her in this event will be John Henry, 2:01¾, and Jimmy McKerron, 2:02¾. Jackson Grattan was entered, but did not come to the track.

Another Boston star entered today is McGregor the Great, 1:58¾, who will be a favorite for the Beaumont Farm Stake for 2:16 trotters unless his stable mate The Great Volo is started. Both are owned by Bradford Small of Atlanta.

The McGregor horse was the leading money winner in 1920 but did not go to the races last season. He has shown his regular consistency this year, although The Great Volo leads the purse collectors for '22. He will probably be held out for the Massachusetts, the richest stake of the meeting, the feature of tomorrow's card.

Several Rich Events Are Scattered Through for Colts

Juveniles have always featured Readville racing and this meet will be no exception, several rich events being scattered through the meeting for the lusty racers.

The big division of the Horse Breeders Futurity was on today with a great field of two-year-olds entered. With any kind of footing at least three of the youngsters are capable of going 2:10 or better. Thompson Dillon has the best mark in the record, and has been the best of the class to date, but both Brandywine and Ethelinda have the speed and the racing experience to push him to his limit. Chestnut Sarah and Col. Foote, two Readville trained babies, will face the starter for the first time in this race.

The three-year-old stars have their big battle Thursday in the senior division of the same stake. Last year's two-year-old champion Snavite and runner-up Helen Dillon are entries but neither will go to the start favorite.

Peter Earl Will Carry the Wise Money

The bay colt Peter Earl, 2:05¾, will carry the wise money as his efforts have all been of champion ship calibre. He has gone a quarter in 28 seconds, a world record for juvenile of his class. According to those who should know, an offer of $10,000 was refused for this speedy youngster a fortnight ago.

Boston owned horses will figure largely in The Pilgrim, another big number of the Wednesday program. Iskander, 2:07¼, who has been unbeaten on the half mile tracks in a long campaign this season, will get a real test here, two of the prominent contenders being Sam Hastings' Rex McKinney, 2:03¼, and Benjamin Powell's Anokita, 2:08¾.

There's enough racing any one day to satisfy anybody and with purses $37,[illegible] lining up for pieces at the big stables will chase out their best performers. The race for money honors this year is unusually close and consequently there's very little saving up of horses for the fat stakes only.

Three of the world's fastest equines Peter Manning 1:57¾, Nedda 1:59¾, and Arion Guy 1:59¾, will race against time during the meeting.

TENDLER STYLE HANDICAP, SAYS LEONARD

Benny Leonard.

Benny Leonard says that Lew Tendler is just another of those [illegible] prizefighters and mouthpieces who know how to [illegible] Left handed boxers as a rule are a poor lot [illegible] Tendler came along Knocked Brown was the best lefty dish [illegible] weight Brown was not a great fighter. A well handled publicity campaign made him what he was. Every time Brown met a boxer who knew something of the science of the game he was made to look like a joke.

Tendler is not like that. He has two good hands instead of one. He is reasonably fast on his feet, knows what a feint means and is a fair ring general. Tendler's right hand is just as useful to him as Leonard's left is to the champion. He shoves it hard and fast and as rarely.

Tendler, unlike McCoy and Wolgast, stands facing his man squarely and is always in position to shift which other hand is leading. During the greater part of a bout Tendler does not lead. He will lead whether he is a left-hander or a right-hander.

Lew Tendler.

That Tendler is not afraid to hit there is no reason to believe. On the contrary, it is probable that he finds it a big asset.

MUIR INSTRUCTOR AT MAGNOLIA

Robert 'Bob' Muir.

Muir is a champion of high class form, defending titles time and again. He holds two National Y. M. C. A. titles, the 100 yards breast stroke and another in the 440 yards free style.

He is at the North Shore Swimming Pool and has started two classes in life saving, both in the senior and junior, and has shown great success.

He developed a swimming team which scored a victory over the Bass Rock Swimming Club, 30 points to 20. "Bob" will remain at Magnolia for the remainder of the season and will hold matches for the championship of the North Shore pool.

IRISH POLOISTS GET TEST

Rumson, N. J., Aug. 23.—The All-Ireland Four, the third foreign polo team in as many playing days to stack up against an All-American Four crossed mallets this afternoon with the Shelburne quartet in the third elimination match of the Herbert Memorial Cup tournament at the Rumson Country Club.

In the two matches already played what were previously regarded as inferior American fours have had no difficulty in defeating the highly-touted foreign entries, the Flamingo Club yesterday beating the Anglo American Eastcott team, and the Orange County Club easily eliminating the Argentina four on Saturday.

Shelburne with an international cast of Louis E. Stoddard, Raymond Belmont, J. Watson Webb and H. P. Strawbridge, Jr., one of the two strongest American fours, is expected to dispose of All Ireland with a great difficulty on the basis of the other foreign entries showing.

RING RESULTS

New York—Johnny Dundee, New York, got the decision over "Pepper" Martin, Brooklyn, 15 rounds; Andy Thomas, New York and Peter Hartley, New York, fought a draw, 12 rounds; Hughey Hutchison, Philadelphia, got the decision over Jimmy Cooney, New York, six rounds.

Jersey City—Danny Edwards of California and "Irish" Johnny Curtin of Boston fought a draw, 12 rounds, according to the popular decision.

Freeport, L. I.—Archie Walker, New York, got the decision over Sailor Joe Kelly, New York, 12 rounds.

LONGWOOD TENNIS MATCHES PUT OVER

Play in the finals of the national doubles and several other lawn tennis tournaments scheduled at the Longwood Cricket Club yesterday were postponed until today because of rain.

BIG ENTRY LIST IN SCOTTISH GAMES

More than one hundred entries have been received for the thirty-third annual games of the Associated Scottish Clans of Boston and vicinity at Caledonian Grove on Lake Dorr Dix.

Many star athletes, including some of the best professional runners in the East, have entered early. Entries may be sent to George W. Garden, 24 Shurtleff street, Chelsea.

BULL FIGHTS GIVE WAY TO BASEBALL

Washington, Aug. 23.—That baseball is supplanting bull fighting as a sport in the hearts of the Mexicans are sustained in a report from United States Consul Stewart at Chihuahua.

"Last Sunday's game," the report said, "was witnessed by nearly 5,000 spectators, an attendance seldom if ever registered at the local ring in the palmy days of the bull fighting."

GIRL SWIMMERS SIGN UP FOR MATCH RACE

Helen Wainwright, acclaimed the aquatic marvel of the age, has given her consent to compete in the 500 meter invitation race which will feature the swimming meet for women in the Brighton Beach open air pool on Labor Day, after Miss Meta Muller and Miss Ethel Lackie Egan, all-round champion, was the first to accept the invitation.

Miss Helen Wainwright.

Her first appearance in the country before sailing for England.

Miss Wainwright has suffered only two defeats this year and one of these was at the hands of Miss Jarvis a few weeks ago. This race will give the Elmhurst sensation a chance to redeem herself before the British champion leaves for home.

Miss Hilda James.

Dundee Takes on Jackson

Brooklyn, Aug. 23.—Johnny Dundee, former lightweight champion and Willie Jackson, New York lightweight, have been matched to box fifteen rounds to a decision at Ebbets Field on Wednesday night, September 6.

TIGERS WANT GAMES.

The Tigers of Back Bay claim the championship of State in 14-15-year old class. They recently defeated the Neptunes of East Boston. They would like games for today, tomorrow and Friday. Address twilight game for Labor Day, Cull Manager Stavros, Copley 1117-M, between 5 and 6 P. M.

FUKUDA A TENNIS STAR IN JAPAN

Kamakura, Japan, Aug. 23.—Fukuda, who leaped into the limelight of the tennis world when he won the Tokio Club championship in May, was added one more feather to his cap of laurels in defeating Kashiwa in two straight sets in an exhibition match here this week.

The heat was trying and Kashiwa seemed to suffer from it more than did his opponent. Fukuda has scored another feather in his cap for international honors. He will compose a team to go to France.

Girls' Team at Concord

Because of rain, the game scheduled for today on the Concord golf links between the Concord Girls and the American Pioneer Girls was postponed until this evening.

WILLIE JACKSON IS TO MEET DUNDEE

New York, Aug. 23.—It has been announced that Jimmy Dundee, champion, and Willie Jackson, New York lightweight, were matched to box fifteen rounds to a decision at Ebbets Field on Wednesday night, September 6. The match was arranged by Dave Driscoll, matchmaker of the Ebbets McKeever Company. George Smith acting for Dundee, and Frank Bagley representing Jackson.

French Premiers

TO be Premier of France is to hold the most responsible office in the government, but to be almost certain of holding it for only a short term. France recently got its sixty-seventh Premier in fifty-one years.

"Mary"

ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This New Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water-street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. The next deal concluded, she expects another bonus check, but finds it is for only $30. While she is debating whether she will resign, MRS. HALL DAWSON enters and tries to find out Mary's regard for her employer. Mary's adviser is her sister, JUNE. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. Dawson has the "flu" and Mary is summoned to his beautiful mansion on Bay State road. She sees Pat riding with Teresa Brady. Mary dances with Pat at Teresa's party.

"LADY BOUNTIFUL!" Pat's voice was acid. "You ought to know better than that, Nell. Charity is the final outrage on justice."

I watched that proud, eager face, flushing under its warm tan, strong, fearless, and I could see in it no trace of the man who stooped and kissed Teresa Brady. She watched him, too. It was as though there were two selves in him. "Come over here, Pat. Jack, bring me that guitar. I'll sing for you."

She took the instrument, picking daintily at the strings. "What shall it be?" she asked, her gypsy eyes courting Pat's.

Before he had time to answer, her clear, pure, soprano, somewhat thin, but well trained, sang to him, 'Only You." The last word was not ended when she swept fervently, warmly into the sweet yearning passion of "My Laddie."

Jack stood behind her. "Hurrah, Patti!" he called gallantly. Her eyes darted with angry fire. She turned her back on him and sang, laying her dark head to Pat spoke in a low, tense voice.

Let us get out of here Pat—down on the beach." I heard it. Jack heard it too.

"No, you don't, Cleopatra. We suffered your performance, now you'll suffer ours. Here, Nell, give us a tune."

"I'll teach you to humiliate me, Jack Mahoney! Bring it over to Mary. She'll give you all the old hear throbs—the songs our mothers used to sing."

Jack brought it over to me. I took it eagerly. I could match Teresa in music, I knew.

I let my fingers thrum over the strings. I was trying to recall the words of the Habanera. I looked over at Teresa. A smile of derision flashed from her to Pat. My fingers were possessed. The words rushed into my throat. I sang the capricious, tantalizing Ah, love but a day and the world is mine for the taking! If thou lovest me not beware. I love thee beware!"

I sang for Pat as Teresa had sung for him.

I know not what mad impulse moved me—something reckless, primitive, struck into June's impassioned protest—"The Flower Song." It seemed to have been written for me—The flower that once you gave me, though all its beauty long has perished, for me its perfumes still remains."I sang it in French.

I finished in a quivering silence. Jack's face was white, her lips tight. A dark flush mounted Jack's forehead. He was looking at me as though I were a new and untamed thing that had suddenly leaped out of a statue. I felt like that too.

I couldn't sleep that night. I took off the organdie dress and put on an old middy. Then I sat at the open window, thinking.

The room grew unbearably hot I went out on the porch. I listened carefully. There was no sound stealthily I crept down the steps and ran through the water grasses to the white sands.

A figure, tall, agitated, came toward me. I started running back to the house. It followed.

"Mary, Mary." The voice rich, husky sent a wave of bitter pain through me. I stopped. I stumbled. Pat was at my side.

"Mary!" He looked at me a moment, his eyes black. He caught me in his arms, pressed me, kissed me, my lips, my eyes.

"Don't—don't—oh—" My heart, like a lump of living anguish, cried out against him He let me go, turned and walked to the bluff.

I dressed quickly and went out. "Blind if I sit down, Mary?" It was Pat

"I'm sorry, Mary," he said, sitting next to me, his fingers for an instant brushing mine. "I'd give anything not to have done it. I don't know what possessed me I wasn't such a terrible thing, was it?"

I didn't answer him. I couldn't. "Was it so terrible?"

I sat there, not answering him.

You think it was, Mary? Did you feel this way before, too? Were you furious like this that first time—the day I came home? Was that why you didn't answer when I phoned?"

I gazed over at Teresa Brady

"Oh, no, no! I wasn't angry at all that time."

"But you are now. I can't figure you, Mary. You aren't like other girls."

"You've studied them a lot?" I asked. "They're usually delighted to win your smile? I'm so different?"

Pat's eyes narrowed in scorn. "I guess you don't want to be bothered with me, Mary." He was getting on his feet. "I'm sorry I've made you so uncomfortable."

"Don't go, Pat," I said weakly.

He looked at me in amazement and sat down again.

"I'm not angry at all. If you can't figure me, I can't figure anything, so I'm much worse off," I said, digging my heels into the sand. "There's nothing to figure, anyway. I was moonstruck, I guess—so was the water—so were you."

"Moonstruck? Not much! I was songstruck. It was your own fault, the way you sang that 'Carmen.'" He looked at me sharply, suddenly at me. "You haven't changed a bit. Remember the day you slapped my face because I called you 'witchcraft?' You were like that last night."

"I don't remember. You're thinking of one of your other first loves."

"I haven't any other. I never did have any other."

"And you never will, world without end"

"Amen! Is that a promise, Mary?"

"Listen, they're calling us. Help me up."

"I'm forgiven, am I? You're not hoarding up penance to rub in some other time?"

Well, I've a mind to. You don't seem a bit sorry for your sins

I'm not! They're great. I'm planning my next ones."

He caught my hands, pulling me to my feet, trying to release the clasp till we were a string a throw from the house.

Mary you beauty—you're—you Nell in a polished up, failed out at para bathing suit, her bright eyes dancing, leaned over the porch rail. "We're going for a swim! Here's a Peiret model for you. Jack raked them out of the closet. "You look like a forsaken mermaid. I'd rather stay out. I can only take seven strokes, anyway."

"Be a sport, old thing. Hasn't poverty trained your personality to make up for the deficiencies in your wardrobe, yet? Put it on."

We put on our coats and started for the beach with Jack and Tram.

"Try it, Mary. Ride the waves. Here, I'll hold your hands." Pat pulled me in. I wasn't afraid. Not with him. It was the wildest, most thrilling sport I had ever known. We took hands, the six of us, pushed out to meet the waves and rode back on them.

"Who'll race me?" Teresa challenged as we were sitting on the beach a little later.

"Who'll race me?" she repeated, looking at Pat. He got up.

"Come on" They ran to the water, cutting quickly, cleanly against the waves, striking out, it until we could see only two arms rising, slapping the water.

They turned—they were coming back.

And then suddenly a shrill, tearing scream brought us all to our feet. Teresa's arm raised high, fluttered a moment, disappeared. Pat swam on, briskly, cleanly, unknowing.

"God! Good God!" Jack and Tram bounded to the water Nell and I ran after them, shouting waving our arms in a frantic effort to attract Pat He saw nothing heard nothing swam on, seeking Teresa from the spot where Teresa had dropped from sight, getting nearer to shore

I flung my arms to Pat standing there motionless while all the world shouted and sobbed him to action What was the matter? Was he fashioned? Something bobbed on the water Pat's arms shot out, cutting like winged knives. He was there, above the spot where the thing had bobbed. He raised himself. He was gone.

I covered my face. When I looked again at the water I saw Pat's head and his arms moving with maddening slowness. Again he dove from sight.

"They've diving! They'll find her." I screamed.

"Look, look!" A head bobbed, two heads. "He's got her. He must have her. He's on his back! See——"

"Look, Mary, tell us I can't hear it." Nell's mouth twisted in anguish. "Run over, is she alive?"

Jack and Tram were swimming at Pat's side. They reached the beach

"Get a barrel, Mary." Pat had torn a strap from Teresa's bathing suit and was binding her tongue against her chin. Her eyes were closed. Her beautiful face puffy, lifeless. I ran to the house and came back with the spirited Damascene carrying whiskey, a barrel, towels. Jack and Pat were moving her arms and legs

Pat knelt on the ground breathing into her mouth. His face was like death, his mouth and chin blue

"Let me help! I'll do that a while." He moved away exhausted. I took his place

"It's no use" Jack shook his head

I had taken Pat's place. At Jack's word he sprang up like a tiger, caught him by the shoulder and hurled him off.

"Don't give up, Mary " His eyes, staring in his ashen face implored me. "Don't give up God, if she dies"

I worked with him Jack took my place. I stood waiting Her eyelid fluttered a stir of breath

After a moment he raised his head, working again, the gladdest look I ever saw in a human eye lighting his.

Desert Love

By JOAN CONQUEST

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England. It falls heads and she is committed to the Sheik and the desert. The caravan starts for the oasis. Jill tries to escape from her tent, but is caught by Hahmed.

"HOW funny!" Jill laughed, "how too funny!" And added: "And then?" as she lit another cigarette which she did not smoke.

"For many years," continued Hahmed, "I wandered, even unto Asia and to America. In truth whilst there the desert suddenly called me. My body craved for the great distances of the sand, my ears for the familiar sounds of the East.

"But I could not return to the place of my shame, likewise were my parents dead, leaving me an equal part of their great wealth.

"So I went to other parts and bought 'the fat oasis' as it is called, on account of the many miles of perfectly flat sand surrounding it, absolutely unbroken by rock or bush or sand-dune. And perforce because I needed it not I acquired wealth, and yet more wealth, buying villages and great tracts of ground, breeding and selling camels and horses, diverting myself with my hawks hunting with my cheetahs, or greyhounds, to occupy my time, heaping up the jewels in my tent at Cairo, keeping the best of everything for my wife, the woman predicted in my horoscope, for there can be no real happiness without a perfect helpmate, and real happiness has been promised me.

"And all these things I have done for her, yet am I looked upon as mad by many in that at 28 years I have not begotten me a son, for they could not understand the disgust which had taken root in my whole being, so that in love or passion or desire I laid not hands upon women.

"You cannot understand, woman of the West, what it means when I say this to you, for in the East a man's greatest desire is to propagate his race, to have sons, many sons, with a daughter or two, or more as Allah wills, and to multiply this lonelier in the shadow of the law, Allah, who is God, in His all'powerful goodness and bounty has allowed us as many as four wives, and as many women as we or concubines as a man can properly and with decency provide for, the children of the latter, if recognized by the father, sharing equally with the offspring of the former. Though why a man who has found his love should wish to cumber his house with other women, soothing with jealousy and peevish from want of occupation, is beyond my power of comprehension.

"So I have none, because it is within me to love one woman only, and to find the light of my life in her and the children of her loins, and if Allah in his wisdom sees not good to grant me this woman, who must come to me of her own free will and love, then will I go to my grave in Allah's time without wife, without child, although the Koran saysth that he who fails in his duty towards his race is accursed among men."

And behold, a great trembling fell upon the English girl, as rising to her feet she stood to look out upon the desert, and drawing the glory of her hair about her so that she was covered from the face of the man who stood apart, passed into her tent

And the hour of prayer being at hand the man purified himself, and turning towards Mecca praised his God, and divesting himself of his outer raiment laid himself across the entrance of the woman's tent so as to guard her through her sleep, until such time that Allah, who is God, should open the entrance of her chamber unto him, and pace the delights thereof into his hands for ever

And the first day was like unto the second and the third, for these two desert farers went but slowly Each dawn, if they had not arrived in the night, they found their tents pitched; each night they moved on, or not, as pleased the girl's mood, each hour of the day strengthening the love in the man's soul, each minute of the night passing over him, as he lay outside the entrance to her tent, so that, at the slightest sound from the dim, sweet, scented interior, he might spring to his feet, awaiting the little call for help which never came. Jill slept as peacefully as a babe, stirring only at a dreamed of, or imagined, swaying of the bed, as does the sailless sometimes who sleeps for the first time after many months upon a bed, the four feet of which stands firmly on the ground

During the waking moments after her first night's rest, unlimited Jill had in boastful'on grew through and ardently disliked the frightful hour in which she would help collect, and clean, and pack a litter of soiled pots and pans, and other such abominations which coloring, etc., seems to constitute one of the chief charms of a Western picnic; so great had been her relief on hearing that there was absolutely nothing to do but see that the cushions and coffee were safely strapped upon Hahmed's back, the only patient part of the animal. They were standing in front of the tents with the animals at their feet, the man watching the girl's every movement. Jill was fresh, being vastly rested, in a state only radiant as to looks, strange lights and hot winds and cold causing no havoc to the skin, nor the lack of Marcel methods unsightliness to her hair.

The dusk hid the disp'ation of her tailor-made, which looked the fresher for being pressed under the mattress; she always traveled collared, so her shoes were still right, and the two Jacob's ladders, fallen on the outside of her stockings, looked just like socks neatly mended; her lovely hair rioted under her blue hat, and her high spirits rioted in her blue eyes, as she fed the camels with dates and wiped her sticky fingers on the silken coats.

"What!" she had exclaimed, "You don't mean to say that you are going to leave all this for the first child to collect." Will frowning as she spoke her basket of dates from the vicinity of her new camels mouth.

Verily, a beast of great beauty and worth as she, but shining as a mere rushlight, in comparison to the Beriot head-light radiance of the fallen Taffadain.

"The Arab does not steal"

"Oh! but——" said Jill, putting a date into her own mouth by mistake, and therefore speaking with difficulty, "but they do steal, and murder, and do all kinds of dreadful things like that—I learnt it at school"

"No," reiterated the man calmly, "the Arab does not steal her mare by carrie out the order of Allah, who, when Abraham turned his son Ishmael from his door, gave unto the boy the open plains and deserts as a heritage, permitting him to take and make use of whatever he could find therein

"And as it is written that every hand was turned against Ishmael, so his descendants turn their hand against the descendants of those who persecuted the son of Abraham; but among their own tribe, or to those who ask of their hospitality, you will find the greatest honesty

"In a camp everything is left unguarded, and nothing goes astray. If you, clothed in fine linen and arrayed in jewels, were to enter the tent of some herdsman, being Arab, and ask of him hospitality, he would share his last few coffee beans with you, and give you his couch, if by chance he was possessed of such luxury, and speed you on your way the morrow, and, believe me, you would not find a ribbon missing from your attire, even though you had left him without the wherewith to make his beloved coffee."

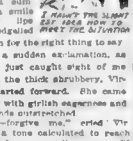
WHEN A GIRL MARRIES—BY ANN LISLE

I HADN'T the slightest idea how to meet the situation. There seemed no reason in the world why an arriving guest should be rooming about the grounds of Dreamveld without going first to the house to greet her hostess. I slackened my pace to lagging steps. I summoned a smile to my lips and I conjured sweet thoughts to my brain for the right thing to say



I MADE THE LIGHT DAY LOOK HOW TO A SWEET SMILE

With a sudden exclamation, as if she'd just caught sight of me through the thick shrubbery, Virginia started forward. She came running with girlish eagerness and both hands outstretched.

"Anne—forgive me," cried Virginia in a tone calculated to reach Rosa Cordova as well as me. "I didn't dream you'd get such an early start or that Pat would let our man drive so fast. Surely you know I would have been at the gate to greet you—or in the living room at least."

She seized both my hands in hers as she spoke. Seeing the greeting at the way she's 'frosted' his plans!"

"Fess up," demanded Virginia quickly. "Aren't you sort of grain fed to her?"

"'Believed' is the word" I acknowledged

Then we both grinned and Virginia put her arms about me and kissed me full on the lips It was perfectly timed. Virginia "pulled it off," as the saying goes, just as Rosa came around the last bend in the shrubbery and joined us. But I had a feeling that the kiss really was for me—not given merely to impress Rosa.

"Welcome to the visiting lady, Mrs. Harrison. You must tell me if I am intruder?" demanded Rosa, in a tone which suggested she knew perfectly well that she was "But I like it. I am here to see the sisters greet so lovingly. It's nice—for a good friend of Jack's—to see how his kin love each other."

The honeyed sweetness of it fairly dripped as it hovered indecisive. But Virginia's perfect composure helped me to keep myself in hand Together we three strolled toward the house When we got near the steps of the path, Virginia floated off ahead, flinging back at us.

"I'll chase in and get a hug from Pat before he becomes the perfect host and divides his attention between three or even four ladies."

Rosa and I walked along in silence for several moments. I felt her eyes on me and wondered what her speculative glances meant. At the top of the path she stopped and flung at me the thing which had, I suppose, been in her mind for some time

"I tell Virginia Dalton nothing of your Dad Lee. You like that?

You think that is nice of me?"

"Very nice," I said dryly

"You have told no one?" demanded Rosa.

"As you said," I replied. "There is no one to be interested. The phase of it which worried me, however is has Dick West returned with Mr. Lee?"

Mrs. Sherman Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lake Michigan.—"About one year ago I suffered with a severe case of nervousness and at times was obliged to stay in bed. I doctored with our family physician and he finally said he could not understand my case, so I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After I had taken the first bottle I could see that I was getting better. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and I am entirely cured of my ailments. You may publish this letter if you wish."—Mrs. M. SHERMAN, Route 2, Lake, Mich.

There is one fact women should consider and that is this. Women suffer from irregularities and various forms of weakness. They try this and that doctor, as well as different medicines. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, and Mrs. Sherman's experience is simply another case showing its merit.

If your family physician fails to help you and the same old troubles persist, why isn't it reasonable to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound?

Don't Spoil Your Child's Hair By Washing It "Use Mulsified"

When you wash your child's hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and preserved shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. Simply dissolve and beats anything else all to pieces.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water, and rub it in, it makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

A LOVE STORY OF THE FAR NORTH

THE young woman was not at a loss for a correct estimate of Kedsey. She paused in the outer room deliberately to listen to the sentence imposed on the man who had tried to save his friend.

Cardigan's pronouncement had filled her with joy. The inspector's ultimatum fired her with rage.

She listened to Kent demanding the reason for his superior's attitude: "What have you got against me, inspector? Is it because of the girl who has come to your house?"

"We won't discuss the girl," said the inspector, closely. "I am an officer of the law; you have confessed to a crime; I am only doing my duty in treating you like any other criminal."

He turned abruptly to O'Connor "O'Connor, take Sergeant Kent to the guard house."

"It's all right, Bucky, don't you worry," said Kent cheerfully, "it's a perfectly good jail. I built it myself!"

Marette slipped out into the snow. Kedsty ... to perform the hardest task in all his long career in the Mounted. Kent's attitude was all that made it possible for him. The latter looked on imprisonment as a mere incident.

"We'll hope for the best, old pal, don't you worry."

But Bucky did worry. The light went out of his daily life. He and Jim had hunted together, had camped together, had tracked the outlaw together, and now through some trick of fate Kent was accused of murder and he was set to watch him.

As strangely as she had appeared, Marette, the wonder girl of the North, had vanished from the post. To Kedsty she had given no explanation. No word had passed between them on the careers of Cutler, of Barkley, and himself. Marette had asked no questions about the incarceration of Kent.

Whatever she had come to learn, she had learned. Bucky O'Connor longed for a sight of her. He admitted as much when he told Kent of her going.

"Think she'll be comin' back?" asked the guard.

"What for?" asked the prisoner.

"Oh, I don't know—there's something mysterious about her coming here at all, I tell you. Kedsty is afraid of her. I'd give a good deal to know what she wrote in that book."

But no news came of Marette, and the weeks dragged along while the sun rose a little higher in the sky with each passing day and the flowers under the melting snow gave friendly warning that Spring was coming to the North country.

A dreary time for Kent waiting the arrival of a constable from Edmonton notified by Kedsty that one of the ... had confessed to murder. But there came one bit of light in the gloom. It came in the form of a letter from Marette intrusted to an Indian messenger and handed to Kent by Bucky himself with a keen curiosity as to its contents.

Now Kent, in spite of the seriousness of the charge against him, did not regard his forthcoming arraignment in court with trepidation. He knew he was innocent and his "strength was as the strength of ten, because his heart was pure."

But Marette, with the same matter of fact viewpoint of Bucky O'Connor, saw little hope for him. Guarded as her note was, it conveyed to him that the trip to Edmonton would probably be his last. Again she thanked him for the burden he had imposed on himself and gave him the longed-for chance to write to her.

Kent felt a glow of joy in the receipt of her message and for the next few days used up pads of paper trying to formulate a reply. It was easy enough to express his feelings, but he had no assurance that Marette would be interested in them. He labored long for a suitable beginning. He discarded "My dear Marette" as too cold. He dared not call her "dearest." He tried "wonder girl of the North," and referred to the mysterious valley she had told him about. The floor of his cell was strewn with crumpled wads of paper, each bearing a superscription unequal to the occasion. Bucky O'Connor watched his friend's efforts with a glint of humor. He was willing to suggest, but Kent had asked for no advice.

Meanwhile there was a stir at the post; another "mounty" took O'Connor's place and Kent's pal appeared later with the news of the constable's arrival. "He's come to take you South, Jim. Kedsty's orders."

There was small chance for the writing of letters now. Kent wrote hastily, confessing his love for Marette. The constable appeared with the inspector; Kedsty conferred with O'Connor and left.

"You're James Kent?" asked the officer from Edmonton.

Kent rose, nodded, and the sheet of paper fell at his feet. He recovered it hastily, thrust it into his shirt and stood at attention.

"It's all in a lifetime, Bucky; we've had some good times together; they can't take those away from us." The two men clasped hands through the bars. Then Kent turned, busied himself with the packing of his few belongings and prepared to deliver himself to the arm of the law he had served so faithfully.

"I'd hate to start out in this," said the constable to O'Connor.

"No hurry, is there?" asked Bucky. "Make it as easy as you can for him."

Some one was knocking at the door. O'Connor sprang to open it. A gust of wind and rain almost blinded him. He had expected to see Kedsty. Instead, Marette, heavily cloaked and dripping, held out a paper to him. He read a pass signed by the inspector admitting the bearer to James Kent.

Marette's appearance had the same effect on Kent that a ghost might have had. Of all persons in the world she was the last one he expected to see. He had pictured her as far away in that mysterious valley of which she had spoken. What was her errand? His heart beat high as he realized her presence, and yet he could not connect her coming with any possible reprieve for himself. There flashed through his mind her bold assertion that she knew the slayer of Barkley. Had she come to reveal that secret?

Whatever her errand, Marette made no announcement of it. She watched O'Connor as he looked at the pass; and then, while the constable and Bucky stood waiting for her next move, she pointed wildly and began to scream.

Kent straightened; the constable turned his head; Bucky did likewise. A third "mounty" came rushing in.

But he did see something, and his jaw muscles tensed. Marette was covering him with a capable-looking revolver.

"Hands up, gentlemen!" said the girl, with a decision that spoke of masculine determination.

They were a little slow in obeying. It was not particularly agreeable to be backed against the bars of a guardhouse cell by a slender girl. The constable resented it hotly. Bucky O'Connor, seeing a manoeuvre to help his old friend escape from jail, protested perfunctorily. The other mounty held up his arms, turning his head as though he hoped to find aid from a passing comrade.

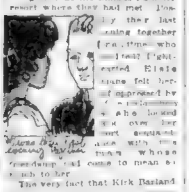
DAILY SHORT STORY LITTLE DECEIVER

By ELLA RANDALL PIERCE.



IT was their last evening together at the famous Summer resort where they had met. Possibly their last evening together ... Elsie Duane felt herself oppressed by ... she looked ... over her ... acquaintance with this man whose friendship had come to mean so much to her.

The very fact that Kirk Barland was of a different type from the other young men she had known made their association peculiarly fascinating. And, because the time of parting was so near, Elsie became aware of a growing panic and a desperate feeling that she must hold on to this friendship at all hazards.

Gay and insouciant as always, however, she moved through the evening's festivities at the hotel, flashing here and there like a ..., dancing only once with Barland, yet ever conscious of his regard as he stood outside the merry circle, a quiet spectator of a phase of life which rather bewildered him.

Kirk Barland was young, ambitious and successful in business, and no one would think of calling him old fashioned. But he had not found much time for living, and he had little in common with the frivolous, reckless younger set of which Elsie Duane was a star member.

Now, with an inscrutable look in his dark eyes as they followed Elsie's lively figure about, he waited in a dim corner till the young girl, with an airy dismissal of her dancing partner, precipitated her green-and-silver loveliness against him in a deliberate bump.

"Not exactly rooted to the spot, are you, dear old sobersides?" trilled Elsie, waving her ostrich fan till it tickled the end of his nose. "Then take me out into the moonlight."

He was glad to comply, and they moved away to a sweet, shadowy garden nook that was familiar to them. Elsie flung herself on the seat with a deep sigh.

"I'm so sad tonight," she drawled. "Can't you think of any way to cheer me up?"

"You haven't seemed to be in any need of cheering up this evening," returned Barland, slightly mocking.

"Oh, one can seem very, very gay when the heart is sad, you know." Elsie's face dropped over her fan. Then she looked up in wistful challenge. "Why don't you ask me what's the matter?"

Kirk started and spoke in puzzled accents: "I—ask you why you are sad, Miss Duane? It surely would be presumptuous of me. Your affairs of the heart—"

"Are nothing to you, I suppose?" Elsie drew haughtily ...

"Oh, not that. But I never know when you are in earnest. And if you are in earnest now, what can I do but offer my deep sympathy? I am not in a position to question you or ask for your confidence."

His glance rested with significance on a large diamond ring that flashed in the moonlight from Elsie's left hand. She frankly lifted her hand and stared at the ornament.

"You mean my engagement. I understand. That has not kept us from being very good friends, has it?"

"Very good friends—yes," echoed Barland.

Elsie waited, but he said no more. She pressed her red lips together and beat a light tattoo with her slippered foot. No, this man was not like the other men she had known. She need not wait for him to press the advantage she had given him. That ring on her hand was an unsurmountable barrier to Kirk Barland.

"Suppose I were to tell you that this ring on my finger means nothing—nothing at all!" Elsie waved her fan airily and leaned a trifle nearer. "It's our last evening together. I feel that I ought to tell you the truth."

She caught the light that flashed into his eyes, the involuntary twitch of his muscles, the eager note in his voice as he said, "What can you mean by that? Have you anything to tell me about that ring? And your engagement?"

"Listen, my good friend," Elsie tipped her face to ... charmingly into his bewildered eyes. "I was never engaged. I only said so to avoid being rushed this season. And that's why I came so far from home, where nobody knows me. Mr. Kirk Barland, don't you know I'm something of a belle?"

"I can well believe it," returned Barland soberly.

"Am I an heiress?"

"Never thought of it," came the prompt answer.

"And a gay little deceiver? And I just wanted to pass as an engaged girl here and keep all the men at a distance. But I couldn't keep it up with you." Elsie's glance was sorrowful as she faced him in the moonlight.

He turned squarely toward her. "Then it is all a joke—a pretense? And you are free?"

It was Elsie's turn to be startled. The sober restrained man she had known changed suddenly into a flaming, daring personality.

"Why Elsie Duane, that ring was all that kept me at a distance! The knowledge that you belonged to another. Why didn't you tell me before? Didn't you know that I loved you?"

"But you didn't say so. I thought if you really cared——"

"You'll see how I really care—now!" cried the young man. And he crushed the green-and-silver figure in his arms. With the barriers down, Kirk Barland was no faint hearted lover.

Late that night Elsie, in negligee, with a diamond ring on her desk before her, wrote a letter to one Freddy Stokes in her home town:

"Dear Freddy:

"Don't faint, old dear but we're not engaged any more! That was to be my privilege—or yours—if we saw anybody we liked better. And I've seen somebody I like better than all the rest of the world!

"It's partly your fault anyway. For you wouldn't come here when I asked you to. Said it was too far and you were too busy—and I heard you were on the Purdys' yacht for a week!

"Anyway we've both been engaged before and we know what it means. And I don't think you'll break your heart over it. Be nice, Freddy. It's the real thing for little Elsie this time. And nobody cut in on you. I had to arrange the whole affair myself and say that that my engagement was only a my engagement was only a when you see us and I'll give you a gorgeous wedding present when your turn comes. "ELSIE."

"Sylpho-Nathol made Herbert's feet feel fine

"Herbert's work keeps him on his feet for hours at a time. He walks miles and miles every day in hot weather his feet used to hurt him dreadfully—they would swell and get so tender he couldn't sleep at night. But Sylpho-Nathol gave him quick relief

"Letty Hayward told me about Sylpho-Nathol and its many uses I bought a bottle at the druggist's The directions recommended it for tired and aching feet

"Herbert came home that evening with his feet driving him nearly crazy. He tried Sylpho-Nathol as soon as I told him about it. A tablespoonful in a gallon of warm water made a clean smelling, pearly-gray solution. My dear! I wish you could have heard Herbert. 'Sylpho-Nathol is certainly a lifesaver, Bess,' he said, as it soothed the soreness away. It's great stuff to have in the house—don't let's ever be without it.'"

But Sylpho-Nathol has many other important uses. In cleaning-water, it destroys germs which lurk in dust and dirt and threaten family health. As a sprinkle, it quickly dispels the unpleasant odors which come in sink pipes and drains and other hard-to-get-at places. It is indispensable in the bathroom, around the toilet fixtures and as a flush for the closet bowl. It is a dependable antiseptic, which deserves a place in every home medicine chest.

Sylpho-Nathol is 4½ times stronger than carbolic acid, yet it is as safe to have about the house as a cake of soap. Your druggist or grocer has Sylpho-Nathol in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c and $1.25. If he hasn't it he can get it easily. Ask for it by name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

MAYBELLE FROZEN RAISIN CUSTARD

1 cup Sun-Maid seeded raisins, 1 cup sugar, 1 quart milk, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Put the milk in top of double boiler, mix cornstarch with a little cold milk; add sugar, salt and well beaten eggs; strain into boiling water; boil 3 minutes. Remove from fire, when cold put into freezer. Pack with ice and churn 8 minutes. Add raisins which have been washed and chopped; add vanilla; churn 3 minutes or until firm. Much depends on the kind of freezer used. Four parts of ice and one part of salt for freezing

RAISIN PARFAIT

One-quarter cup cooked apricot pulp, ¾ cup chopped Sun-Maid raisins, ¾ cup sugar, ¼ cup water, 2 stiffly beaten egg whites, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, 1 cup cream, beaten stiff. Mix the apricot pulp and chopped raisins. Let stand two hours or more. Cook the sugar and water until syrup spins a thread and pour gradually on the beaten egg whites. Beat constantly until cold. Then add ½ teaspoon lemon juice and the fruit pulp and fold in 1 cup of cream beaten until stiff. Pour into a large mold, cover closely and pack in equal parts ice and salt for 4 hours.

A rich New Yorker had been giving some East Side street urchins a day at the beach once a year, the feature of the trip being an ocean bath.

As the patron stood by the car watching the little fellows get out, he noted one especially dirty little boy and said:

"How is it you are so dirty, son?"

"Please, sir," answered the boy, "I missed the car for the beach last year."

Answers to Radio Fans

R. B. M., Dorchester—In addition to your present equipment you will need a vacuum tube and socket, storage battery (6-volt radio), 22½-volt B battery (dry) and a rheostat. A variometer will increase your range considerably. It is impossible to say what your range will be, except that it will be better with a crystal set.

R. A. K., Boston—Radio-frequency amplification is still more or less in the experimental stages as far as the shorter wave lengths go. To be most efficient, transformers must be matched with tubes, in order to balance the capacity effects in the tubes, and the transformers themselves must be selected with care.

Kellogg's SHREDDED

KRUMBLES

deliciously flavored WHOLE-WHEAT

Food that makes red blood!

Kellogg's whole-wheat KRUMBLES—with the full, enticing flavor of whole wheat for the first time—are wonderful makers of red blood, of bone, and of tissue!

Compare the red-blooded man or woman with puny, undernourished types, then you'll realize why every child should eat KRUMBLES every day to become rugged and enjoy robust health; to become physically courageous and mentally keen; to be able to go into the world READY to take a leading part!

KRUMBLES are a perfectly balanced food. They contain every vital food element! KRUMBLES counteract the effect of the denatured foods we eat—foods robbed of life-sustaining elements!

KRUMBLES eaten daily renew the strength of men and women workers and provide food that sustains the aged. All grocers sell KRUMBLES!

TRIES SUICIDE FOR THIRD TIME

Haverhill, Aug. 29.—Irving Davis, eighteen, of No. 6 Marlop street, who was arrested by the police inspectors here, charged with larceny of $600 worth of jewelry, finds his third attempt at suicide while under police guard at the Gale Hospital.

Davis tied some bedsheets together with the intention of hanging himself, but was discovered before he could effect his purpose. On previous occasions he stole a knife from the dinner tray and took a surgical instrument from one of the doctors and hid them under his bed, awaiting an opportunity to do away with himself.

He will be discharged this week and arraigned in the Haverhill District Court on a charge of larceny. He is also wanted, the police say, in Merrimack and South Groveland on similar charges.

POLITICAL NOTES

Now the attorney general fight waxes warm. James F. Cavanagh says of his opponent, District Attorney S. Howard Donnell of Essex: "Will they select a man like Donnell, who opposed our great attorney general when he asked for more power, and stood on the side of the blackmailing gang?" Both are Republicans, too!

Francis J. W. Ford, one of the seven Democratic candidates for district attorney of Suffolk, charges that Massachusetts coal dealers are opposing his election "with all their wealth and power."

Former Senator Charles A. Winchester, candidate for Suffolk Register of Deeds, declares that his fight is now won and that from a close contest the tide of victory has swept in his favor within three days.

In his latest statement District Attorney O'Brien declares:

"Mr. Foley, the statements you made concerning me, I could not be a candidate against Mr. Pelletier seems to stick in the minds of some of the people. They wonder why you continue to campaign.

"Mr. Ford, I agree with you Mr. Pelletier can never sit as District Attorney. Since you were elected as a Good Government Association Councilman you were never weaker politically than now.

"Both of you should withdraw in my favor as I represent decent government."

James H. Hagan, candidate for Clerk of the Superior Criminal Court, declares that to prove that we have graduated from our position as a colonial state we should abolish our monarchial system of judiciary and elect our judges.

• • •

Former Senator John J. Kearney, candidate for Governor in the 10th district, declared at meetings held in the South End: "If Congressman Tague and others in public office made one-half the effort before strikes to prevent them, then condoning the fact afterwards, our country would be much better off."

• • •

W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Register of Deeds, in answer to charges of his opponent, Joseph C. Borchardt, cited ten major "revolutions" that he has brought to the office, including several that safeguard small home buyers against those who would fleece them.

Governor Cox took "holier-than-thou" candidates to task in a speech before the Kiwanis Club at which he said "If we were to rely entirely upon their utterances we should be compelled to conclude that the lot of man is miserable indeed, and that the only escape from evil is by the practice of sainthood as leaders. I still believe that Massachusetts is a good Commonwealth."

• • •

William A. Canty of Roxbury, who seeks a second term in the House, has a feminine contingent that can't be beat—school teachers for whose pay raise he left a sick bed to cast the deciding vote.

Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor John F. Doherty ex-Democratic leader of the Massachusetts House, assails the Republican House majority as being under the control of a "British lobby that has taken $6,000,000 profit from the State in three years and prevented passage of beneficial insurance legislation."

Councillor William J. Foley, candidate for District Attorney, states that on the night of March 16, 1918, before the Insurance Writers at Ford Hall, District Attorney O'Brien said: "The Volstead act is the greatest piece of legislation ever enacted." Foley further states: "J. Weston Allen, who was present, then said: 'I feel sure you will all agree with me that is a proper thing when I selected him for District Attorney.'"

Employees of the First National Bank will hear William J. Patron, candidate for District Attorney, discuss his ideas on modern criminology today. This evening Mr. Patron will hold rallies in Hyde Park, Jamaica Plain and Mattapan.

District Attorney S. Howard Donnell of Essex County, candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, will make another trip through Worcester county and the western part of the State.

"It will be my business as Governor of this Commonwealth to increase the opportunities of foreign sales by propaganda and by educating the people of Massachusetts to the need of foreign markets," declared former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald at a rally in Waltham.

• • •

Senator William H. McDonnell charged the Republican party with neglecting its duties since it was put in power, while speaking at rallies in Charlestown and in Cambridge. Mr. McDonnell is Democratic candidate for Governor's Council.

Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden, speaking at rallies in Somerville in the interest of Sherman Whipple, candidate for United States district attorney, in an attack on Colonel William A. Gaston, "Colonel Gaston has not only refused moral support to Democratic candidates for State offices, but has openly supported the nominees of the Republican party," he stated.

Representative Arthur K. Reading submitted proof at rallies in Concord, Lexington, Bedford and Arlington, sustaining his claim that he had been appointed an assistant district attorney by the court to try automobile cases and did serve in that capacity.

Congressman Tague was attacked for "lack of interest when the Leviathan case was being considered," at rallies in Charlestown by Thomas J. Giblin of East Boston candidate to succeed Tague.

Mayor Curley, in a speech at the Senatorial campaign headquarters of Sherman L. Whipple on School street, denounced Frederick Hartford for "inactivity" in the coal and rail situation.

"What we want in our rulers is 'guts,' not gold scores, work, not words," said the Mayor.

Joseph P. Walsh, Democratic candidate for the District Attorney nomination in Suffolk County, at rallies in South Boston and Dorchester, said Joseph C. Pelletier, as a debarred lawyer, could not qualify, and would not be recognized by the courts if elected to office.

Who Makes "Criminals?"

Did This View of It Ever Occur to You?

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Much interest just now in CRIMINALS.

Many plans more or less appropriate for making the air pure.

Many good men, politicians, women and bishops who spend the Summer at the seaside are willing to spend a few days wiping "CRIME" off the earth.

What is CRIME? Who are the CRIMINALS? Who makes the criminals?

Do criminals viciously and voluntarily arise among us, eager to lead hunted lives, eager to be jailed at intervals, eager to crawl in the dark, dodge policemen, work in stripes and die in shame? Hardly.

Will you kindly and patiently follow the lives, quickly sketched, of a boy and a girl?

THE GIRL

Born poor, born in hard luck, her father, or mother, or both, victims of long hours, poor fare, bad air and little leisure.

As a baby she struggles against fate and manages to live while three or four little brothers and sisters die and go back to kind earth.

She gets a little so-called education. Ill-dressed and ashamed beside the other children, she is glad to escape the education. No one at home can help her out. No one away from home cares about her.

She grows up white, sickly like a potato sprouting in a cellar. At the corner of a fine street she sees the carriages passing with other girls in warm furs, or in fine, cool Summer dresses.

With a poor shawl around her and with heels run down she peers in at the restaurant window, to see other women leading lives very different from hers.

Steadily she has impressed upon her the fact, absolutely undeniable, that as the world is organized there is no especial place for her—certainly no comfort for her.

She finds work, perhaps. Hours as long as the daylight. Ten minutes late—half a day's fine.

At the end of the day aching feet, aching back, system ill-fed, not enough earned to live upon honestly—and that prospect stretches ahead farther than her poor eyes can see.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Disorderly conduct, Your Honor."

There's the criminal, good men, politicians, women and bishops, that you are hunting so ardently.

THE BOY

He swings on the area railing, trying to exercise his stunted muscles—cuffed again.

In burning July, with shirt and trousers on, he goes swimming in the park fountain—caught and cuffed and handed over to "the society."

A few months in a sort of semi-decent imprisonment, treated in a fashion about equivalent to that endured by the sea turtle turned over on its back in the market.

He escapes, to begin the same life once more.

He tries for work.

"What do you know?"

"I don't know anything; nobody ever taught me."

He cannot even endure the discipline of ten hours' daily shoveling—it takes education to instil discipline, if only the education of the early pick and shovel.

He has not been taught anything. He has been turned loose in a city full of temptation. He had no real start to begin with, and no effort was ever made to repair his evil beginning.

"WHAT'S THE CHARGE, OFFICER?"

"Attempted burglary; pleads guilty."

Three years in prison since it is his first offence."

In prison he gets an education. They teach him how to be a good burglar and not get caught. Patiently the State boards him, and educates him to be a first-rate criminal.

There's your first-rate criminal, Messrs. Bishops, good men, politicians and benevolent women.

Dear bishops, noble women, good men and scheming politicians, listen to this story:

In the South Sea Islands they have for contagious diseases a horror as great as your horror of crime.

A man or woman stricken with a loathsome disease, such as smallpox, is seized, isolated, and the individual sores of the smallpox patient are earnestly scraped with sea shells—until the patient dies. It hurts the patient a good deal—without ever curing, of course—but it relieves the feelings of the outraged good ones who wield the sea shells.

You kind-hearted creatures, hunting "crime" in great cities, are like the South Sea Islanders in their treatment of smallpox.

No desire to decry your earnest efforts.

But if you ever get tired of scraping with sea shells, try vaccination, or, better still, try to take such care of youth, to give such chances and education to the young, as will save them from the least profitable of all careers—CRIME.

Rich good men, nice bishops, comfortable, benevolent ladies, every man and woman on Blackwells Island, every wretched creature living near a "red light," would gladly change places with any of you.

Scrape away with your sea shells, but try also to give a few more and a few better chances in youth to those whom you now hunt as criminals in their mature years.

God creates boys and girls, anxious to live decently.

YOUR SOCIAL SYSTEM makes criminals and fills jails.

Death of Collins

Editor Boston American:

I wish to protest the use of the word "assassination" in connection with the death of Michael Collins.

When a man goes out with an armored car, a whippit tank, both filled with men fully equipped with rifles, revolvers and machine guns, to hunt his countrymen who are still valiantly fighting for the cause he abandoned, it seems to me, in American newspapers, at least, a less opprobrious term should, in all justice, be used.

In our own war for independence the shooting down of British soldiers and Tories, i. e., renegade Americans in arms against their countrymen, was commended as a heroic, patriotic and glorious achievement. Why less so in Ireland? AMERICA.

Public Ownership

Editor Boston American:

The time is ripe for the formation of a public ownership league, with a membership in every State in the Union. The formation of such a league would hasten national, State and municipal ownership of all public utilities.

It should be a non-partisan league, and concentrate its efforts on electing to public office nominees of all parties who favor public ownership.

In sections where no such nominees are committed the league could enter its own nominee. The only way to get public ownership is to have a strong and well-directed organization behind the movement.

I would like to hear from others who are interested in this movement, either through the columns of this paper or by writing to me personally. We have got to make a start some time. Why not now?

E. J. TOWNSEND.

Situation in India

Editor Boston American:

Your recent editorial, "Famine in India" shows the broad, cosmopolitan spirit of the Boston American, and the letter of Anna Dunlap on "Release of Gandhi" is worthy of American womanhood. The fact that imperialism exists in this twentieth century of human liberty and progress is a stain on mankind. Poor, emaciated India! Henry C. Carey wrote: "In no part of the world has there existed a greater tendency to voluntary association, the distinguishing mark of freedom, than in India. . . . The taxes were heavy, but locally expended. Nothing went off the land. Manufacturers were widely spread." This was before the blight of English misrule.

Lord Chatham, the founder of the British Empire, wrote prophetically in 1772: "Trade in India stands at present on little else than the guns of our ships and fortresses. A forced foundation which will fall if not timely strengthened by a system of justice and humanity."

Again in 1775, he wrote to Lord Shelburne: "India teems with iniquities so rank as to smell to heaven and earth. The reformation of them, if pursued in a pure spirit of justice, might exalt the nation, and endear the English name throughout the world."

Grant Allen, an Englishman, wrote in 1880 (which is also true of today): "An imperial nation is a nation which stands to its subject races in the position of a master to a slave. And this position is one which necessarily degrades and debases the moral nature of the master. It has been for a hundred years a millstone hung round the neck of England's conscience. It has been a constant field for the display of aggressive instincts, a school of militarism, of predatory tastes, of organized brutality."

Fifty millions of the people of India are continually on the verge of starvation owing to the destruction of native industries for English interests.

INTO GETHSEMANE—AND OUT OF IT

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

COME into Gethsemane—and out of it.

It was after Jesus had eaten what was actually the traditional meal of the Passover Eve and is known in the Christian centuries as the Last Supper, that the disciples came with Him to a place called Gethsemane.

Gethsemane means oil press, and the very word has become a symbol of that human experience whereby the oil of wisdom is pressed out of the suffering of hardship and sorrow.

And in the garden of Gethsemane, thrice did Jesus stand apart from the disciples and pray: "O My Father, if this cup may not pass away from Me, except I drink it, Thy will be done!"

Then followed in swift succession the betrayal, the accusation, the trial, the crucifixion, and the last words: "Father, into Thy Hand I commit My Spirit."

The cup did not pass away from Him. He drank and drained—and achieved the supreme triumph of spiritual reunion with God.

The sombre, dramatic story, which the New Testament tells of the last days of Jesus, is typical of human life. We all have our Gethsemanes, not ones merely, but continuously.

The cup of experience is constantly being presented to our lips of life. We can not avoid it.

If only we learn that its draining brings the bitter-sweet oil of wisdom and of spiritual illumination!

For, with every trial bravely borne, comes new knowledge of one's strength to bear, deeper self-respect and greater courage.

If, too, we could learn that our frequent Gethsemanes do not necessarily lead to Calvary and crucifixion!

During the continuous pilgrimage from cradle to grave we seem often to be facing the end. But, as continuously, the apparently insurmountable is surmounted, the impassable is passed, the unbearable is borne.

And YOU triumph over chance and circumstance!

It is curious that one's self-knowledge and one's knowledge of human affairs does not more readily come to the rescue when one is engaged in a desperate struggle to assure one that every conflict, every hardship, every trouble has an end as well as beginning.

In the face—and in the midst—of every untoward experience, big or little, one ought to learn to say: "This, too, will pass!"

Because it does. Whether it be a heartache or a toothache, a war or a strike, a terrible grief or a boresome visitor, an awful storm of a mosquito bite—or even this span of life itself.

It all passes. As the French physician Coue is teaching tens of thousands say: Ca passe, ca passe—it passes, it passes.

Such an attitude helps you to win a smile from sorrow and to bring from your Gethsemane an improved sense of humor.

The sense of humor which goes with a comic sense and pushes away the momentary tear with the laughter of everlasting courage and the solemn joy of the invincible soul.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

IF today is your birthday you are the type that comes up smiling from the direct misfortunes. Your nature is essentially joyous, generous and whimsical. You are an optimist not because you are afraid to look life in the face, but because you live for the moment and each moment is new and limitless in its possibilities.

Today is one of uncertain omen. Avoid all decisions and particularly participation in any popular meetings or movements.

Your ensuing year should be happy and generally uneventful, although you may suffer the loss of a close relative during the Winter.

A child born this day will be sensitive and shy, but dutiful and reliable and extremely responsive to kindness and sympathy.

FAMOUS PERSONS BORN THIS DAY:

Oliver Wendell Homes—author.
Richard Rush—Secretary of the Treasury.
Senator George F. Hoar.
Abby Hutchinson—singer.
George M. McCrary—Secretary of War.

Once-Overs

DO YOU REALLY DESERVE A RAISE OR ADVANCEMENT? When you get to thinking that you have been a long time on the payroll without an increase of wages or salary, you are apt to twist the thought to mean a "raw deal" to yourself.

But second thought ought to make you realize whether you have given evidence, ever, that you are able to fill the job higher up.

You make a big mistake that you are not more aggressive in the job you now hold.

If you fail to leave your impress in the present job, could you do any better in a better position?

On the whole, perhaps you are lucky to be able to keep what you have.

It is either lack of experience or industry and thought, or lack of opportunity which finds a man in the same old place, year after year.

Instead of blaming your superiors for not promoting you, analyze yourself, and be fair and unbiased about it.

If, after a study of your case, as if you were the outsider, you think you ought to have the better place instead of the man who is trying to fill it, then it is up to you to convince the powers that be.

MAYOR WILLIAM A. BRADFORD of Quincy presides over a city said to be the only one in America with its municipal building marked "Town Hall" as well as "City Hall." Reason is that "Town Hall" was cut into the granite away back in 1844, and can't easily be obliterated, despite the change in government.

If District Attorney S. Howard Donnell wins the Republican nomination for Attorney-General, he will contest the place against an old friend and college classmate, John E. Swift of Milford, who is certain to win the Democratic nomination, and Donnell were classmates at B. U. Law School in 1902. Both worked their way through college.

Wonder how long the old Methodist Church in South Truro, on the Cape, will continue to toll out the service on Sunday afternoons. One of the most noted landmarks on the New England coast, the old church has weathered the wind and storms for nearly a century. The population is too small in Winter to warrant service, but from June to September the minister drives over from Wellfleet on Sunday afternoons. Walter Rich, well along in the late seventies, but still able and vigorous, has rung the bell for the last twenty years or more.

While odor of oil at refinery in East Braintree can be detected for several miles under proper atmospheric conditions, by some unexplained phenomenon it never permeates the plant itself. Some say this is on account of extreme heights of the chimneys, but it is not generally accepted as the reason.

"Does iron submerged in water with a current of half a mile an hour rust more quickly than if the current is two and a half miles an hour or faster?" That's a question Edison might find hard to answer offhandedly, but Harvard experiments have determined that, while iron rusts quickly in the slower current, in the faster it hardly rusts at all. The reason for this remains unexplained.

An amusing incident happened last Saturday at Westford at the big powwow of the Republican Club, at which many notables and candidates for office were present, including those running for district attorney on the Republican ticket.

During the afternoon Candidate Reading approached the wife of Senator Pearson, also a candidate, and asked if he might hope for her vote in favor of his candidacy. "Indeed, you may not," was the quick response, "for the very good reason that my husband is also a candidate for the same office to which you aspire; and he's going to be elected, too!" And the abashed Reading took to the woods.

William F. Kane, assistant district attorney of Norfolk and Plymouth counties, is a busy man these days traveling through the district seeking votes to the office of district attorney. Yet a kind act was witnessed in Dedham a few days ago. Although quite busy, he found time enough to pick up five boys and girls, heavily loaded down with bags of apples, who hailed him for a ride, and gave them a "lift" and went five miles out of his way to take the children to their destination.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE NORTH STAR

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Can the north star be seen in any part of the world—at the equator or south of it, for instance?—J. C., Westerly, R. I."

GEOMETRICALLY, the north pole of the heavens, assumed to be at an infinite distance, should lie on the horizon as viewed from the equator. Atmospheric refraction, however, has the effect of making objects at the horizon appear to be elevated above their real places.

The amount of the apparent displacement varies with the altitude of the objects, and with the density, temperature, etc., of the atmosphere. On the average it is something over half a degree.

If, then, the north star were exactly at the pole, and if the observer at the equator were at sea-level, he could, theoretically, see that star about half a degree above the northern horizon. But, in fact, the turbidity and unsteadiness of the atmosphere when the line of light runs close to the earth's surface might render the star invisible.

However, the north star is not exactly at the pole of the heavens, but more than a degree away from it, in the direction of the star Delta Cassiopeia. Accordingly, when Cassiopeia is seen from the equator above the northern horizon, as it is about midnight at the beginning of April, the north star will be more than a degree above the northern horizon, and refraction will increase its altitude to about a degree and three-quarters. In such circumstances it may be clearly visible.

When the north star is in the position just described it should lie on the horizon of places about a degree and three-quarters south of the equator, and may be seen from points still farther south, provided that they are sufficiently elevated. It should, for instance, be plainly visible from the summit of Chimborazo, in about two degrees south latitude.

—Medbury Says—

A Boy's Father Sends Him to School to Study Navigation, but He Studied It in a Canoe

This is the time of the year that parents are choosing a boarding school for their sons.

They like to find an academy close by, so that the collect telegrams won't cost so much when son wires home for money. Every father likes to keep his son supplied with carfare, but first if he has to ride on the Overland Limited.

One boy went to school in a town where the Overland Limited didn't make a stop, but he used to flag the train with his report card.

There was so much red ink on it that when the engineer saw it he thought the boy was bleeding to death.

One father spent two thousand dollars a year to send his son to a military academy where they were swell uniforms. When the kid came home to visit his father everybody in the hotel took him for the bellboy.

Every kid has to furnish his own towels, napkins, sheets and pillow cases. The average parent doesn't know whether his son is going to school or getting married.

The father sends his boy to boarding school to learn something, but then the kid comes home for two weeks vacation and forgets it all.

His father sends him to school to learn navigation, but he does most of his studying in a canoe.

The only thing he knows about navigation is how many girls he can get into his canoe without tipping it over.

One school advertised that their pupils had three hours of drill every morning. A mother was going to send her boy there only she said she didn't want him to be a dentist.

Because, no matter how happy a dentist may be, he always looks down in the mouth.

This same school taught horseback riding. After two years training any one of the scholars could ride a runaway-go-round without their parents standing beside them.

One boy came home from school last year and told his mother that he had received a hundred per cent. in his studies. First in arithmetic and fifty in geography.

TEMPERANCE WORKER ARRESTED AS A DRUNK

BOSTON GIRL'S ARREST REVEALS ELOPEMENT

FREED BY STORY OF GIRL IN AUTO

Revere Beach Diver Testifies at Trial; Accused Says the Police Beat Him Up

The testimony of Josephine Harney, Revere Beach diving girl, resulted in the discharge today of Frank P. Osborne, accused of driving an auto without registration or license, and while drunk.

The girl, herself, accused of attacking Police Officer Pamule Giordano of the East Boston police, was found not guilty and discharged.

Osborne, charged with being drunk, produced witnesses who testified that he was a temperance worker and that he had not taken a drink in eight years.

BEATEN, NOT DRUNK.

Josephine admitted that she struck the policeman. She said she did it to protect Osborne, who was being beaten over the head with a billy by Giordano.

The patrolman had testified that Osborne was so drunk that it was necessary to help him into the police wagon.

This was denied by Osborne, who alleged that he was in that condition as a result of being beaten by Giordano, and not from booze.

The case was tried before Judge Brown in East Boston Court. Giordano and several other officers and witnesses testified that Osborne was traveling through Orient Heights at a high speed and struck a bakery truck. They also testified that Osborne not only smelled of liquor but was drunk and admitted it.

Giordano's witnesses did admit that the officer had struck Osborne once with his billy. They also testified that Osborne was so drunk that he had to be assisted into the wagon and helped up the station house stairs, and that inside the house he gave all his money and his watch to the police. Giordano said that Osborne was driving without license or registration.

BOOZE, SAY WITNESSES.

Osborne's story was that his benefactor got stuck and while he was trying to pull it up with his head he grazed the bakery wagon and stopped at once. While he was trying to show Giordano his license and registration he dropped them and when he went to pick them up Giordano hit him on the head with a club.

On the way to the patrol box he was hit three times more and at the box he was struck six times, so that he was dazed when the wagon came. He said that he had just been to Commonwealth Pier to have his car registered and when he tried to show his registration to Giordano the officer hit him.

He denied having a drink that day, or of having had a drink in the last eight years. Witnesses swore that he was perfectly sober, as did Miss Harney, whom he had picked up on East Boston and was giving a lift home.

JAMES WALSH

As you see him here he's a hiscoat, but in woman's garb he nabbed an annoying flirt. Jimmy makes a handsome flapper.

It appears that "Cupid" annoyed girls along the banks of the Charles with his cave-man tactics. O'Brien put on an outfit of woman's clothing, and sure enough, Jimmy came along.

Despite the rain young Walsh began to make overtures. And then the "tall young lady" became a husky young copper.

Jimmy said, "How about a little stroll where it's dry?" O'Brien obliged him by taking him to the Joy street police station, where it was dry indeed.

KILLED IN ROW OVER TYPIST

Leader in Gay Night Life Discovered Slain in Shop After Quarrel

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Police today have opened a dragnet for Owen D. Devitt, wealthy real estate operator, who is sought as the alleged slayer of Frank J. O'Connor.

The killing was done, it was said, when they battled for the love of Amy Shields, twenty-five, a stenographer. O'Connor, badly battered, was found dead on the floor of his place by a charwoman.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The mutilated body of J. Frank O'Connor, forty, a merchant tailor, was found in his shop on the second floor of a building in the business district. O'Connor was found with his skull, nose and right arm fractured and gashes in his head and face.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 29.—The mutilated body of J. Frank O'Connor, forty, a merchant tailor, was found in his shop on the second floor of a building in the business district. O'Connor was found with his skull, nose and right arm fractured and gashes in his head and face.

None of the tenants of the adjoining offices heard any disturbance in the shop during the day, so it is presumed that the murder was committed in the night. O'Connor was separated from his wife.

Police have ascertained that the murdered man was leader in gay revelries in the tailor's shop. Women were known to have frequented his office.

When the police entered the place after the murder was discovered, they found an assortment of gin bottles and glasses which had evidently been used during a party which is supposed to have preceded the killing.

KNEW OF DOCTOR'S 'AFFAIR'

Mrs. Green, a Witness, Says Accused Husband Was a "Clever Boy"

Dr. William A. Green, co-defendant with Mrs. Flora Eliott on a statutory charge in Brighton Court, was a "clever boy" whose movements were hard to check, his wife, Mrs. Ida Green of No. 828 Lowell avenue, testified today.

Mrs. Green said she had known of the Elliott "affair" for three years, but had never made any attempt to check the movements of Mrs. Elliott. She wouldn't think of such a thing, the witness added.

The prosecution rested its case on the conclusion of Mrs. Green's testimony, after she had been on the stand for more than three hours. After leaving the stand Mrs. Green passed Mrs. Elliott and went to the matron's room to lie down.

TESTIFIES FOR DOCTOR.

The first witness for the defense was Rupert B. Ripley, former newspaperman and night clerk at the Hotel Nantasket, who produced records showing Dr. Green had registered alone at Erl the night of August 21.

Mrs. Sarah Lebow, who lives at No. 39 Corey road with her five children, Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott's child, was the next witness. She testified that she lived at the Corey road apartment for eight months and since June 8 has been at No. 46 Sanconet avenue, Nantasket, with Mrs. Elliott.

The witness said she knew Dr. Green, and that up to June 8 he had never spent the night at the Corey road apartment. She declared she had never seen anything improper there.

Mrs. Lebow said she was at the apartment August 19, and that she and Mrs. Elliott retired in the same bed at 10 p. m. At 10:30 the witness said the bell rang, and Mrs. Elliott answered. Mrs. Lebow said she heard Dr. Green's voice.

Later she heard the bell again, after which Mrs. Elliott came into the bedroom and said she was going out to get something to eat. The witness said when she awoke in the morning Mrs. Elliott was in bed with her and there was no one else in the house.

KEPT CLOSE TABS.

That morning, the witness testified, Mrs. Elliott said she was going to meet Dr. Green in Cambridge, as he had to see Dr. Getter and his son. She said both women went to Cambridge and met Dr. Green and that all had breakfast together at Getter's house.

Explaining the packed furniture, previously referred to in testimony, Mrs. Lebow said she had leased an apartment at No. 1137 Commonwealth avenue and was to move in September 1.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Markell, counsel for Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Green said she had tried to keep her trouble with her husband a secret, but that maids know a lot. She had once discussed the case with her husband in the presence of a maid, the witness said.

Asked if her husband kept regular hours, Mrs. Green replied that physicians never kept regular hours, although he was not very busy. She said she kept fairly "close tabs" on him.

The witness said when her husband disappeared she knew he was with Mrs. Elliott. She denied calling Mr. Falkson, father of Mrs. Elliott, but admitted she did ask Dr. Getter where her husband was. Mrs. Green said Dr. Green had his name on a sign on Harvard avenue, but did not maintain a regular office there. She explained that he did no business in the office.

GAVE HIM A CHANCE.

Mrs. Green said she did not go to court the day following the midnight visit to the Corey road apartment, because Dr. Getter said they might be able to patch up their differences. She wished to give Dr. Green his chance, the witness said.

Mrs. Green said Moses Kaplan was a friend of her family, but was not required to answer a question as to whether or not he was once her beau.

Under cross examination by Attorney Tobin the witness admitted she had telephoned Dr. Crowley last week but denied asking him to remove Dr. Green's sign.

After the defense rested two motions were filed by opposing counsel to quash the case but were denied by the court.

"Confinement case."

This, Mrs. Green testified, was what her husband invariably said when she asked him where he had been all night.

And all the time, she charged, he was spending his evenings and early mornings with Mrs. Elliott.

PROMISED TO REFORM.

The case was resumed today before Judge Connelley, and Mrs. Green took the stand. She testified that on numerous occasions her husband would be absent all night and that in each instance, when she questioned him, he would tell her he had been busy with an obstetric case.

On one occasion, she said, there was a conference at which she, her husband and her uncle were present. She said she then chided him for his association with Mrs. Elliott, and told him that it would break up his home, his practice and his life. She said that after a long discussion he admitted that it would be better for him to discontinue his association with the young widow.

On another occasion, she said, he went on a trip to New Haven and when she accused him of going there to meet Mrs. Elliott he said he had gone with her to visit a cemetery, as she desired a tombstone for the grave of her husband.

CAR IN WOMAN'S NAME.

Another witness was Francis A. Godbot, proprietor of the Lincoln garage, who said Green had kept two cars in his garage. He testified to Dr. Green having come into the garage at early morning hours with two women, one of whom he identified as Mrs. Elliott. On one occasion, he said, the doctor came in with a car which he told Godbot to register as Mrs. Elliott's.

JILTED AT 56, SUITOR BURNS HIS BODY

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Despondent over a broken marriage engagement, Charles Waldron, fifty-six years old, of Bristol, is believed to have set fire to his house on the Muttonville road, and then shot himself through the head last night.

His charred body was found in the cellar of his home after flames had destroyed the structure.

Waldron told neighbors that an engagement between himself and Edna Wilder of Bristol had been ended Sunday and that he was heartbroken. When neighbors saw smoke at his home they became suspicious and called Sheriff Closbery, who found the body in the cellar.

The body of a pet dog, shot through the heart, was found in a woodshed.

MAYOR ANNOUNCES COLUMBUS DAY PLANS

Mayor Curley's Public Celebrations Department has announced its plans for the observances of Columbus Day, October 13. The day's events will follow the programs of the past three years closely, making a special feature of the pan-American idea. Twenty-five nations on the two continents of the Western hemisphere now celebrate Columbus Day and Boston residents from all parts of the American nations invited to take part in the local celebration. There will be an athletic meet on the Common in the forenoon with ceremonies and pageants at the Parkman bandstand in the afternoon.

FILES $100,000 SUIT IN LEATHER TRADE

A suit for $100,000 damages was entered in Suffolk Superior Court today by the Corona Kid Manufacturing Company, Boston, against Schmoll, Fils & Company, New York. The Boston concern alleges it was furnished an inferior quality of leather by the New York company, and that it has suffered a loss of patronage as a result of marketing the leather.

3,000 STONE CARS IN HARVE STRIKE

SAYS MAN MADE HER WORK

Supported Him All the Time in New York, Although He Would Not Marry Her

New York, Aug. 29.—When Harriet Taylor, as she was known to the police, twenty-six years old, of No. 10 West 125th street, appeared today before Magistrate Corrigan in the Jefferson Market Court for sentence on a charge of vagrancy, she confessed to the magistrate that John D. Taylor, with whom she had been living at that address, was not her husband, and told a story which resulted in Taylor's arrest.

The woman, whose real name is said to be Harriet Stattmen, said she was part Canadian Indian. According to her admission and to the report of Alice Smith, probation officer in court today, she was formerly a trusted employe of the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

Taylor, as the result of her admission, was arrested charged with forcing her to lead a life of shame. He was also held for the Buffalo authorities who are said to want him on a charge of desertion.

The woman was arrested last Friday night and appeared in court on Saturday. She was found guilty of the charge of vagrancy and remanded for sentence today. On Saturday Taylor was in court and spoke in her behalf, claiming to be her husband.

Today, in response to questions from the magistrate, she denied that he was her husband, but said that she left Boston with him when the Buffalo police learned that he was in that city.

She said that she worked after coming to New York and supported both of them, but that she had been unable to get work, but had been forced to support him.

Magistrate Corrigan committed the woman to Kingston avenue hospital in Brooklyn for treatment, after which she will be sentenced.

LOWER WAGE RATE FOR LYNN LASTERS

A wage reduction of from 9 to 11 per cent., to be effective tomorrow, for lasting machine operators employed in Lynn shoe factories, was announced today by the Mayor's arbitration committee, which has been readjusting wages in the various departments. Today's decision completes the readjustment, with the exception of two locals, the women's stitchers and the packing room workers. Employers and representatives of the United Shoe Workers of America are represented on the arbitration board.

HELD IN $25,000 ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

Joseph Albanese of Alpine street, Somerville, pleaded guilty in the Somerville court today to a murderous assault upon Andrew Bilotta, also of Somerville. He was held for the grand jury in default of $25,000 bail. Vincenzo Albanese, who was arraigned on the same charge yesterday and held in $10,000 bail, was released from the East Cambridge jail when his brother Joseph pleaded guilty to the offence today.

LOVE LIVES AS AGE SPURNS YOUTH

BUT GIRL SUES FOR $100,000

She Blames His Daughter for Abrupt Ending of Romance

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Aug. 29.—Love's hot flame still warms the young heart of Edith L. Ransome, 23 years old, although she has brought a $100,000 breach of promise suit against 55-year-old John B. Woodward, wealthy advertising agent.

Miss Ransome admitted today that she is still deeply in love with Mr. Woodward, and would marry him even now were he to keep his promises she says he made her many times since he met her in 1920, when she was secretary to George Creel of the committee of Public Information in Washington and New York, and again when he took her for a trip to Chicago, introducing her as his fiance to family and friends and even buying her trousseau.

"Youth and age in our case were bridged by a perfect love," she said. "It was a case of April and September rather than of May and December. While we had quarrels over the postponement of the wedding, which Mr. Woodward promised, his accusation of jealousy and my being hysterical are not, I believe, the real reasons for the abrupt ending of our romance. I believe he would still be faithful but for the influence of his only daughter, who is married. I think he loves me to this day.

"Once a woman loves a man she will always love him. I loved Mr. Woodward. There was nothing which I did not do for him. I had acquaintances whom he didn't like. I gave them up for him. He wanted his wife to be like Caesar's wife, above reproach."

"My suit is not a mercenary one," Miss Ransome explained. "It is the only measure remaining to me with which to defend my character and assuage the humiliation I have had to endure as a consequence of Mr. Woodward's changing his mind."

TALKING FILMS MAY COST JOB OF TYPIST

New York, Aug. 29.—Stripe of the Dr. Lee De Forest talking film or "phonofilm," have been received by his representatives in this city and will be exhibited here by Dr. De Forest next month when he returns from Germany.

It appears like an ordinary strip of film with almost invisible razor lines running vertically on the extreme right. The razor lines are the effect of minute points of light which play upon the edge of the strip on the control of the vibrations of the human voice. From this record the voice is reconstructed with the help of selenium photo-electric cells and the audion amplifier invented by De Forest for use in radio.

This invention, it is suggested, may be capable of use as an automatic interviewer or mechanical stenographer and may become a competitor of the phonograph for general use in addition to its primary purpose or introducting the spoken word into the motion picture drama.

It is asserted, also, that the apparatus for registering sounds with pictures costs but little and may be made an adjunct to any motion picture camera, so that when a public man or a personage in the news is being filmed his words may be recorded at the same time.

The path of light on the film which registers the sound waves is so narrow that an ordinary inch wide film has room for a hundred voice photographs side by side. The compactness of the film makes it possible, it was said, to carry about a sound-recording machine charged with enough film to register a days proceedings in Congress.

CUNARDER ASKED FOR RITUAL BY WIRELESS

Liverpool, Aug. 29.—There have been many stories of the strange uses to which wireless communication has been put on the high seas, but the Cunard liner Carmania brought in a new one on arriving from New York. While off the Irish coast the liner's operator picked up a message asking that the ritual for burial at sea be sent in full. The strange request came from the Canadian government steamer Canadian Prospor, whose captain found he had no prayer book when confronted with the necessity of burying one of the firemen at sea. The Carmania supplied his need.

PICKED BY NEYSA McMEIN. NOT SO BAD LOOKING, AT THAT

KING ALFONSO SNUBBED BY N. Y. GIRL

"Mademoiselle, will you honor me by dancing with me?"

It was Deauville, France, which, as you may have noticed, has been getting into print of late. The gentleman who made the debonair request was none other than Alfonso, King of Spain. The lady was Irene Bordoni, Queen of Broadway. She answered:

"I do not dance with everybody."

This is Miss Bardoni's own version of the famous incident of snubbing the King, as related by her on her return to New York from a vacation abroad.

"I did not go to Deauville to dance," she said. "I was lonesome. I wanted to drive away the blues. So I gambled. I did not lose. No, I cannot disclose how much I won. But my trip did not cost me anything. After I won at Deauville, I got lonesome again—for Ray. So I came home."

Ray is Ray Goetz, husband of Miss Bordoni for the past five years.

'KNICKERS' ON DAUGHTER; ALSO DAD'S STRAP

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 29.—Edward St. Jacques objected to his thirteen-year-old daughter wearing knickerbockers and, according to testimony in court, he used his razor strap to impress upon her his aversion.

The girl screamed when the strap came into play, and John Doer, a petty naval officer, heard the screams from an adjoining yard, jumped the fence and presently St. Jacques was on his back in his own back yard.

The neighborhood was aroused by the excitement. One woman fainted and the police arrested St. Jacques.

In court he was advised not to use strenuous methods in disciplining his children. The assult charge against him was roiled.

APPEALS $50 FINE AS AUTO DRUNKARD

In the Dorchester District Court today Judge Churchill found Wellington P. Bartels of Quincy guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor on August 16 and imposed a fine of $50. Bartels appealed and was bound to the Superior Court in the sum of $300.

TULSA SKYSCRAPER HAS $500,000 FIRE

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 29.—Flames swept the upper floors of the fourteen-story Cosden building here today causing an estimated damage of $500,000. Defective wiring was said to have caused the blaze.

HOOTCH BOOKS! SURELY YOU DRINK 'EM

Jacob Schartz of No. 65 Arginwell road, Dorchester, boarded a Mattapan car with a book in his hand. When he had seated himself he placed the book in his lap. Sergeant James J. Gallagher of the Mattapan police took a squint at the book and said to himself:

"I'd bet a month's pay that book never come from no public library. I'd like to read that book."

Taking a squad of studious policemen with him he visited the Schartz home, with a view to looking over the book cases. It contained twelve gallons of distilled liquor, 600 gallons of mash and sundry other contraband articles, including a lot of hollow books holding about one quart each.

ORDER ARMY BOAT COLONEL CARD SOLD

Portland, Me., Aug. 29.—The army boat, Colonel Card, lying at Hobyeks wharf in this city, has been ordered to be sold. She was built on the Great Lakes during the war at an expense of $250,000. Already an offer of $16,000 has been made.

"I Do Not Dance With Everyone" She Said to King

THE QUEEN OF BROADWAY

Irene Bordoni, according to her own version of the incident, declined to dance with King Alfonso at Deauville and the Monarch was forced to be content with the Dolly Sisters as dancing partners.

MARILYNN PUTS IN GOOD WORD FOR ZIEGFELD

New York, Aug. 29.—Miss Marilynn Miller may think any number of things about Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., as a matchmaking authority, but the bride of Jack Pickford does not let romance interfere with her business judgment.

At the Ambassador Hotel, where the star of "Sally" and her husband are staying, Miss Miller gave her opinion of Mr. Ziegfeld. This was in reply to the question:

"When your present contract with Mr. Ziegfeld expires, will you renew it?"

"Why not?" instantly remarked Miss Miller. "He is the best theatrical manager in America."

Reporters asked about the motor honeymoon on the Pacific Coast, the rehearsals beginning here for the opening in Boston, September 4, and the usual newlywed persiflage. Then came the question:

"Have you seen Mr. Ziegfeld?"

"No, we are just in from California. He did not expect us."

More gossip of the films. Mary Pickford's new picture, Douglas Fairbanks and Robin Hood. The bride's tour now booked for "Sally." Trousseau shopping.

"Are you and Mr. Ziegfeld on friendly terms?"

"Have we ever been on unfriendly terms? Our relations are those of a purely business nature."

The object of all the controversy, Mr. Pickford, was polite and attentive, yielding his wife the center of the stage. Miss Miller had all the poise of those towering beauties who trail across the stage in a Follies procession. She is sunburned with the regulation California glow. She wore a black satin dress and girdle, the neck cut square to receive a white plaited Georgette collar. The skirt barely missed trailing the floor. Gun metal, flat heeled pumps and a black satin hat turned up like a pirate's above her taffy curls, completed the picture.

Mr. Pickford goes to Boston for the first performance there. After that he returns to begin a new motion picture.

PERCY FROM MAINE KNOWS BETTER NOW

You may be one of the folks from down home, but you must have that little registration blank for the old flivver.

So Percy W. Skillings, of No. 144 Main avenue, Rumford, Me., learned on his visit to Boston. Percy was arrested by Officer Owens on Atlantic avenue today, charged with operating an automobile without a license or a registration.

At the station Percy inquired who the captain was, and on learning that the captain's name was Perley S. Skillings at once exclaimed:

"Maybe he's one of the family. Not so; tough, eh?"

For the sake of blending charity with justice, Lieutenant Allen made inquiries concerning the genealogical tree of Captain Skillings with due reference to its northern ramifications. But there were no results.

Styles in America Trois Ans Apres, Says Poiret

New York, Aug. 29.—The inventor of the flapper says American women are three years behind the styles. Positively.

He should know, for he is Paul Poiret, famous fashion expert, who has come from that dear Paris to fit members of the "Orange Blossoms" chorus.

The exotic Paul sees little hope, either. "I'm not sure," he said pessimistically, "that they'll ever catch up.

"When I proposed the short skirt away back in 1917, I did not expect the American girls would be wearing them above their knees in 1922. There is only one remedy. Skirts will eventually reach the ground."

REFORM SCHOOL BOYS INCREASE 23 PER CENT.

Attendance at church fails to save the boys committed to the Lyman School at Westboro from the misdeeds which resulted in their imprisonment, according to the report of the trustees, made public today.

Every one of the 341 boys committed last year had attended church more or less regularly.

Only one-third of the boys had used tobacco, the trustees said. Only one in ten had had an intemperate father and only four out of the 341 had suffered the handicap of having both father and mother intemperate.

The increase in commitments last year was 23 per cent., taxing the capacity of the institution. Industrial depression accounted for a large part of the increase.

YOUTH ROBS FELLOW WORKER IN BAKERY

Martin Cicatelli, eight years of age, of No. 118 Bremen street, East Boston, charged with the larceny of a gold watch and chain valued at $35, and a pocketbook containing $2.40, all the property of Benjamin Milton, a fellow worker in the bakery at No. 20 Sherman street, Roxbury, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court. Cicatelli who started work at the place last Friday took the articles from the other man's locker and delivered them to a boy waiting outside the place and then returned to work.

ORDER TUFTS CASE PAPERS RETURNED

Judge Crosby in Supreme Court today ordered the return of certain papers used in the trial of Nathan A. Tufts, who was indicted as district attorney for Northern Middlesex. Attorney-General Allen, who prosecuted the case against Tufts, consented to the return of papers and documents used to convict Tufts.

ACTRESS FIGHTS FOR CUSTODY OF HER BOY

New York, Aug. 29.—Love for her son, little L. Lawrence Jr., has become the dominant note in the life of Edith Hallor, motion picture actress she wants him back, and to fulfill this almost forlorn hope she sat before Justice Burr in Special Term while lawyers for her former husband, L. Lawrence Weber, manager of the Longacre Theatre, prosecuted a pitiless examination of her turbulent affairs. With her was her present husband, Jack Dillon, a screen director.

The child, whom she kidnaped from his nurse in Central Park, played about the courtroom, gravitating between his estranged parents.

Meanwhile it developed that the mother had quarreled in California with Dillon and had at one time gone to a Los Angeles attorney to discuss arrangements for a divorce. Dillon was named by Weber as co-respondent when he obtained a divorce from Edith Hallor in 1920. She and Dillon were married last year.

ROW IN HOTEL.

Soon after she returned to New York last winter, Mrs. Dillon registered as Edith Hallor, with her sister, Ethel, at the Hotel Laurelton. There, according to the testimony of Eugene Fitzpatrick, elevator operator, and Stephen F. Dooley, night manager, she was frequently seen under the influence of liquor.

Complaints about her conduct began the second night after her arrival, Dooley testified. "Then one morning after she had been warned about her conduct," he said, she threw an inkwell at me. I kept a piece of the broken glass as a souvenir of the battle."

The broken inkwell was presented in evidence.

When called to the stand Weber declared his former wife should not be given the custody of the child, but said he wanted the boy to love his mother.

PRAYS FOR MOTHER.

"He prays for her every night," said Weber.

Weber was then questioned about his own conduct.

Q.—Did you entertain young women at parties at your apartment?

A.—Occasionally.

Q.—At one of these parties did the little boy lift a cocktail glass and say, "A toast to the pretty lady?" A.—That's a lie.

Q.—Isn't it true that you denied being the father of the child when last before his birth Miss Hallor sued you for breach of promise? A.—No. Just the reverse.

Weber denied young women guests at the dinner parties entered the rooms with him or his brother. Justice Burr ruled that the child remain in the custody of Justice Marcus of Buffalo, who is a guest at the Weber house, until the final decision is handed down.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS ON NORTH END STREET

Martin Vaskauskas, thirty-six years old, of Calumet street, Revere, was picked up in an unconscious condition on the sidewalk in front of No. 40 Cross street, North End, today. He was taken to the Relief station and found to be suffering from a possible fracture of the left hip and cuts on the face. The police are investigating.

HANDSOME MAN LIST HEADED BY CHAPLIN

Now that Neysa McMein, celebrated delineator of beautiful woman, has given to the world her list of the twelve most beautiful women in America the only question that needs to be settled is who are the best looking men in the world.

Neysa obliged.

The best looking woman in America, Miss McMein said, is Alice Joyce, once of the movies, now a matron with two children.

The best looking man in America, Neysa is sure, is—no, not Rodolph Valentino—Charles Chaplin!

Charles Chaplin, motion picture actor.

Lionel Atwill, Belasco star.

Ben Ami, distinguished Jewish actor.

Heifez, the violinist.

Admiral Beatty of England.

Jack Barrymore, actor.

Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State.

Of the last named, she said, "There's a face that typifies the dignity of beauty."

In addition to the above, she mentioned an unidentified traffic cop.

"He's really the best looking of them all," she said. "I don't know his name. But he's big, keen, well cut, has beautiful deep gray eyes."

As for male pulchritude, she said: "I wouldn't give a damn for beauty in men that didn't have a punch in it."

Her list of the twelve most beautiful women is:

DOPE BEAUTY'S HUSBAND WILL ASK $100,000

Chicago, Aug. 29.—A suit which was to be filed today for $100,000 against Oscar C. Bunte, millionaire head of a manufacturing concern here, casts a new light on the amazing mystery in the career of Mrs. Marylee Rowell Rockwell Shaefer, beautiful young woman, found recently in a dope den in Chicago's "black belt."

The suit will be filed by Nicholas E. Shaefer, army sergeant, alleging that the millionaire alienated the affections of his wife and charging that her reported estate in England is a myth. Shaefer alleges that Bunte has supplied the funds with which his wife maintained a lavish suite at a hotel here and bought drugs.

"Mrs. Shaefer's story of her estate, left her by Dr. Vere Rockwell, wealthy Englishman, is true," Mr. Bunte said today. "All of the assertions in the proposed suit are false. She is receiving an income from it of $250 and, because I want her years ago. I agreed to handle her financial affairs."

CHARGES SURPRISE.

Shaefer alleges that in a "surprise scene" in their apartment he found Bunte and Mrs. Shaefer together. He asserts that Mrs. Shaefer attempted to introduce him as her physician and that there was an angry passage between them.

"She threw her arms about Bunte and said, 'I don't love you, I love Oscar,'" Shaefer said.

Bunte's version of the affair is that Shaefer entered the apartment intoxicated and accused his wife.

"She said, 'I don't love you, Nick, and you know why you married me.'" Mr. Bunte said.

The millionaire declared that Mrs. Shaefer told him of her marriage to Shaefer, "because she feared him" and that she said she thought he ought to gain control of her estate.

"For this reason, he said, she came to him for advice.

TELLS OF TRIP.

Shaefer declares his wife has received more than $7,000 from Bunte this year and that he paid almost all her bills while she was in the Illinois General Hospital.

Bunte said Mrs. Shaefer told him her husband had threatened his life in order to gain control of her estate, and characterized his suit as a shakedown.

He told of a trip to Minneapolis with Mrs. Shaefer, one of the aliases in Shaefer's suit. He said Norman Rockwell, a wealthy English cousin touring this country, died at a hotel there and at the request of his London attorneys he and Mrs. Shaefer went there to handle his affairs.
